BRIDE PLANNING FIGHT ON REDS' BONUS INVASION

Says Use of Troops to Repel March Would Be Legal.

SLATED TO ARRIVE AS CONGRESS SITS

New "Hunger" Demonstration Also Is Scheduled in December.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Plans for a second bonus march on the Capital, of definitely Communistic origin, yet more widespread and carefully organized than the first, are under the scrutiny of the corporation counsel's office.

Coincident with the opening of Congress, December 5, the new army, organized by the National Veterans rank and file committee and the Workmen's Ex-Servicemen's League, hopes to converge in Washington. The march will start in the West, November 11, from Oregon and California.

Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride said last night he is cognizant of the situation, and is prepared to take every legal means to prevent the groups from entering the city. He said the course of action will depend on the number of marchers.

Troops May Be Employed.

Asked if he thought it likely the United States Army would be called again into action, he said:

"That would be legal."

Earlier Superintendent of Police E. W. Brown made known that police departments throughout the United States and Secret Service, Treasury and Justice agents have been asked to cooperate with the District police in gathering information on proposed winter marches. He said he has not determined the policy he will follow, but believed any march on the Capital would bring about a "serious situation."

The Daily Worker, central organ of the Communist Party in the United States, yesterday published the final mobilization plans for their bonus march on Washington.

"Mass demonstrations and parades of veterans to city halls will be held in cities throughout the country not later than November 4," the newspaper's account read.

"In these demonstrations the veterans will demand immediate relief and that the local bodies pass resolutions calling upon Congress to pay the bonus and to protest against the use of troops against the bonus marchers by President Hoover."

Preparations for March.

The rank and file committee announced that local rank and file committees will lead demonstrations to the homes of members in Congress for the purpose of getting them to make public statements on their stand on the bonus.

Veterans, organized and unorganized, were urged to form committees for the march, and to collect food and clothes, and store them until the march begins.

"It is now seven weeks before the bonus march will arrive in Washington," the newspaper's statement continued. "Reports from the West show that the contingents from Portland and California will start the march November 11."

In earlier issues of the Daily Worker announcement was made of veterans

Telegraphic Secrecy Plan Blocked by Soviet

Madrid, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Soviet delegates today blocked a proposal which would have called upon the various governments to take steps to secure the secrecy of all telegraphic communications.

The Russian representatives at the International Communication Conference said it would be impossible to guarantee secrecy in radio communications without granting too arbitrary powers to the governments. German and Italian delegates supported the measure in principle, although they asked for modifications in the phraseology in which it was expressed.

Lindberghs' Second Son Is Named Jon Morrow

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—The World-Telegram said today that the second son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh has been named Jon Morrow Lindbergh. It was said the Jon was chosen for a Scandinavian forebear of Col. Lindbergh's. Morrow is Mrs. Lindbergh's maiden name.

Englewood, N. J., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Betty Gow, nurse to the slain Lindbergh baby, returned from Great Britain today to the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, where Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are staying with their infant son.

Fight Nears Congress Over Veterans Funds

Three-Cornered Battle Involves Soldier Groups, Economy League and Business Interests on Vast Pension and Relief Sums.

Armed with data covering every phase of soldier legislation for a fifteen-year period, organized veterans groups are girding here to repel an attack in Congress on veterans' costs destined to overshadow even last session's spectacular economy drama.

A three-cornered battle is in prospect. The American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars will stand together against any curtailment. Disabled American Veterans will confine themselves to a defense of disabled soldiers' relief, while the National Economy League and certain business groups will demand hundreds of millions of dollars in cuts, a survey showed yesterday.

A meeting next month of the special bicameral congressional committee named to study the whole field of veterans' compensation will provide a setting for the opening encounter.

William Conley, of Los Angeles, national commander of the Disabled American Veterans, is in Washington this week conferring with executives of his group on recommendations the organization is preparing to submit to the special congressional committee.

An American Legion committee will be named early next month to represent the legion position. The Veterans of Foreign Wars announced they will submit no written recom-

JAPANESE TO OFFER DISARMAMENT PLAN

Details of Proposal Are Kept Secret, but Threat to Accord Is Seen.

Tokyo, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—A new disarmament plan, distinctly Japanese and differing from the American and British suggestions for naval reduction, is to be advanced by the Japanese representative when the disarmament conference resumes next February at Geneva, the Associated Press learned today.

Its details are a closely guarded secret, and not even an idea of its general character was offered. A high official said, however, that the plan will embrace all naval categories and will be sufficiently complete to stand alongside the proposals by President Hoover and Stanley Baldwin, of Great Britain.

The naval ministry already has drafted the plan and the cabinet approved it today. Immediately afterward it was cabled to the Japanese delegation at Geneva.

It has not been decided whether the plan will be made public before the disarmament conference resumes, but the delegation at Geneva or the ambassadors in various capitals may inform the principal naval powers of its details before that time.

On the basis of statements in the past by Japanese naval authorities, Japan would confine reductions to such vessels as are considered to be offensive warcraft.

These include aircraft carriers and capital ships. There already has been a proposal to reduce the former, and it has been suggested that gun calibers of capital ships be reduced.

In the past Japan has opposed further reduction of what she considers to be defensive vessels such as submarines, cruisers and destroyers. Japan has disagreed with America and Great Britain over the treatment of submarines.

Partly because Japan is so deeply involved in Manchuria, the govern-

DEBT STUDY PUT OFF BY FRENCH CHAMBER

Question of Obligation to U. S. May Not Be Taken Up Before Election.

Paris, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Louis Marin, leader of the extreme right Nationalists, said tonight he would seek to bring the question of the American debt again before the Chamber of Deputies in an effort to open immediate debate on the issue, although the chamber voted, 500 to 78, to give prior consideration to domestic matters.

This vote was expected to postpone debate on the debts until after the November 8 election in the United States. Meantime, there are numerous interpellations, mostly on domestic issues, but some on such world problems as that of disarmament.

The premier told the chamber at the beginning of the session that he was ready to discuss foreign policy or anything else which the House desired to present for debate. Thus he avoided a question of confidence at the outset, although it had been reported earlier he would insist that the debate on foreign policy be given priority.

When the debate on farm relief finally got under way one deputy, asserting that the price of wheat had dropped 50 per cent since July, asserted that the government should buy wheat stocks in harvest time to prevent speculation.

Another member said government assistance should be extended also to the meat importers. He declared that import quotas on foreign meats are too high and should be reduced. Tomorrow will be devoted to meetings of chamber committees and on Thursday debate will be resumed.

The farm problem is serious in France, for recently the price of wheat dropped 60 cents a bushel in a week and this year's crop has been estimated at nearly 330,500,000 bushels.

2,911,068 Republicans Enroll in Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Swept upward by the rising tide of rural enrollment, Republican registration in Pennsylvania gained 49,149 to reach a new record of 2,911,068 for the general election. Democratic enrollment dropped 33,414 from the 1928 high mark of 867,391.

The State total for all parties this year, as reported by the elections bureau, is 3,912,671, a drop of 59,205 from the 1928 aggregate of 3,971,876.

Oklahoma Cleric Convicted Of Poisoning His First Wife

Verdict Against the Rev. S. A. Berrie Carries Life Sentence; Both He and His Second Mate, 19, Are Unmoved by Decision.

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—The Rev. S. A. Berrie, 52-year-old unfrocked Cumberland Presbyterian minister, late today was convicted by a jury of the poison murder of his first wife, Mrs. Fannie Berrie.

The verdict, which carried a life prison sentence, did not appear even to break momentarily the composure of the preacher. He appeared calm when he was returned to his cell. Sentence will be passed formally next Monday.

His comely 19-year-old second wife, the former Ida Bess Bright, and a Sunday school teacher in his church, apparently was annoyed by the decision.

During the lengthy trial Mrs. Berrie, named by the prosecution as the reason for the poisoning, appeared by the side of her husband and asserted her belief in his innocence. He is the writer of numerous hymns, including "In Beulah Land."

The State alleged the preacher had been intimate with the young woman several months before the death of his first wife, and substituted poison for sedatives taken by the older woman so he might be free to marry the Sunday school teacher.

As the convicted pastor was returned to jail, his attorneys indicated they would present a motion for a new trial and if this is denied an appeal probably will be taken.

After being sentenced, Berrie will be taken to the State Penitentiary at McAlester, where he will remain pending outcome of a possible appeal.

Iliff Berrie, the pastor's 26-year-old son, and his wife Ruth, were in the courtroom when the verdict was read.

Mrs. Fannie Berrie, in ill health for months, collapsed and died in convulsions last March 21 after taking a capsule at a church service.

INDIANA SPEECH BY PRESIDENT IS SLATED FRIDAY

WHIRLWIND FINISH OF CAMPAIGN DUE

Minneapolis, Chicago and St. Louis Are Scheduled as Focal Points.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

President Hoover will carry his campaign to the Middle West for the fourth time this week, with an address Friday night at Indianapolis. As on his previous week-end excursions to the pivotal battleground beyond the Alleghanies, the President will devote the day to platform campaigning through rural Pennsylvania and Ohio, ending up with a Nation-wide radio broadcast from the Republican rally in the Indiana capital.

Coincident with announcement of these plans, it was indicated unofficially yesterday at the White House that the President has approved tentative plans of his campaign managers at Chicago for a whirlwind finish in the upper Mississippi Valley States next week. Major night speeches at St. Louis, Chicago and Minneapolis are in prospect.

Returning to Washington from Indianapolis on Sunday afternoon, the presidential special will lay over here less than 12 hours before starting northward. The President's long-scheduled appearance in New York City, arranged for Madison Square Garden next Monday night, will mark the Republican drive in the North Atlantic States.

Gain of Many Votes Seen.

Republican managers here expressed themselves as "more than pleased" by the favorable reaction throughout the Great Lakes territory to the President's address at Detroit last Saturday. This week's invasion of Indiana, they told the President in urging him to continue his fighting campaign right up to the eve of the election, would assure that State's 14 electoral votes for the Republican national ticket on November 8.

As interpreted by the Republican managers in the Middle West, the President's personal campaigning during the last three weeks has gained him many votes in each of the three hotly contested States of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. They profess to find the idea taking hold generally that business recovery might be retarded by a drastic change in national economic policies at this phase of the reconstruction effort.

Statement by Strawn.

Summarizing this sentiment in Illinois, Silas H. Strawn, formerly president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and now an active Republican leader in Chicago, said yesterday that "a majority of business men in Illinois feel that the failure to reelect President Hoover would seriously impair recovery of business and aggravate unemployment."

"I am in close personal touch with every community in Illinois," Mr. Strawn said in a statement released through the Republican national committee, "and I find business men most apprehensive of the effect on business if Roosevelt and Garner are elected."

Characterizing Gov. Roosevelt's program for industry and agriculture as expressions of "half-baked economic ideas," Samuel M. Hastings, president of the Midwest Manufacturers Asso-

Panama Names Alfaro As Washington Envoy

Panama City, Oct. 25 (U.P.).—Ricardo J. Alfaro, former President of the Republic of Panama, was appointed Minister to Washington today. His tentative plans call for departure for the United States on October 31 aboard the S. S. Quirigua.

Mrs. Alfaro and their daughters, Amelitu and Yolanda, will accompany him.

ROOSEVELT SAYS G. O. P. HAS HAD SUPREME COURT CONTROL SINCE 1929 IN SPEECH AT BALTIMORE; CHEERED BY CROWD ON STOP HERE

Candidate Greeted By Leaders at Station.

He Stays on Train and Misses Reception by Thousands.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt passed through Washington yesterday afternoon and missed a tumultuous reception by several thousands of admirers who were gathered at Union Station only because he did not leave his train during the 19 minutes it stopped.

The Democratic presidential candidate was greeted at his train by District and Maryland Democratic leaders and a couple of hundred others who were influential enough to squeeze their way past the station guards to the trackside.

As soon as his train came to a stop he appeared on the rear platform, smiling expansively and shaking eager hands of men, women and children, in between times posing for a veritable battery of news photographers, whose flashlight bulbs kept up a continuous flashing.

Speaker John N. Garner, who had boarded the special train at Alexandria, Va., joined the governor on the platform after the greetings of District Democrats had been extended by John F. Costello, District Democratic national committeeman, and John B. Colpoys, District party chairman.

Ritchie With Party.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, came to Washington to escort Gov. Roosevelt to Baltimore, where he made one of his major campaign speeches last night. Gov. Ritchie, too, posed with the presidential and vice persidential candidates for the photographers.

An open automobile had been parked beside the track and it had been hoped by District Democratic leaders that Gov. Roosevelt would be able to leave his train and ride around to the front of the station and greet the gathered thousands who were awaiting him with cheers and music ready. The train stopped many feet beyond the parked automobile, however, and before that could be got in motion the crowd of photographers, newspaper reporters, police, senators, representatives and others, and their wives and mothers and sons and daughters rushed about the rear of the train.

"Gov. Roosevelt asked us to tell the people of the District how grateful he was for their interest in him and the campaign he is making in the cause of the liberal forces in this country," Mr. Costello and Mr. Colpoys said, after they left the campaign special.

"He is tired and worn from the demands of the campaign which he has been making and his voice is hoarse from the strain of making many speeches, and he wanted to conserve it as much as possible against the demands of the important speech in Baltimore. He asked us to say to his friends in Washington that he will see much of them when he returns and becomes a resident of the National Capital on March 4."

Crowd Estimated at 8,000.

Despite the announcement that the governor would not appear the crowds were loath to depart and fifteen minutes after the special had started

Exonerated of Charges, Garrison Reappointed

Tom Garrison was chief deputy sheriff of Prince Georges County again last night, having been reappointed immediately after he was freed on statutory charges brought against him in Alexandria, Va.

Garrison was arrested in a hotel room with a young woman last week on a warrant sworn out by his wife. She did not appear against him yesterday and Garrison was freed on the testimony of the arresting policemen. Garrison went immediately to Marlboro and took office again. He had resigned the day after his arrest.

BORAH RAPS SMITH; TO VOTE FOR HOOVER

Charges Democrat's Aim Is to Let Liquor Flood Dry States.

Nampa, Idaho, Oct. 25 (U.P.).—Senator William E. Borah will vote for President Hoover, he told the United Press tonight.

The Idaho Progressive Republican, who has steadfastly withheld comment and commitment on the presidential campaign, made the curt statement of his stand after a vitirolic attack against Alfred E. Smith.

A United Press correspondent approached the Idaho senator as he prepared to leave the speaking platform.

"Does this mean you will be a Hoover voter, senator?" the correspondent asked.

Borah paused and reflected for a moment and then answered:

"Yes."

"Will you actively support and campaign for the Republican party?"

"No," Borah answered, "I will merely comment on different phases of the campaign as they arise."

Nampa, Idaho, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, declared in an address here tonight that a speech last night by Alfred E. Smith was "one of the most effective speeches yet made in this campaign for Mr. Hoover."

Senator Borah asserted the former New York governor, in an address at Newark, N. J., had proposed to "have the dry States overrun by the liquor traffic."

Speaking before a gathering in the Northwest Nazarene College auditorium here, Mr. Borah said that Mr. Smith, in his address in Newark, subordinated all other questions to the one question:

ACCORD IS REACHED IN DEWEY WILL CASE

Stepson Would Be Included in Division of Bulk of $500,000 Estate.

A virtual agreement in the contest of the will of Mrs. Mildred McLean Dewey, widow of Admiral George Dewey, the hero of Manila Bay, was reached last night in the offices of Frank J. Hogan.

Under the terms of the agreement, Edward B. McLean, nephew of Mrs. Dewey; George Goodwin Dewey, stepson of Mrs. Dewey, and Frederick McLean Bugher, son of Mrs. Dewey's late nephew, would receive the bulk of the estate, the value of which is now estimated at $500,000.

The agreement needs only the approval of Maj. Julius I. Peyser, who is representing Mr. McLean. Those who attended the conference last night were Wilton J. Lambert and Charles S. Baker, representing Mr. Dewey, and Mr. Hogan, representing Mr. Bugher.

The contest was begun by Mr. Dewey, who charged "fraud and undue influence" in the making of the later wills of Mrs. Dewey. Under the last will, Mr. Bugher would receive the income from one-third of the estate, and the rest would be divided between her next of kin, Mr. McLean and Mr. Bugher. Mr. Dewey was not mentioned in this will.

A will made April 22, 1925, would be probated "under the inheritance laws of the District," which would divide the estate between Mr. McLean and Mr. Bugher.

None of the attorneys for the beneficiaries under the will would state definitely that an agreement had been reached.

In view of the virtual settlement, no court action is anticipated for today. The case was originally scheduled early this week, but was postponed.

New York Bandits Bind 10 In $25,000 Bullion Robbery

Guarded Plant Is Looted; Two Shot in Wild Chase After Wisconsin Holdup Attempt; Illinois Executive Kidnaped; Other Banks Held Up.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Five holdup men forced their way into the barred and guarded plant of a precious metal refiner today, trussed up ten employes and escaped with between $25,000 and $50,000 worth of bullion.

Harry Hoffman, the manager, had opened the gate to permit a truck to leave when the intruders seized him from behind. Nine others in the plant then were rounded up, tied and dumped in a corner of the garage while two of the robbers stood guard over them.

The other three men found the office safe open. From it they took five bars of unrefined platinum, gold and silver weighing between 300 and 400 ounces each, 25 bars weighing between 25 and 100 ounces and $200 in cash. They also took a rifle from the safe and a pistol from Hoffman.

Lacrosse, Wis., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Two of four robbers who sought unsuccessfully to loot the State Bank of Mindoro today were surrounded in the timbered bottomlands of the Black River by deputies after a chase through two counties in which hundreds of shots were exchanged. The other two were wounded and arrested.

Several other less spectacular bank robberies were staged in the Midwest today.

Two men robbed the Highland (Illinois) State & Trust Bank of $12,000 and escaped. Four hours after a gang robbed the First National Bank of Ransom, Ill., and kidnaped its president and a woman bookkeeper. Seven suspects were arrested. Robbers also forced a bank messenger's car to halt in Milwaukee and robbed him of $22,500 in checks; while four men in Minneapolis bound six employes of the City Loan Co. and escaped with $400.

"4 Horsemen" of Regime Made Target.

Firm Stand for Beer Is Applauded by 25,000.

Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight told thousands of Marylanders amid boos for the Republican administration and cheers for himself that he was fighting against the four horsemen of the Republican leadership—"destruction, delay, deceit, despair."

In a deviation from the prepared address, Mr. Roosevelt said after March 4, 1929, the Republican party "was in complete control of all branches of the Government and the Supreme Court as well."

In an assault upon Republican policies and assertions on the tariff, farm relief, governmental finances, prohibition, economy and relief, the Democratic presidential candidate brought to Maryland an appeal for the support of that border State in his quest for the key to the White House.

His one mention of the word "beer" set the crowd—that police estimated at 25,000—into a one-minute demonstration that set the rafters to ringing. His exposition of his views calling for modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of beer brought two more interruptions before he could finish the less than half dozen sentences in which it was embraced.

Foes' Dry Law Stand Hit.

On prohibition, he said the stands taken by President Hoover and Vice President Curtis had resulted in a "dizzy exhibition of uncertainty" and that "no honest wet and no honest dry can approve of such tactics."

Discussing what he called the horsemen of destruction and delay, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"There is no time for delay when we have been led by these people into quicksand. It is no time for delay when nearly half of our people can not purchase the bare necessities for their existence.

"It is no time for delay when 11,000,000 of honest, industrious and willing men and women are tramping the streets and roads of our country looking for work.

"And we, of the Democratic party, will not wait."

Frequent Applause.

Time and again the hall reverberated with shrieking, shouting, yelling applause as he recited the list of ills he said Republican policies had brought upon the country and outlined anew some of the policies he has proposed during the course of his campaign.

Republican delay, he said, had held back a reduction of expenditures, postponed unemployment relief, prevented restoration of foreign markets, slowed down the enactment of a revenue bill and the reduction of appropriations.

"The horseman of deceit rode when the Republican convention wrote its plank on prohibition," he said.

Mr. Roosevelt said Mr. Hoover in finding fault with the Democratic proposal that workers be kept on their jobs where possible and when they were out of jobs they should be restored meant that "there is no hope for a restoration of normal employment for these 10,000,000 people."

Deceit Charged.

"Despair is written all over this statement of the President," he added.

While new echoes of applause arose in the famous old hall where Woodrow Wilson was nominated for the

SMITH PLANS SWING INTO NEW ENGLAND

To Make Address Tomorrow in Rhode Island; Cutting and Johnson Ready.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Democratic campaign chiefs prepared tonight to welcome Gov. Roosevelt back to his own State tomorrow, while "Al" Smith made plans for his swing into New England to stump for the national ticket.

At the same time, the National Progressive League announced that Senators Cutting (Republican), New Mexico, and Johnson (Republican), California, will speak for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket this week in the Far West.

Senator Cutting will fly from Albuquerque to fill the engagement at Denver Monday night of Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, who was reported by his physician to have a severe cold. In Denver it was said Norris would appear on the platform.

Senator Johnson will speak in San Francisco Friday night.

It will be the first speech of the Roosevelt-Garner campaign either has delivered, although they have already both indicated their support of Gov. Roosevelt.

At Smith's office it was announced that John J. Raskob, who turned from his business duties in 1928 to manage the "Happy Warrior's" campaign, will accompany the Smith party into New England.

His Second Appearance.

That will be Raskob's second appearance in the campaign spotlight. Last week he contributed $25,000 to the Roosevelt-Garner war chest.

Campaign Chief James A. Farley was the only one at national headquarters who commented publicly on Smith's speech in New Jersey last night.

"I listened attentively," he said, "to former Gov. Smith's address and I am satisfied it is going to have a most helpful effect in every section of the country."

The World-Telegram said Democratic leaders were of two opinions.

"One group," the paper said, "asked whether it (the spech) had hurt Gov Roosevelt's campaign. Another hoped it had helped attract to the Roosevelt standard many of the followers of Smith who have been disgruntled since he failed to get the nomination at Chicago.

Sees Turn to Hoover.

The Sun quoted leaders at Republican headquarters as stating the Smith speech "may mark the turning point in the campaign" and as making "hundreds of thousands of votes for President Hoover."

Smith will speak in Providence, R. I., Thursday afternoon, in Boston Thursday night and in Buffalo Saturday night.

Next week he will address rallies in Troy, N. Y., Wednesday, Brooklyn Friday, and on Saturday he will appear with Gov. Roosevelt at a Madison Square Garden rally.

Bernard Baruch, New York financier, and Raskob will accompany the former New York Governor at least as far as Boston. Mrs. Smith will motor to Boston to meet her husband.

Charles S. Hand, a former New York City commissioner, returned to New York from Washington, and it was announced he would be associated with Smith until election day.

At national headquarters his return was interpreted as indicating Speaker Garner will do no more speech making during the campaign.

Roosevelt's Record Is Assailed by Doak

Says Democrat "Dealing in Words" on Cut in Federal Expenditures.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Secretary Doak in a campaign speech tonight said that Gov. Roosevelt in promising a 25 per cent cut in Federal expenditures "is dealing in words."

"A change, be what it may, is all he desires," said Doak in an advance text of his speech, "and he is willing apparently to sing any song which will charm the ears of the people.

"The governor does not clearly state just where and how he would reduce Government costs; nor does he make any reference to any reductions now being made in his own State (at the close of his four-year term), where, as he says, he has conducted the administrative and executive affairs and the policies of 13,000,000 people.

"It is assumed, of course, that such vaguely described reductions as Gov. Roosevelt has in mind would go from the cellar to the garret, and would affect every person and every bureau of the Federal service. In other words, it would mean unscientific personnel reductions throughout the entire Federal service, and even the abolition of certain bureaus which are now serving the whole country, including some of the 13,000,000 over whom Mr. Roosevelt has acted as executive for four years."

G. O. P. Club Meeting To Be Held Tomorrow

The women's division of the Hoover-Curtis Club will hold its regular weekly meeting tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the National Capital Republican Club, Sixteenth street at Scott circle northwest.

Mrs. Virginia White Speel will address the meeting on the eighteenth amendment, after which there will be an open forum conducted by Mrs. Charles Alger.

TO LIGHTEN YOUR WASHDAY

A New Home Laundry Service will be announced MONDAY, OCTOBER 31

Text of Address Delivered in Auditorium at Baltimore By Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt Before Large Audience

Baltimore, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—The address of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt here tonight follows:

I am unable to express how deeply I feel and appreciate this wonderful reception in a State whose people from the beginning have led in the fundamental principles of Democracy, whose people from the first settlement upon our shores have preached and practiced the doctrine of the liberty of mind and liberty of soul.

It is well that the people of our country should keep in mind that it was this colony which first proclaimed freedom of religious belief and practice according to the dictates of one's own conscience and soul. And let it also be remembered that this was during an era when intolerance was the dominant policy—religious and political—of governments throughout the world.

This principle was greeted by the skeptics of the time as an idea, visionary, fantastic, unworkable.

A worthy spokesman for this principle—a gallant defender of it year in and year out—a brave and tried general in the war to preserve human rights, human liberty, is your great governor, Albert C. Ritchie. I am happy to have enjoyed his friendship during many long years.

We are approaching the end of this campaign, and I am determined now, as I have been from the beginning, that the people of this country keep before them the fundametnal issues of this campaign. To that end, I have refused to be diverted or confused by the misrepresentations of my opponents, the fears of the weak, the madness of the unreasoning. No amount of hysteria on the part of a bankrupt Republican leadership will divert the American people at the eleventh hour from the decision they have already reached.

I am waging a war in this campaign—a frontal attack—an onset—against the "four horsemen" of the present Republican leadership:

The horsemen of destruction, delay, deceit and despair.

First, the "horseman of destruction," the embodiment of governmental policies so unsound, so inimical to true progress that it has left behind its trail everywhere economic paralysis, industrial chaos, poverty and suffering. You have heard him clattering down your street.

Echoing down the trail of this first "horseman" we might imagine the voice of the Book of Revelation saying, "A measure of wheat for a penny, three measures of barley for a penny; and see thou hurt not the oil and the wine."

Democrats Won't Delay Action to Aid Unemployed.

Next comes the "horseman of delay:" Emblazoned on his banner again the words of the Revelation, "And it was said unto them, that they should rest yet for a little season."

I suppose this is what the Republican leaders mean when they say "Don't change horses while crossing the stream." What they really mean is, "Don't cross the stream at all."

My friends, the delay that they have practiced is the delay that they want you to adopt when they say, "Give them another term, and maybe they can do better," or, perhaps, that inspiring battle cry, "Give us another term and we will not do worse."

There is no time for delay when we have been led by these people into quicksand. It is no time for delay when nearly half of our people can not purchase the bare necessities for their existence. It is no time for delay when eleven millions of honest, industrious and willing men and women are trampling the streets and roads of our country looking for work. It is no time to wait when the prosperity and happiness of this country is at stake.

And we of the Democratic party will not wait.

The third "horseman" is the "horseman of deceit." It is his purpose to cover the trail of the horsemen of destruction and delay. He tells you things that are not true. He wears a mask. He attempts by misrepresentation and the distortion of facts to blind your eyes, to destroy your sense of direction, to paralyze your power of motion.

He carries a great shield to hide from you the ugly ruin and terror which his comrades have left in their wake.

The fourth "horseman" is the "horseman of despair." He tells you that our Government has no control over conditions that are handled from abroad. He tells you that economic conditions must work themselves out. He tries to close the door of hope in your face.

The first horseman of destruction suddenly appeared on the scene in a country, the most powerful in the world, with the greatest potentiality in wealth, in natural resources, intelligence, and the efficiency of its people; where starvation and serious unemployment did not exist. Abroad in this land, however, was an unsound spirit of speculation which had been encouraged by the false doctrine of "borrow and buy."

The horseman of destruction in the Republican administration gleefully gave encouragement to this speculation. The presidential candidate in 1928 said unwisely that there would never be another panic in this country, that we were on the eve of the greatest prosperity that we had ever known.

Charges White House Led People to Destruction.

The White House and the Treasury Department issued statements that definitely encouraged and stimulated this speculative boom. They led the people on to certain and disastrous destruction.

There is the record. No partisan words will ever wipe it out. It stands, and the lost savings of millions bid us remember.

The destruction came likewise from the false policy of lending money to backward and crippled countries. The administration encouraged the policy that sought to open markets in foreign lands through the lending of American money to these countries. This was definitely sponsored by the Republican candidate for President in 1928 and for a time it became a cardinal factor in the policy of his administration. That it was utterly and entirely unsound I have demonstrated many times. It brought a terrible retribution. This charge which I have made repeatedly in this campaign has never been answered. The State Department presented a laborious alibi which was immediately answered in such a devastating fashion by Senator Glass and other members of the Congress that the State Department has gone fishing ever since.

You will search President Hoover's speeches in vain for any attempt to explain this policy of destruction.

The horseman of destruction rode into every town and every county when the Grundy tariff was passed and signed. This horseman was insatiable.

He struck at the crumbling prosperity of the country.

A special session of Congress was called by the President for the declared purpose of "farm relief and limited changes in the tariff." The farmers were denied adequate relief, while the President and his administration raised practically unscalable tariff walls against international trade. This foolish act was done notwithstanding that our tariff already carried unreasonably high rates, in spite of the protest of 30 foreign governments and threats of retaliation. Our doors were closed to our principal European purchasers. Retaliatory walls were erected against us by 40 foreign governments. The President is making no answer to this plain fact when he says, as he did in Des Moines, that there had been retaliatory tariffs before the Hawley-Smoot tariff act was passed. There were such acts passed before the Hawley-Smoot act. No one said there were not, but remember, my friends, that eight years before the Hawley-Smoot act the Republicans had passed the Fordney-McCumber act which was itself the cause of retaliation by foreign countries.

After the Hawley-Smoot act foreign trade throughout the world fell into a condition of stagnation.

Our exports between the passage of the act in June, 1930, to the present time fell off more than 60 per cent. Two hundred and fifty-eight of our factories were established in foreign countries. Our factories are still moving daily—moving abroad. Demand for labor dropped. Our surplus productions excluded from their normal foreign markets were thrown back on the domestic markets to the destruction of commodity prices. The purchasing power of over half of our people was destroyed and demand for products in the domestic market fell, resulting in bankruptcy, foreclosures and unemployment. Every city, every farm knows the fact. Every city and every farm is waiting for November 8 to arrive.

Opposition to Lowering Farm Products Tariff.

My distinguished opponent is declaring in his speeches that I have proposed to injure or destroy the farmers' markets by reducng the tariff on products of the farm. That is silly. Of course I have made no such proposal nor can any speech or statement I have made be so construed. I said in my Sioux City speech in discussing the Hawley-Smoot tariff act of 1930: "Of course, the excessive, outrageously excessive rates in that bill must come down, but we should not lower them beyond the point indicated."

The point indicated was that no tariff duty should be lowered to a point where our natural industries would be injured. Again in my Sioux City speech I made the Democratic position plain where I said that negotiated treaties would be accomplished "by consenting to reduce, to some extent, some of our duties in order to secure a lowering of foreign walls that a larger measure of our surplus may be sold abroad."

Of course it is absurd to talk of lowering tariff duties on farm products. I declared that all prosperity in the broader sense springs from the soil. I promised to endeavor to restore the purchasing power of the farm dollars by making the tariff effective for agriculture, and raising the price of his products. I know of no effective excessively high tariff duties on farm products. I do not intend that such duties shall be lowered. To do so would be inconsistent with my entire farm program, and every farmer knows it and will not be deceived.

The horseman of delay followed close on the heels of the horseman of destruction. To take action—strong, vigorous action—to repair and rebuild destruction is to admit that there has been destruction.

The Republican leaders would never be willing to admit that. And so they delayed. When they should have taken vigorous action to relieve the Federal budget of its crushing burden in December, 1929, they failed to do so. Their delay to take action to reduce expenditures continued from year to year, 1929, 1930, 1931.

With regard to unemployment relief, their action was the same. Farsighted people told them long ago that here was a human emergency that demanded action. But they were at all times hoping—guessing—that things would be better and that they would not be brought to a stern reckoning for the consequences of their acts. And so they delayed in providing relief. On this tombstone will be written the words "Too late."

My friends, this is one of the most inexcusable actions of the present administration. And I want to say with all of the emphasis that I can command that the interests of this county were well served by those courageous Democratic members of the House and the Senate who carried on the battle in those days to brnig about the adoption of measures of relief—measures to mitigate human suffering and want.

Moreover, the adminiatration took no steps to restore our foreign markets. While other governments were negotiating special preferential tariff treaties, our administration did nothing. Their leaders are still ridiculing my proposal for action. They still maintain the policy of delay.

The horseman of deceit rides by night. He rode when the administration told the public that the crash of 1929 was not serious. He rode when he said prosperity was just around the corner. He rode when people were told to buy and invest and continue business as usual. He is riding now, when spokesmen of the administration misrepresent what I say and what my associates say. Let me illustrate.

Avers Hoover Did Nothing To Remedy Situation.

The President contends that the danger to our credit structure was due primarily to the failure of the Government to balance its budget. Right now, let's see who is responsible for that failure. After March 4, 1929, the Republican party was in complete control of all branches of the Government.

The crash came in October, 1929. The President had at his disposal all the instrumentalities of Government. From that day to December 31, he did absolutely nothing to remedy the situation. Not only did he do nothing, but he took the position that Congress could do nothing. The deficit in the Treasury continued to increase, but never did he urge that the budget be balanced, until December, 1931, nearly two long years later when the leaders of the Democratic House announced their determination to balance the budget. Then the President urged that it be done. He was right, but as usual, he was right at the wrong time. He was two years too late.

The passage of the revenue bill was delayed because the President and the Secretary of the Treasury constantly changed their estimates as to the amount of revenue necessary to balance the budget. It will be recalled that on December 3, 1930, President Hoover estimated that on June 30, 1932, the Treasury would have a deficit of only $150,000,000. The people of America now know that on that date the deficit amounted to $3,750,000,000. I care not whether this misleading statement on the part of the Treasury officials was due to deliberate misrepresentation, or to inefficiency; in either event it must convince thoughtful people of America that the conduct of our fiscal affairs should be placed in the hands of men upon whose financial statements some reliance can be placed. Is it not time for the Treasury in issuing statements as to the condition of our finances to substitute efficiency for inefficiency; candor for deception.

I know that it can not be successfully contradicted that after the budget estimate was submitted to the last Congress by the President, the Democrats of the House and Senate voted to reduce appropriations for the departments.

I know that the President publicly announced his approval of a policy of economy, but the members of his Cabinet appeared before the committees of Congress and opposed the efforts of the Congress to reduce appropriations of the departments.

When the bipartisan economy committee of the Senate reported a bill of estimated savings of $200,000,000 the President in an address to the Senate asked that that bill be "expeditiously adopted." According to statements made by responsible senators upon the floor of the Senate, the President was responsible for the subsequent introduction of a substitute bill by which the amount of savings was reduced.

States Authority Given In Eliminating Bureaus.

Under the provisions of section 209 of the budget act of 1921 the President has specific authority to recommend the elimination and consolidation of bureaus. If he has recommended the consolidation of any bureaus it has certainly escaped my attention. The economy bill gave to him the absolute power to consolidate Government activities, such as public health, personnel administration, education and activities of the War and Navy Departments. That act was approved June 30, and to this day there has been no consolidation of such activities, and, therefore, there is no justification for our entertaining the hope of any reorganization of the departments of the Government under his leadership.

The President's idea of economy is illustrated by the only section of the relief bill which is of Republican origin, namely, the appropriation of $15,000,000 for the construction of theaters, gymnasiums, service clubs, recreation halls and riding halls at Army posts throughout the Nation, construction projects that the Congress failed to provide for in the regular appropriation bills; that were unessential and placed an unjust and unfair burden upon the American taxpayers. And the President's idea of economy is further illustrated by his approval of an appropriation of $500,000 for the creation of the Wickersham commission, one of the outstanding achievements of the present administration.

The horseman of deceit rode when the Republican convention wrote its plank on prohibition. While nothing could be more clear than the declaration of the Democratic platform and nothing can be more clear than my acceptance of it, the Republican convention adopted, as you all know, a prohibition statement that was intended to sound wet to the wets and dry to the drys. The trouble was that it ended by deceiving no one. It sounded dry to the wets, and wet to the drys.

And so the presidential candidate attempted to correct it. He added new elements of confusion. He promised to work for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment with a very important reservation. Everything went well, but suddenly the Vice President was heard from. He attempted to make provision for a dry interpretation of what the President meant as an appeal to the wets. Thus it looked as if the ticket was facing both ways. But on close examination it was found that the vice presidential candidate was indubitably dry, the presidential candidate was only half dry. The result of this curious attempt to move two ways on a one-way street, however, was to resolve the Republican ticket in a sort of whirling motion, that meant to the voter honestly attempting to make a choice, only a dizzy exhibition of uncertainty. Here is where the issue stands, my friends. No honest wet and no honest dry can approve of such political tactics. It is the most palpable attempt to defraud the American people that we have seen in our time.

Volstead Modification Would Help Treasury.

And a word as to beer. I favor the modification of the Volstead act to permit States to authorize the manufacture and sale of beer. This is a way to divert $300,000,000 or more from the pockets of the racketeers to the Treasury of the United States.

The horseman of deceit was certainly riding high when the Republican leaders were trying to make up their minds about the eighteenth amendment.

Finally there now rides abroad in a stricken country among a people impoverished, confused, sore and weary, the fourth horseman. He is the horseman of despair.

This administration has resorted finally to the most plaintive diagnosis of a doctor of despair that any country has ever heard from responsible statesmen. The most devastating example of this kind of preaching is contained in the President's acceptance speech when he addressed himself to the farmers of the Nation. He told them that he sympathized with their stricken condition, that he wished he could do something to help them. That his attempt to help them through stabilization had been a disastrous failure; that he had considered various remedies and had finally come to the conclusion that nothing but the general revival of business could restore the American farmer. This was bitter medicine for the agricultural population of the United States. Its fallacy is quite apparent. We all know that only by restoring this vast potential market, involving the needs of 50,000,000 people can American industry be restored. How, it may be asked, can industry, which depends for its restoration upon the farming population recover and thus contribute to the recovery of agriculture? That this economic doctrine is absurd is attested by the fact that industrialists have come to the conclusion that the future of industry depends upon establishing a market for American-made goods among American farmers.

Another example of the doctrine of despair has been uttered recently by the President of the United States. In his speech at Detroit he quarrels with the statement which I made to the effect that it was the responsibility of government to see to it that workers should be kept on their jobs wherever possible and that when they were out of jobs they should be restored. I have no apology for that statement. It means precisely what it says. Mr. Hoover's interpretation of it, however, is based on what he apparently has come to believe, that 10,000,000 people of the United States must remain unemployed unless the Government provides employment for all of them. The exact meaning of his statement is, if I understand the English language correctly, that there is no hope for a restoration of normal employment for these 10,000,000 people.

No Excuses Are Offered For Being Optimistic.

Despair is written all over this statement of the President. A despairing cry which says to the 10,000,000 or more American unemployed that normal employment is not for them and is not in sight. This is pure unadulterated despair. There is something worse my friends than offering hope. He apparently is opposed to any optimism in the face of present conditions. He apparently feels that the way to restore the spirit of the American people is to tell the unemployed—the vast weary army of unemployed—that they are going to remain unemployed.

This, my friends, is pure and unadulterated pessimism. It is, I submit, hair-shirt hypocracy with a vengeance.

If my opponents feel that I am to be diverted by puerile criticism, I reply by returning to the attack.

My statements are a matter of public record. They are correct. They are clear. They are directly and clearly addressed to the needs of the country.

Do not be deceived in these, the last moments of the campaign, by false lights on the shore, by smoke screens, by theatrics, by magic, by juggling, by the calling of names, by misrepresentation.

The four horsemen have passed on their way.

Destruction has done its worst. But a country of vast resources, filled with people of spirit and strength remains.

Delay has made destruction ten times the worse. But it is not too late to build a policy of reconstruction.

You have been deceived and confused. But the American people have learned how to know deceit by having met it. They will take care of that on November 8. They have lived too long and suffered too much to be frightened, to be intimidated by selfish and un-American employers and other mongers of fear.

We shall rise from destruction.

We shall conquer despair.

We are facing new things. With confidence we accept the promise of a new deal.

Head of Scale Company Strongly Backs Hoover

(Associated Press.)

Samuel M. Hastings, president of the Illinois Manufacturers Association, said yesterday in a statement through the Republican national committee, that "a change would be disastrous when it involves the acceptance of the sort of half-baked economic ideas now being peddled about the country by the Democratic nominee."

Hastings, chairman of the finance committee of the Dayton Scale Co., added:: "I am for President Hoover because at a critical time like this it would be unthinkable that we consider the removal of a man who knows the job and who is actively doing something to produce results."

WOMEN ARE URGED TO SUPPORT HOOVER

Appeal Signed by 69 Points to President's Program of Rehabilitation.

(Associated Press.)

An appeal to the women of the Nation, from 69 prominent women, to reelect President Hoover was issued yesterday through the Republican national committee.

"On the women of the Nation rests a grave responsibility at this critical time," the appeal said. "With our ballots we may guide the course of history.

"President Hoover, with unwavering purpose, has builded the foundation of industrial, agricultural and financial rehabilitation. We can not afford to let these foundations crumble.

"We believe it is the opportunity of women not only to sustain with the power of their votes these foundations but likewise to give guaranty through his election that the ideals which have found expression in his constructive acts as President shall continue."

Among those signing the appeal were Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, sr., widow of the former President; Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, Mrs. Henry Ford, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart, Mrs. Raymond Robins, Helen Wills Moody, Margaret Culkin Banning, Mrs. Grace N. Brosseau, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, Miss Ada Comstock, Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Mrs. Margaret Deland, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, Mrs. Inez Haynes Irwin, Helen Jacobs, Florence P. Kahn, Ruth Rowland Nichols, Ruth Pratt, Edith Nourse Rogers, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, Mrs. Silas Strawn, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Mrs. Ernest Thompson-Seton and Miss Mary E. Woolley.

Two Motorists Hurt, But Lehman Escapes

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman narrowly escaped serious injury and two members of his party were painfully hurt in an automobile accident east of Egypt tonight.

A State highway truck crashed against the Lehman car, turning it from its course. The truck then crashed into an open car containing members of the party and overturned it in the ditch.

John L. A. Halpin, Schnectady Democrat, was hurled into the air about 10 feet and struck on his head and back. He was unconscious when picked up. State troopers arrested the truck driver, Williams Tooley, on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Davila's Auction Sale Ends in Pistol Fight

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—During an auction sale of furniture owned by former President Carlos Davila today, his brother, Luis, and a bystander engaged in a pistol duel. Both were wounded several times.

The mob stormed the house and damaged furniture so that it could not be sold. The sale was being held to defray expenses of the former president's steamer passage to New York.

PRESIDENT CALLED GENIUS BY WILBUR

Secretary Says Election Is Test of Democracy to Stand Strain.

Northampton, Mass., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur tonight told a Republican rally at Smith College that the coming election was a test of the capacity of the citizens of the United States to operate democracy in time of strain.

"It is not a test of the leadership of President Hoover," Secretary Wilbur said. "The evidence of the great constructive program which he has used to save the financial and economic life of the Nation, is now well known. Our people can see about them the evidence of the bold genius who put those beams of support under our tottering financial and economic structure hit by a world-wide hurricane, and which have kept it from collapes.

"Our Nation today is like a swimmer who has had a long, hard struggle against rough water, but has at last reached the shore, crawled up on the bank and is regaining his breath and strength. There are those who, for their own advantage, would want to push us back into the water, to renew the struggle against uncertainty and the strong tides of fear, unreason and misstatement. But the safety of our democracy can rest upon the common sense of our people, for I am convinced we can both wage war on the depression and keep our head at the same time."

Wilbur said while "it has been natural enough that during the great strain through which our Nation is passing the difficulties should be fastened upon the shoulders of President Hoover" it is just as unreasonable to hold him responsible for all that has happened as it is natural to endeavor to do so."

French Say Roosevelt's Wife, 'Alice,' Is Power

Paris, Oct. 25 (U.P.).—Typical of the French confusion regarding the American presidential election was a two-column copyrighted article appearing today in Intransigeant, leading evening newspaper.

The article explains that if Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt wins the election, "it will be due to the merits of his wife, Princess Alice Roosevelt, who is twice a Roosevelt."

"First," the article explains, "she was the daughter of the great Theodore and second, the wife of Franklin. As the woman behind the scene in Franklin's campaign she may realize her lifelong ambition of returning to the White House as the First Lady of the Land."

The writer credits "Alice" with being among the most ambitious and cleverest of American women, and a "real American princess."

THOMAS DECLARES HOOVER IS GAINING

However, Says Roosevelt Is Running Strong on Negative Sentiment.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, came back today from a 38-State campaign tour, declaring that Gov. Roosevelt "is running strong on the most negative sentiment ever created."

"The voters are putting cotton in their ears so they can cast their ballots for Roosevelt without hearing why they shouldn't," said the tall, lanky former minister.

There has been a slight swing to President Hoover lately, but not nearly as great a swing as his managers claim.

"As between the two, I'd go fishing."

Thomas called his 10,000-mile tour, during which he made 125 addresses, an "upper berth campaign."

"I'd have ridden the rails if possible," he added.

In declaring his expectation of a vote on November 8 that "will go down in history as marking the first great definite trend to Socialism in this country," he said:

"And to think that when I campaigned 4 years ago I wasn't even a 'forgotten man,' I was only the 'anonymous man.' This time I've had up to 10,000 persons tramping through the rain to hear me—and many paid admission to get in."

He said he would break political precedent and do a last-minute bit of campaigning in Wisconsin on election eve in an effort to swing the progressives of that State into the Socialist camp.

ROOSEVELT RAPS "4 HORSEMEN" OF G. O. P. IN BALTIMORE TALK

Presidency in 1912, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"You have been deceived and confused. But the American people have learned how to know deceit by having met it. They will take care of this on November 8.

"They have lived too long and suffered too much to be frightened, to be intimidated by selfish and un-American employers and other mongers of fears.

"We shall rise from destruction; we shall conquer despair.

"We are facing new things. With confidence we accept the promise of a new day."

While the thousands stood and applauded, Mr. Roosevelt left the hall to return to the train to travel to New York tonight to conclude his Western and Southern campaign trip. Tomorrow morning he will visit the Democratic national headquarters in New York before going to Hyde Park.

Will Rest for Few Days.

Saturday he will go to Groton, Mass., for a few days, and his next campaign speech probably will be made at Boston next Monday night.

More than half an hour before time for Mr. Roosevelt to arrive, cheers signaled the arrival of Gov Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, himself one of the contenders for the presidential nomination at the Chicago convention. The band swung into "Maryland, My Maryland," while the crowd shouted.

Cheers went reaching up into the high oval roof of the structure as George L. Radcliffe, chairman of the Democratic State committee, reminded the crowd that Wilson had been nominated here and that it soon would hear "the next Democratic President." He presented Gov. Ritchie amid a din that brought a dandelion donkey through the crowd to take a place in front of the speakers' platform.

Ritchie said the rugged individualism of Grover Cleveland and the idealism of Woodrow Wilson were going to be united in the person of Roosevelt.

A mention of President Hoover was booed.

"I say that on his record, President Hoover ought not to be reelected for a second term," he said, and the crowd cheered. Continuing, he assailed Mr. Hoover as one who had failed to carry out the promises he had made in 1928.

"It was a tragic mistake to put the eighteenth amendment into the Constitution," he said. "Let's take it out of the Constitution.

"The Democratic platform, backed 100 per cent by Franklin D. Roosevelt, takes prohibition out of the Constitution.

"Republican policies are more responsible than anything else for getting us into the trouble we are in," he added a moment later.

Ritchie presented Howard Bruce, Maryland's Democratic national committeeman, who said "the issue of fear has been introduced in this campaign through desperation."

"Every means at their disposal is being used to spread the idea that a Democratic administration is unsafe for business," he said.

"Mr. Hoover's greatest claim to fame is by spending other people's money.

"I believe that our candidate will cut $500,000,000 out of the expenditures and I do not believe that Mr. Hoover will ever do so.

"I believe that the election of the Democratic candidate will do more to restore prosperity to this country than anything else in the world."

Tydings Is Speaker.

Senator Tydings, of Maryland, came up through another whirl of applause to assail the Hoover administration and was interrupted in the middle of his second sentence by the band breaking into "Happy Days Are Here Again," and a cheering, yelling demonstration announced the entrance of the candidate. While he stood beside his tall son, James Roosevelt, the cheering, punctuated by blasts from horns and the shrilling of whistles, continued for a couple of minutes.

"Give Tydings a chance," several persons in the audience shouted as Ritchie announced that it would be several minutes before Gov. Roosevelt would begin speaking.

Tydings continued, asserting that "any one who can stand four more years of Hoover prosperity is a glutton for punishment."

As he concluded Ritchie came forward again and stood for several minutes in silence until the crowd began to shout for Gov. Roosevelt.

Another demonstration swept the hall as Mr. Roosevelt came before the microphones. For more than a minute the hall rang with the noise until he raised his hand for silence.

The hoarseness that had been evident in his voice earlier in the day made its appearance again as he started his speech.

ROOSEVELT IMPEDES UPTURN, MILLS SAYS

Tells Ohioans Prospects of Democratic Win Disturb Intelligent People.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Secretary Mills said in a campaign speech here tonight that "if Gov. Roosevelt is elected, he and the Democratic Congress that he will bring with him will be carried into office by a wave of discontent."

"The country knows Democratic success means all of the uncertainties that inevitably accompany a general tariff revision," Mills said. "Even worse, Democratic success may mean a complete reversal of the very policies that have overcome the panic and laid a firm foundation for recovery.

"That such a prospect should be disturbing is inevitable. It is bound to cause fear. It is bound to disturb the public mind. The American people are intelligent enough to sense this without advice from any one.

Demands Program.

"If Gov. Roosevelt wants to dispel this fear and this disturbance, let him not spend his time complaining of the tactics of his opponents. Let him, rather, between now and election day take the American people into his confidence and tell them where he really stands and what his program is.

"I recognize, given the conditions which existed, how tempting it must have been to conduct a colorless campaign. Looking at it purely from the standpoint of political tactics, the reasons are obvious enough. But I speak with all kindness when I say to the governor that he has no idea to what extent the public mind has been disturbed by this failure of his in what appears to be a close contest, to come to actual grips with the immediate, rather than the more remote problems of the Nation.

"The reconstruction program, which is already beginning to show results, is Herbert's Hoover's answer to the problem of recovery. What is the governor's?"

Record of House.

Mills held that Roosevelt and his party "are largely responsible" for the "state of fear." He discussed the record of the House last session and said if the measures it passed "last winter should become law this coming winter, they would wreck all hope of recovery."

The program "actually adopted and passed by the Democratic House of Representatives," Mills continued, "consisted in resort to the pure inflation by the printing press route, that is, the issuance of greenbacks, or fiat currency, or the more indirect way of bringing about direct inflation by the creation of huge governmental deficits, which can not be financed except through this process."

Saying that "we have but recently emerged from a financial and credit panic which threatened Nation-wide disaster," Mills held that "the country can not forget that the administration typified the very qualities that were needed, while the record made by the Democratic House of Representatives would have wrecked the national credit and undermined the integrity of our currency."

HEBERT SAYS EAST SAFE FOR G. O. P.

Expects Hoover's New York Speech Will "Clinch" Entire Country.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—President Hoover's Madison Square Garden speech next Monday night is expected by Senator Hebert, director of the Hoover-Curtis campaign in this section, to "clinch" not only New York, but the country as a whole, he said today.

Although the senator did not comment on Alfred E. Smith's New Jersey address last night, he said he believed that State "safe for the Republicans."

The Democrats, he said, are "pipe-dreaming when they talk of carrying Maine and other New England States.

"I have just returned," he added, "from a week-end swing across Massachusetts and other New England States and I am confident President Hoover is going to win those States overwhelmingly.

"All reports to me were that the Democrats are pipe-dreaming when when they say they will carry Maine. That State, along with others, is safely in the Republican column."

Explaining he had addressed rallies in Holyoke and Chicopee, Mass., the Rhode Island senator said:

"Those towns are right in the heart of the industrial section and I was much impressed by the enthusiasm of citizens and workers alike."

ciation, lauded President Hoover's move Monday for reexamination of sixteen industrial tariff schedules.

"At a critical time like this, it would be unthinkable that we consider the removal of a man who knows the job and who is actively doing something to produce results," he said in commenting upon the election prospect in his section.

"What the country needs most is an opportunity to get politics out of its system and settle down and go to work. That can't happen if we have a change in administration at Washington, with all the delays and uncertainties which a change would involve."

May Challenge Coal Plan.

Indications that President Hoover might challenge Gov. Roosevelt's plan for rehabilitation of the bituminous coal industry, as outlined a week ago at Terre Haute, Ind., were seen yesterday in the White House visit of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America and a member of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor. Lewis was in conference with the President for about half an hour at the White House proper, where the Chief Executive had remained after luncheon to work on his New York address.

The subject of the discussion was not revealed. Lewis, however, long has been a vigorous advocate of a more efficient organization of the bituminous industry in the rich fields of Illinois and Indiana. In his address at Charleston, W. Va., last Saturday, the President skirted the subject of such reorganization and intimated he would expound a more detailed plan at a later date. It is believed likely his trip Friday through southern Indiana would afford the desired opportunity.

Although plans for a trip to California during the last week of the campaign still are under consideration at the White House, developments yesterday suggested that the projected transcontinental journey daily is becoming a more remote possibility.

BORAH SAYS SMITH'S SPEECH AIDS HOOVER

"Give us beer, give us something to drink."

"What a magnificent political creed," the senator said.

"One of the most effective speeches yet made in this campaign for Mr. Hoover was made last night by the distinguished former governor of New York, Mr. Smith," Senator Borah said.

"Many sincere men and women have been in doubt in this campaign owing to the attitude of both parties on the liquor question. But Gov. Smith removed that doubt with a vast number of people. He denounced as bigots, cranks, hypocrites and intellectual crooks all who are not in favor of tearing down all barriers against the return of the liquor traffic. He says to them in so many words, there is no place for you in the Democratic party.

"The millions of sincere and patriotic men and women who would control the liquor traffic, who fear the return of the saloon, who believe in protecting the American home, these people he denounced in most unmeasured terms as a bunch of bigots and cranks and should belong in the Hoover camp. He said in effect if you have been in any doubt, we now invite you to get out. Your presence, your influence are not wanted.

Danger to Dry States.

"In this remarkable speech all other questions were subordinated to the one question, give us beer, give us something to drink. What a magnificent political creed. There is nothing in his speech as reported here about protecting the dry States. He would leave them where they were, overrun by the liquor traffic in other States. There is nothing in his speech about preventing the return of the saloon. He apparently would permit that miniature hell on earth to return to American life."

Nancy Lane Dasburg Gets Divorce in West

Mrs. Nancy Lane Dasburg, daughter of the late Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior during the administration of President Wilson, yesterday was granted a final divorce decree from Andrew Dasburg, noted artist, in Santa Fe, N. Mex., according to an Associated Press report.

Mrs. Dasburg was given the right to assume her maiden name. The divorce was granted on the grounds of mental cruety. She was widely known in social and theatrical circles here. Her first marriage in 1920 to Philip C. Kauffmann, also ended in divorce. They were separated six years later. Her wedding to Kauffmann was attended by President Wilson. She married Dasburg in 1928 in New York City.

REPUBLICAN CLAIMS ASSAILED BY GARNER

Speaker Declares Confused Apologies Is Feature of Hoover Campaign.

(Associated Press.)

Speaker Garner said yesterday that President Hoover and his associates "have become so involved in 'would have,' 'if' and 'but' apologies for a task poorly done that they are no longer able to present their own contentions logically or honestly."

"President Hoover," he said in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, "whips himself into a self-righteous fury because the Democrats have promised a saving of a billion dollars in governmental expenses and in the very breath in which he denies the possibility, says that he himself will save a billion and a half, if allowed to remain in office."

Taking issue with the Republican contention that economic troubles spread to this country from abroad, the vice presidential candidate said unemployment figures "revealing a ratio of unemployment nearly twice as great here as in Europe, hardly justify the theory that foreign infection has poisoned our economic blood stream."

Quotes Foreign Data.

"It is hard, indeed, to escape the conclusion, judging by some of the defensive speeches made by the Hoover leaders," he continued, "that they seek to be more familiar with conditions abroad than at home.

"Particular emphasis, clothed only in vague statements, has been laid on the horrible conditions in Europe, which contributed to our downfall.

"In order to form an estimate of those conditions, let me present a comparison between things as they are in the United States and abroad at the present time.

"On October 11, the American Federation announced that 11,000,000 of the 122,000,000 residents of the United States were unemployed. On that same day unemployment in England, France, Germany and Italy, having a total population of 182,000,000, embraced 9,161,000 persons. The percentage of unemployment in the United States was 9 per cent, for the four leading European nations 5 per cent."

Cites G. O. P. Costs.

Garner said President Hoover and Secretary Mills "have recently been more than ordinarily plaintive in their contention that critics of the Hoover regime have not used the right figures in setting forth the stupendous cost of the country of the past three years of maladministration."

He cited figures from the Republican campaign text book, which he said "show an increase in the cost of Government of $1,213,700,000" from 1930 to 1932.

"Hoover figures justify every Democratic accusation," he said. "No matter how the figures of the past three years are juggled, the record of futility and deception can not be changed."

Labor Leader Urges Hoover's Reelection

(Associated Press.)

The reelection of President Hoover was urged last night in a radio address by Thomas E. Burke, general secretary-treasurer of the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steamfitters of the United States and Canada.

Mr. Hoover, Burke said, "has fought one of the most astounding battles of all time against predatory reactionaries in behalf of the wage-earners of our country, battling through three long years against internationally organized intrenched wealth, regardless of who might be wrong, so long as he was right."

LAYTON QUITS TRADE GROUP DUE TO RIFT

Differs With Chamberlain on Action for Freedom of Movements.

London, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Sir Walter Layton, noted economist, announced his resignation today from the preparatory committee of the world economic conference because of a "serious difference of opinion" between himself and the British government.

He said he had differed with Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, on "what further action is required in order to restore reasonable freedom to the movement of international trade."

In a letter to Prime Minister Ramsay DacDonald, Sir Walter wrote. "The government view is that the desired result can be obtained through individual negotiations with foreign countries within limits set by the Ottawa agreements and subject to strict insistence on our 'most favored nation' rights."

It was recalled here that Sir Walter, who is editor of the British financial weekly, Economist, played the Ottawa trade agreements in last week's issue in an extensive supplement, coupled with editorial condemnation. He is closely connected with intellectual leadership of the Liberal party in Great Britain.

"Judging from past experience, however," the letter to the premier continued, "I fear the method of bilateral negotiation will make very little impression on the protectionist system of the world as a whole, as it has grown up since the war. In my opinion the financial situation in which Great Britain finds herself at this moment, taken in conjunction with the immense importance of the British market of the whole world, gives us the unique opportunity—in collaboration with countries already on a low tariff basis and those to whom restoration of foreign trade is a vital necessity—to propound and press forward plans conceived on much bolder and broader lines."

ROOSEVELT HAILED BY CAPITAL THRONG

on its way to Baltimore hundreds were still about the station. There were various estimates of the number of persons there. Union Station police estimated there were somewhere in the neighborhood of 8,000.

Among them were the fife and drum corps of the Victory Post of the American Legion, in their brilliant uniforms, officers of the Democratic War Veterans Club, headed by Ralph Cusick, its president, members of the Democratic central committee of the District, the Women's National Democratic Club, the Women's Democratic Educational League, and the Young People's Democratic Club.

The Roosevelt special arrived at 5:02 o'clock after being held up four minutes on the Virginia side of the Potomac River because the draw in the railroad bridge was open to permit passage of a boat. The train pulled out of the Union Station at 5:19 for Baltimore, with its extra passengers including Gov. Ritchie, Senator Millard Tydings, of Maryland; Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, J. Enos Ray, Democratic State chairman, of Maryland, newspaper correspondents and others. Speaker Garner left the train here.

A tumultous crowd of 2,000 persons swarmed about the station at Alexandria as the Roosevelt train pulled in there at 4:30.

Stop in Alexandria.

The car bearing Gov. Roosevelt stopped in Alexandria several yards from the point where a "mike" had been set up and photographers waited and while this was being adjusted, the crowd swarmed over the tracks and about the car. The "mike" never was fixed in time for picking up the Democratic standard bearer's remarks.

Gov. Roosevelt walked out on the observation platform to a steady burst of cheering and after a moment began to speak. His remarks were lost to all but the few nearest and it was evident his voice was still greatly weakened by his speech-making tour.

With the Democratic nominee on the car platform were Speaker Garner, Senator Claude A. Swanson, former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd and Gov. John Garland Pollard.

After the New York governor had spoken, Gov. Pollard drew a great laugh from the crowd when he shouted:

"Is there anybody in the crowd who wants to be postmaster here?"

Speaker Garner urged support for the county, municipal and State tickets as well as the national standard bearers of the party.

Miss Evelyn Louise Pickett, secretary of the Young Democrats of Alexandria, presented a huge bouquet of red gladiolas to Gov. Roosevelt. A card attached to the flowers bore the inscription, "To our next President."

C. C. Carlin, chairman of the Alexandria Democratic central committee, accompanied the party to Washington.

BRIDE IS PLANNING FIGHT ON REDS' BONUS INVASION

mass meetings under Communist auspices in Cleveland October 23, Baltimore, October 22, in Jersey City tonight, in Minneapolis October 30, in St. Paul, November 3, and in Portland, Oreg., October 27. Final preparations for entering Washington would be made at a bonus march conference in Jersey City November 17, it stated.

The following picture of the proposed advance on the Capital was given in the Daily Worker of October 18:

"The march will be a mass march, the delegations going to the Capital on trucks, freights and by hitch-hike methods. The local groups will arrange for the routing of the delegations under the guidance of the national veterans rank and file committee."

An article under a Baltimore, October 22, dateline, tells of the organization of a new post of the Workers Ex-Servicemen's League under Jack Dillon, former boxing champion, for the march on the Capital. This was the organization represented by John Pace in the first bonus march.

Another article, two days later, attacks Edward F. Atwell, former commander of "Camp Marks," for an alleged attempt to block the second march plans. Atwell it brands as "a member of the Waters clique that betrayed the veterans in the last bonus march."

Hunger March Scheduleld.

Although its legality has been questioned, the Commissioners' order of last summer directing the Police Department to prevent groups of persons from entering the city "unless it be established that such bodies or groups of persons have a legal purpose in coming," is still in effect.

Maj. Brown pointed out that persons have a right to come to Washington to petition Congress. He suggested that an investigation might be made to determine whether one is likely to become a public charge, but pointed out the courts would have to make the finding.

Besides the second bonus march now threatening, Herbert Benjamin, secretary of the National Unemployed Councils, which sponsored last December's "hunger march" announced another would arrive here December 4. Unemployed seamen's representatives threatened at the White House Monday "to come back down here in thousands" if something is not done for their relief.

ITALY WOULD FIGHT FOR AIM, DUCE SAYS

Inaugurates New Autostrada Before 500,000 Cheering Admirers.

Milan, Italy, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Premier Benito Mussolini told half a million persons gathered in a great public square here today that Italy was ready to fight any one who attempts to prevent her from regaining the leadership of civilization which was ancient Rome's.

He inaugurated the new autostrada between Turin and Milan, arriving here exactly on the appointed minute, although tens of thousands of country folk halted his automobile at Novara.

A crowd blocked the road and refused to budge till the premier spoke. After a half hour's delay he personally appealed to the crowd before it made a path for his automobile caravan.

His address here was made on the eve of the tenth anniversary of the Fascist triumph in Rome which has been preceded by preliminary celebrations most of this month. He was cheered enthusiastically by citizens of this city, which formerly was his home.

It was at a Milan meeting ten years ago, earlier this month, that the present premier said he ordered the Fascist "insurrection."

Signor Mussolini completed his tour of industrial plants in Turin earlier today and crowds lined the streets to bid him farewell when he left there.

Before leaving he attended the opening of the new ossuary for World War dead, where he crossed himself and bowed his head.

He gave a lesson in brevity to long-winded speakers at the inauguration of Monferrato Aqueduct, 1,000 feet high, among hills 40 miles from Turin.

The first speaker addressed the crowd fifteen minutes and the second orator was frequently interrupted by his audience. The premier, who came next, said only:

"I congratulate the builders and workers, every one who did this, but words serve nothing where there are facts. Now watch this—." He pressed a button which sent a column of water shooting hundreds of feet in the air from an adjacent hill and opened a valve pipe which will carry water to nearly 1,000,000 people.

London Will Care For Hunger Army

Moscow Financing March Charge as Nation-Wide Protest Is Planned.

London, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Accommodations for 2,000 "hunger marchers" nearing London tonight were promised by London County Council authorities in event organizers of the march failed to make adequate preparations.

Council officials made it plain they expected leaders of the demonstration to obtain accommodations for the dozen or so parties of the jobless army who were to camp tonight at such nearby places as Croydon and St. Albans.

When the marchers converge tomorrow at Hyde Park, London's unemployed plan a great demonstration of welcome.

A Nation-wide demonstration in their behalf has been organized by the national unemployed workers' movement, which a government spokesman in Parliament has branded as a Comunist organization. Many of the marchers were reported wearing red rosettes and the charge was made in several London newspapers that the march was fostered by funds from Moscow.

Tonight several columns of the marchers reached the suburbs ringing London.

New Plea to Delay Lea Imprisonment

North Carolina Holds Up Incarceration Pending U. S. Review.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—North Carolina will not seek to imprison Luke Lea, Nashville, Tenn., publisher, financier and former senator, until the United States Supreme Court rules on his second motion before it for a review.

The State Supreme Court today ordered certification of its opinion to the Buncombe Superior Court, where Lea, with his son, Luke, was convicted, withheld "in deference to the Chief Justice of the United States."

This action followed an appeal this morning by Gen. Albert L. Cox, Raleigh counsel for Lea, before the State tribunal for a stay of execution until the Nation's highest tribunal rules on the motion. It will be heard November 3.

EXTORTION TRY PLEA OF GUILTY ENTERED

Second Youthful Suspect in Virginia Kidnaping to Go on Trial Soon.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Harley O. Curry, jr., of Roncervert, W. Va., today entered a plea of guilty to charges of attempting to extort $7,500 from George N Davis, after Davis had been kidnaped in West Virginia and brought by automobile to Richmond.

Sentence will not be pronounced until Wednesday, when the case of William Craft, charged with the same crime, comes before Judge John L. Ingram, in Hustings Court.

Curry, through his attorney, W. Kirk Mathews, presented a full confession. His parents told Judge Ingram that their son had a good scholastic record and that before the alleged crime he had an excellent reputation in his home town.

A defense attorney asked that the case against Craft be continued until a mental test of the youth had been made. In support of this request he presented a letter from Dr. Beverley R. Tucker to the effect that Craft is subnormal and that a more thorough examination might bring other facts to light.

Judge Ingram, in continuing the case until Wednesday, criticized the Craft defense for waiting until such a late date to raise the question of sanity.

Curry, who first gave his name as "Jack Liggett" when arrested in a local bank as he and Craft waited for Mr. Davis to withdraw $7,500 for his release, assumed all of the blame in his statements to Detective Capt. A. S. Wright.

3 More Floggings Spur Florida Quiz

At Least 19 Victimized by Gang; Grand Jury Will Open Probe Today.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—With three additional reports today of floggings, authorities pushed their search for members of a whipping band reputed to have beaten at least nineteen persons here recently.

Officers said they believed the floggers are members of one gang, "self-appointed guardians of the public morals," to quote Precinct Sergt. G. P. Watkins, of the Riverside police station, in which district most of the victims live.

"There really is no way of telling just how many have been waited on by the floggers," Sergt. Watkins said. When the first reports came in from two women who were beaten last Tuesday night by a mob of eight men no previous reports had been received by the police.

To date, records in the police department and the sheriff's office showed nineteen persons had fallen victim to the lash, including five white women.

Meanwhile, the Duval grand jury has been called into special session tomorrow to investigate the lawlessness. Five men have been arrested and were identified, police said, by Mrs. Sallie Geringer and her 20-year-old daughter, Ola Bell Gilstrap.

COURT SAYS CABINET OUSTER WAS LEGAL

Prussian Government Faces Dilemma With Too Many Ministers.

Leipzig, Germany, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—In an unusual decision handed down today the supreme court upheld the action of the federal government last July, in deposing the Prussian cabinet for failure properly to carry out its functions.

But the opinion also stated that this removal may be only temporary; that seizure of the executive power in Prussia by the federal authorities can not be made permanent, for that would be a violation of state's rights.

This left a confusing situation. The government described the verdict as a complete vindication of its policies in Prussia; Adolf Hitler's official newspaper reported it under a headline, "Von Papen's Defeat," and most of the other newspapers agreed that both sides had fared about equally.

Premier Braun, most of whose functions were taken over by the federal commissioner, continues to hold office, and so do Carl Severing, his minister of the interior, and the other cabinet members. The court granted them the right to represent the Prussian state in negotiations with the federal government, the Prussian Diet and the other German states. Herr Braun lost no time in calling a cabinet meeting for tomorrow and the National Socialists, who control the Diet, announced they would hasten efforts to have the Diet agree on a new premier.

The supreme court held that President von Hindenburg had the right to take over the Prussian executive power temporarily, in view of the political unrest which existed at the time, the opinion said:

"It is not permissible to turn the whole state government over to a federal commissioner and to remove the constitutionally appointed ministers from their places. The constitutionally appointed state government must remain as the organ of the state."

It is conceded on all sides that this situation would be intolerable in the long run. Conceivably, for example, Herr Braun might decide to pay an official visit to Bavaria, in which case the Bavarian government would have to receive him with the honors befitting the premier of a sister state.

Likewise the Prussian Diet might demand information from Herr Severing, as minister of the interior, but he could give it only by demanding access to the records of the federal commissioner.

Garner's Congressional Race Devoid of Finances

(United Press.)

Speaker John N. Garner reported yesterday to South Trimble, clerk of the House, that in his campaign for reelection to the House from the Fifteenth Texas District he has had neither receipts nor expenditures. The report was the final preelection accounting required of congressional candidates.

MRS. HINES RITES TODAY.

Employe of Treasury Department Will Be Buried at Freedom, Md.

Funeral services for Mrs. Charlotte F. Hines, 57, Treasury Department employe, who died Sunday, will be held today at her home, 1721 Newton street northwest, with the Rev. J. Russell Clinch, pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, officiating. The rites will begin at 9:30 a. m. and burial will be at Freedom, Md.

Mrs. Hines was a member of Chapter B. P. E. O. Sisterhood, and this order will participate in the funeral services. She had been in the Treasury Department eighteen years and is survived by a son, Augustus W. Hines, of this city.

Capt. A. H. Rice's Rites Conducted

Boston Naval Official Was Well Known in This District.

Funeral services for Capt. Arthur Hopkins Rice, U. S. N., in charge of the branch naval hydrographic office, Boston, who died on Saturday, were held at Portsmouth, N. H., yesterday, according to advices received at the Navy Department.

Capt. Rice was well known here, having recently completed a course at the Army Industrial College. He was born in Okpoc, Miss., February 18, 1883, and was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1900 from Mississippi. During the World War he was on duty at the Naval Academy at Annapolis and later served on the U. S. S. Vestal. He commanded the naval R. O. T. C. unit at Harvard University in 1926 and 1927.

Capt. Rice is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eleanor R. Rice, 180 Middle street, Portsmouth, N. H.; two sons, Arthur, jr., at Harvard University, and John, at St. Paul's, Concord, N. H., and a daughter, Miss Josephine Rice, a graduate of Holton Arms School, who was to have made her debut this year.

F. D. CLAGGETT RITES.

Services Held For Railway Official; Body Sent to Hagerstown.

After services at St. Alban's Episcopal Church yesterday, the body of Frederick Dorsey Claggett, freight traffic manager of the Southern Railway, who died Sunday at his home in Woodley Park Towers, was sent to Hagerstown, Md., his birthplace, for burial.

Mr. Claggett was one of the best known railway traffic men in the United States and had been connected with the Southern Railway system since 1895. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mabel Gill Claggett; a daughter, Mrs. R. Stanley Souther, of this city, and a brother, Lawson N. Claggett, of Tampico, Mexico.

FEWER SCHOOL DAYS LOST DUE TO COLDS

Remarkable Results of New Colds-Control Plan of Special Interest to Mothers and Teachers

Last winter, comparative tests of Vicks Plan for better Control-of-Colds were made among 862 children in nine schools. A group of 429 did not follow the Plan—and lost a total of 501 days on account of colds. The other group of 433 followed the Plan—and lost a total of only 178 days on account of colds. A saving of practically two-thirds in school time!

Each Vicks package contains full details of this unique Vicks Colds-Control Plan.

To PREVENT many Colds

..after exposure, at that first sniffle or any other signs of "catching cold." The number and spread of colds can be cut more than half.

To END a Cold Sooner

.. at bedtime, for its famous double action and quicker relief. Vicks is the mothers standby for treating colds. And it's available now in a new Stainless form.

More Troops Rushed to Oil Fields Despite Court Edict

Gov. Sterling Firm in Keeping Lid on East Texas Crude Flow, Although Federal Bench Ruled State Proration Regulations Invalid.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Additional national guardsmen and squads of Rangers were rushed to the East Texas oil field tonight upon orders of Gov. R. S. Sterling to keep the lid clamped on the vast producing area in face of a Federal court decision holding that existing proration regulations are invalid.

The troop movement was a repetition of the mobilization more than a year ago when Gov. Sterling proclaimed marital law to curb the unbridled flood of crude that undermined the stability of the oil industry and brought prices to the lowest levels in history.

"East Texas will not be permitted to run wild again," said Gov. Sterling.

The troops, which were assembling tonight at Kilgore, Tex., under command of Col. L. S. Davidson, were to be assigned to patroling oil wells to enforce orders of the Texas Railroad Commission, which administers the State conservation statutes, limiting production of each well to 40 barrels daily.

Martial law has been in effect since last year, although only a few soldiers have been on duty of late, assisting agents of the railroad commission.

Interpreting the decision of a three-judge Federal court handed down yesterday at Sherman as overthrowing the existing proration system, some operators today opened wide the gates of production. C. V. Terrell, chairman of the railroad commission, called upon Gov. Sterling for aid, explaining that agents of the commission had no police powers to act against violators.

The court in declaring invalid the present proration regulations, held in effect that the commission was overstepping its legal right to conserve resources and prevent waste, inc. was attempting to limit production so as to curb "economic waste," or, in other words, to maintain prices.

MORRIS HAHN IS BURIED.

Noted Philanthropist, 75, Laid to Rest in Hebrew Cemetery.

After funeral services at Joseph Gawler's Sons' undertaking establishment, Morris Hahn, 75, well-known retired merchant and philanthropist, who died Sunday at Washington Sanitarium, was buried in the Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery yesterday.

Mr. Hahn came to Washington as a youth from Marburg, Germany, where he was born. With his two brothers, he founded William Hahn & Co. He was a member of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, Masonic orders, the West End Citizens Association and other groups.

COL. INGRAM RITES TODAY.

Burial Services Will Be Held In Arlington Cemetery.

Funeral services for Col. Ralph E. Ingram, 57, Ninety-eighth Division, Organized Reserves, who died Sunday night in Syracuse, N. Y., will be held at 2 p. m. today in Arlington National Cemetery.

Col. Ingram, who is survived by his wife, Mrs. Fannie B. Ingram, had been in the Army since his graduation from the Military Academy in 1898.

Honorary pallbearers have been named by the War Department as follows: Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, and Maj. Gen. F. W. Coleman, chief of finance.

Michael McLarney Last Rites Today

Was Charter Member of Third Sunday Brigade at St. Aloysius.

Funeral services for Michael J. McLarney, 71-year-old charter member of the Third Sunday Brigade, of Catholic Laymen at St. Aloysius Church, will be held today from that church, with the Rev. Joseph I. Fink, celebrating the requiem mass. Interment will follow in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. McLarney, a native of Ireland, had lived in Washington for 60 years. He had long been prominent in church affairs at St. Aloysius.

Mr. McLarney is survived by his wife, Mrs. Norah McLarney; four sons, John, Thomas, Bernard and Edward, all of Washington, a daughter, Sister Mary Michael, of the Order of Notre Dame, and eight grandchildren.

MISS CRAWFORD'S FUNERAL

Deceased Was Daughter of Former Mayor of Georgetown.

Funeral services for Miss Laura Jane Crawford, 98, daughter of a former Mayor of Georgetown, who died Monday at the Home for Incurables, were held yesterday at Birch's undertaking establishment. Burial will take place at a private ceremony in Oak Hill Cemetery, the date to be announced later.

Miss Crawford was the daughter of Richard Crawford and the former Miss Elizabeth Davidson, both of whom were members of prominent families of the District. She had been an inmate of the Home for Incurables for ten years. She had no immediate surviving relatives.

Ask those who have seen it.

"FINDING things out, smarty! I thought I'd examine the tobacco in a cigarette.

"Look here . . . this is Chesterfield tobacco. Notice its lighter color . . . you don't see any dark heavy types, do you? I guess that's why Chesterfields are milder.

"I'm told that uniformly lighter color is due to cross-blending. It sort of welds all the tobaccos into one.

"And here's something else. Notice that these long shreds are all cut the same width. It stands to reason they burn smoother and cooler.

"I don't pretend to be an expert but it looks to me as if they make Chesterfields right.

BITTER STRUGGLE IN CONGRESS SURE OVER VETERANS FUNDS

mendations but will present their case orally when hearings open.

Meanwhile Director Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, of the United States Veterans' Administration, is at work on a comprehensive compilation of facts and figures covering the whole history of veterans' legislation, at the request of the special committee.

A breakdown of 1933 veterans' appropriations, based on statistics assembled by the Veterans' Administration was made public yesterday by the Disabled American Veterans, who make out a strong case for the disabled group.

Their table, compiled by Thomas Kirby, legislative chairman, shows $827,849,000 was appropriated this year for veterans' relief, not including $100,000,000 for the adjusted service certificate fund and $20,850,000 for the civil service retirement and disability fund.

This organization's contention is that only $355,800,813, or 60 per cent of the total, is being paid out for service connected disabilities; that not one dollar of this should be taken away.

The compilation shows $232,410,300 is being spent for nonservice connected World War disabilities, of which $104,277,554 for military and naval compensation is the largest single item. Veterans of other wars get $239,637,887, or 29 per cent of the total. Of this $225,850,000 goes for Army and Navy pensions.

"The position of the Disabled American Veterans in the drive for retrenchment in Federal expenditures is that reductions shall not affect the relief that now flows to men who are today handicapped, mentally or physically, as a result of their war service," Mr. Conley said.

"The Disabled American Veterans intend to exert every ounce of its influence to protect this group who have been pledged assistance and, in taking this position, we feel we have the support of all real citizens."

Propaganda Charged.

The position of the American Legion was expressed from Wichita, Kans., this week by Louis A. Johnson, national commander. He denied a decrease in veterans compensation and hospitalization would relieve the average taxpayer, and charged those supporting any cut with distributing "misleading" propaganda.

L. S. Ray, legislative representative of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said yesterday his group will argue existing appropriations are not based on "hit and miss" legislation, but are the well-considered product of fifteen years' study.

For every veteran unjustly drawing compensation, he holds, there are many lawfully entitled to pay and in need of it, who can not prove service connected disability.

Under the resolution creating the special congressional investigating committee, it must complete its study and report back to Congress by January 1. No meeting will be held until after elections, so this leaves about a month for the complex survey. Observers believe an extension will be sought; that the investigation will be pressed far into next year.

1,000 Claims Daily.

Claims for disability allowance are still flooding the Veterans Administration at the rate of 1,000 a day. Approximately 500 a day are being placed on the rolls through allowance of claims. Approximately 1,117,063 men have filed claims for compensation since the Armistice.

Receiving treatment in hospitals at Government expense last month were 43,573 veterans; while 13,919 additional World War men were receiving domiciliary care in Veterans Administration homes. There are now 7,374 active Government insurance cases for permanent and total disability, and 14,242 term insurance cases on which veterans are receiving term insurance.

The House economy committee last session estimated this government spent a total of $16,512,000,000 for veterans of all wars as of March 1932.

As chairman of the National Economy League, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, is leading a campaign to reduce veterans' costs. The league is sending out questionnaires to congressional candidates asking their views on reductions in Government expenses.

POLLARD AND BYRD TARGETS FOR G.O.P.

Rally at Alexandria Follows Candidates' "Meeting" With Roosevelt.

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Gov. Pollard, former Gov. H. F. Byrd and the Democratic organization in Virginia were assailed tonight by Republican candidates for Congress at a rally here, part of their two-week tour of the State.

The attack centered around the passage by the Democratic-controlled General Assembly of the 1932 redistricting act, recently held in violation of the State constitution by the State supreme court, and Gov. Pollard's failure to act on the measure. The governor permitted the redistricting bill to become law without signing.

Cross Roosevelt Trail.

Prior to the rally here tonight, the candidates crossed trails with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential candidate, at Fredericksburg today, where they also held a meeting.

Henry A. Wise, of Accomac County, who was the First District candidate before district lines were wiped out by the supreme court decision, called Pollard "the Deputy Governor of Father Byrd," referring to former Gov. Byrd. He criticized the chief executive for "lack of courage" because he did not act on the redistricting measure; said Byrd had spoken against him in the old First District and then refused to debate, and labeled the former executive "a hit-and-run speaker."

Former Representative Jacob A. Garber, of Harrisonburg, said, "It will be more than a generation before Virginia can wipe away the stain of dishonesty on her name," that he said was placed there by passage of the redistricting act.

Crupper Introduces Speakers.

Prohibition was brought up by only one of the speakers, Garber, who said he was "unalterably opposed to repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

The speakers were introduced by Joseph L. Crupper, of Falls Church, Republican national committeeman, who will accompany them tomorrow as they head westward into the home territory of former Gov. Byrd.

Mrs. Murray Boocock, of Keswick, Republican national committeewoman, who was seated with the speakers, greeted the crowd.

Taxes to Be Topic At Frederick Friday

Prince Georges Commissioners Invited to Attend Conference.

The Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday accepted an invitation to attend a conference of other county commissioners at Frederick, Md., next Friday. A change in the present method of distributing gasoline tax funds and a reduction in county school taxes will be discussed. With the invitation, the commissioners received a copy of a resolution recently adopted by the Eastern Shore county commissioners. This calls for expenditure of part of the gasoline tax on county roads; reduction of the school levy; reduction of all salaries of more than $1,000; cessation of pensions for elected officers, and return of automobile violation fines to the county.

A request for a zoning change, asking that lots 45 and 46 in block H of Fairmont Heights be changed from residential to commercial was withdrawn by W. C. Crawford. Crawford was told that he could continue to conduct a commercial enterprise on the lots without a zoning change, inasmuch as he had started it before the zoning laws went into effect.

Howard E. Christman presented a petition asking that Sheriff road be taken over as a State road, backing up the request with four pages of signers. The commissioners also inspected rooms in a new building near the courthouse, with a view to using them for police headquarters.

JAPANESE TO OFFER DISARMAMENT PLAN

ment is represented as disinclined to agree to sweeping reductions in land armaments, and therefore the new proposals, it is understood, are confined to naval limitations.

The informant of the Associated Press would not suggest any points in which Japan's new plan for naval reduction differs from the American and British plans, but the general trend of Japanese naval policy is well enough known to indicate possible disagreements over fundamentals which might complicate still further the work of the disarmament conference.

London, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—In quarters close to the developments of disarmament negotiations there was a growing conviction today that the British plan for apreliminary four-power conference at London or Geneva will be dropped.

This morning there was comment that Germany seems determined not to be drawn back into negotiations at Geneva, whence she retired because of refusal to admit her claim to equality in armaments with the other nations of Europe. It was agreed also that there seems to be little chance that the proposed meeting will be held elsewhere.

Nevertheless, the invitations extended by the British government to Germany, France and Italy have not yet been withdrawn.

Two Sewer Contracts Awarded.

Two sewer contracts were let yesterday by the District Commissioners. W. J. McLane, of Richmond, Va., will build the Falls Branch stormwater sewer at a cost of $29,232.25, while the Warren F. Brenizer Co., of Washington, will construct the Fendell avenue stormwater sewer at a cost of $4,768.58.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

SINCE "The Cat and the Fiddle," the Max Gordon production that ran 53 weeks in New York last season and is due at the National Theater Sunday night, is recognized as one of the most deftly turned light musical entertainments of the decade, with an orchestral treatment and score that stamp it as a thing distinctly apart from the usual musical comedy or operetta, and since, again, Mr. Beauvais Fox, one of the most scholarly of the avant couriers has sufficiently recovered from an encounter with a Boston motor car to serve once more as first aid to harried dramatic editors, it happily becomes possible to make the avid theater fan intimately acquainted with Miss Bettina Hall, prima donna of this Kern-Harbach triumph.

Bettina Hall.

As the intimacies about to be disclosed are strictly Mr. Fox's, it seems no more than fair to remark that of the immediately ensuing paragraphs only the quotation marks originated in this department. So, says Mr. Fox:

"Born on October 14, 1906, in Providence, R. I., the youngest of four sisters—they call her 'B.' Two of them are married to men in Boston. She is single, and shares an apartment on Beekman place, New York, with Natalie (also a prima donna) and a maid.

"They have arguments as to menus because Natalie must diet to keep her figure, and Bettina prefers husky foods, such as goulashes, sauerkraut, and puddings, to anything else. Weighs 122 pounds and stands 5 feet 7 inches. Adores wines, loathes hard liquor and doesn't smoke.

"Blonde hair down to her shoulders. It's straight and won't stay in waves more than fifteen minutes, in spite of a permanent. Her maid recurls it between acts. Once broke her nose in a sleigh, but it came out even and doesn't show.

"Her dad is head of a brass concern's sales department. Her mother was an oratorial singer. She'd write little songs for them, and Bettina's official stage debut was at 3, when the four of them appeared at a church fair singing:

'We are frolicking, rollicking blooming girls,
And the world looks good to us.'

"Selling a dozen chickens, which she had reared to oven stage, was the first money she ever earned—thinks this gave her an obsession for financial independence and made a business woman out of her.

"One of her pet hates is signing a contract—because she is afraid she's left something out of it that should be in. Plays the market mildly on hunches. Last week managed to double her cash on hand.

"Not a bridge player, but likes poker, though her favorite game is 'red dog.' Wins at these, too.

"Never wants to go to bed. Adores parties, but won't allow herself to attend them more than twice a week, because she needs lots of sleep.

"Gets up at noon for breakfast. Saturdays, matinee. Monday, singing lessons. Tuesday, to a dentist to have her teeth straightened. Wednesday, matinee. Thursday she keeps open to attend any show that's on. Friday, piano lesson.

"A studious pupil. After graduation, started singing seriously. One day an old friend of her mother's called to say, 'You girls had better come to tea tomorrow and sing for Cousin Winthrop.'

"All four of them were promptly invited into Winthrop Ames' chorus, and Bettina was given the understudy to Iolanthe, getting a chance at the part when the star was ill.

"She herself had a fierce cold at the time. Had never taken any medicines in her life. And after the whole company dosed her with their favorite sneeze cures, she walked through the evening in a daze. Ames christened her Bettina. She keeps her real name a secret. All she'll tell you is that it's of one syllable."

So now you know!

It sounds like an altruistic enterprise, this project of the RKO-Keith theaters throughout the land to save $50,000 for the picture patrons while they are harvesting a gross of $500,000 for themselves. A gloss is lent the drive by designating it a "thrift sales" campaign. What it amounts to, without the camouflage, is a Nation-wide resort to cut-rate ticket selling, a device that is always fraught with danger.

If it does not result in the formation of a bad habit, the idea is a convenient and an economical one for the customarily cash customer. The thrift ticket books are made up after the manner of railroad mileage, shoe shine strips, or what have you, in compact squeedunkles of five-cent coupons, to be detached in amounts representing the admission cost to the seats desired.

Each RKO-Keith manager is allotted a quota of thrift books that he is, of course, expected to exceed. For those selling their quotas first, prizes are offered as a reward for breaking down sales resistance. Stars from the studios of RKO-Radio will be called into the campaign to make special pictures boosting the thrift drive.

Locally, the cashiers of RKO-Keith's are prepared to give all necessary information concerning the details of the plan—even down to selling you the books at a saving of 10 per cent under box-office prices, I am given to understand.

All those who go places and do things must know by now that Joe Brown—not the cavernous Joe E., of the movies—not so long ago recognized as Washington's best dancer, is back in the old home town in the capacity of master of ceremonies at Club Prudhom, where he is putting on a "Celebrity Night" every Wednesday attended by practically all of the professionals appearing on the local stages.

So I tell you what. Let's Joe Brown and Joe Frisco, playing at Loew's Fox, get together tonight so Joe Brown can show Joe Frisco just what that "Frisco dancing" is like—or vice versa, or something!

Joe, by the way, has the reputation of having done the best imitation of Joe that Joe has ever seen, so Joe tells me!

Marvin Schenck, of the Loew booking offices and the tribe of Nick and Joe, was a visitor in Washington yesterday. Mr. Schenck obviously was on a brief vacation jaunt. He spent the afternoon taking in as many moom pitcher shows as he could wedge into three or four hours and then left precipitately for similar frolics in Baltimore, Philadelphia and way stations.

It comes to my knowledge just as we are gallumphing away to press that in conjunction with the presentation of Tiffany Thayer's "13 Women," at RKO-Keith's next week, Manager Hardie Meakin has arranged for a licensed clairvoyant to tell the fortunes of feminine patrons who may be inspired to some curiosity as to their destinies by the revelations of the picture.

Between the hours of 12 and 1, 4 and 5:15 and 8 and 9:30 daily throughout the engagement, Mrs. Agnes Hafferman, who has gained wide renown in her profession during the decade or so she has served the Washington public, will be ensconced in suitably atmospheric surroundings in the spacious lounge of the theater, where she may be consulted free of charge.

This is a touch quite in keeping with the story of the soothsayer, who brought about strange developments in the lives of all but one of thirteen women with whom, as an enraged sorority sister, she sought to even an old score.

"13 Women," by the way, will afford the first glimpse of Irene Dunne since her notable triumph in the role of Ray Schmidt in the picturization of Fannie Hurst's "Back Street," which served as the medium through which the Rialto Theater came back to the land of the living a few weeks ago.

In these times I don't know whether a fortune teller could do much good or not. What most of us would require would be a misfortune teller!

Stone Terrace Honors Mrs. Sallie F. Perry

A memorial stone terrace, in memory of the late Mrs. Sallie Fontaine Perry, who was a member of the Montgomery County Board of Education and an active member of the club, was unveiled yesterday at the clubhouse of the Women's Club of Bethesda, Md., old Georgetown and Sonoma roads. The terrace was cut from the Stoneyhurst quarries owned by Mrs. Lillie C. Stone, a member of the club. It was unveiled by a niece of Mrs. Perry's, Miss Louise Massie.

The presentation was made by George P. Sacks, who succeeded Mrs. Perry on the school board. Mrs. Edwin M. Willis, president, accepted it. The invocation was by the Rev. Stanley White, pastor of the Bethesda Presbyterian Church.

Marylander Fractures Leg in Motor Accident

Earl W. Phelps, 38, of Bowie, Md., suffered a fracture of his left leg and serious lacerations early yesterday when his car turned over on the Baltimore boulevard near Laurel. He was brought to Garfield Hospital by W. M. Hunt, of Laurel.

Police said Phelps reported his car swerved into a ditch when he dropped off to sleep.

Guard to Probe Mine Fire.

Cookeville, Tenn., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Capt. Hubert Crawford and a detail of the Tennessee National Guard were ordered today to investigate a fire late last night at a mine at Davidson, where a strike has been in progress for some time. The Fentress Coal & Coke Co. posted notices yesterday that work at the Davidson mines would be resumed today with its own men and that coal would be loaded tomorrow. The fire destroyed a tipple and loading is impossible.

PLANNING MEMBERS NAMED BY COUNCIL

Alexandria Action Is Taken on Applications for Building Permits.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria City Council last night elected the following members of the city planning commission, as provided in the recent city planning ordinance: John D. Normoyle, for a term of five years; Mrs. Charles B. Moore, four years; Frederick L. Bartlett, three years; Robert E. McGahey, two years, and Harry R. Burke, one year.

Councilmen Nicholas J. Lawler and George E. Garrett, members of the old zoning commission, who had been serving on the planning commission, were placed in nomination, but both declined, stating they did not approve of holding dual positions with the city government.

A proposal to make a charge of $15 for applications for changes in the zoning ordinance, and $5 where such applications are referred to the board of zoning appeals, was referred to the standing committee.

The council denied applications of Harvey Williams for permit to construct a storm vestibule at King and Columbus streets, and an application of George K. Bender for the rezoning of a part of the 600 block South Patrick street. A request for a permit for erection of a wheelwright and blacksmith shop at 521 South Patrick street was held for further consideration, and application of R. E. Grover for the rezoning of a portion of the square bounded by Lee, Franklin, Union and Jefferson streets was set for a public hearing on November 22.

The report of the city health officer for the period October 1 to October 15 showed a total of 349 professional visits.

An application of George Cole for a building permit at 316 South Fairfax street was approved, and an application signed by 11 property owners for a sewer on the 700 and 800 blocks North Washington street was referred to the city engineer for report and estimate of cost.

At the request of Councilman Davison, the city manager was instructed to make repairs at Russell road and Mount Ida avenue not to exceed $200 in cost.

Councilman Davison also called attention to the fact that complaint has arisen on account of the fire engine house in Potomac of No. 2 company being used as a voting place. The city attorney informed the council that no change in voting places could be made within 30 days of the election, and that arrangements would have to be made to remove the fire apparatus on election day.

A communication from the Alexandria Citizens Association calling attention to duplications in names of streets was referred to the city planning commission.

TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCHES

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Lincoln A. Wagenhals, senior partner in the theatrical brokerage firm of Wagenhals & Kemper, left a net estate of, $748,572 when he died September 11, 1931, a transfer tax appraisal filed today showed. Mrs. Caroline F. Wagenhals, of Montrose, N. Y., received the residuary estate in trust. Mary L. Wagenhals, of Columbus, Ohio, a sister, received a trust fund of $50,000.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Police today were forced to restrain relatives of Mrs. Mary Convery, 48, killed by a motor car, from attacking Charles L. Myers, 35, of Cleveland, suspected of being the driver of the car. Shortly before the magistrate held Myers for a further hearing James Magee, a relative, pressed through the crowd, crawled under a rope and jumped at him. Magee was removed from the courtroom by police.

Quinton, Okla., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—They named them Roosevelt, Garner and Murray because they are "Democratic triplets." Born a week ago, the trio was named today and the father, Oscar Hood, notified Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of the party's new "bloc." "Father and mother are both full-blooded Choctaws. These boys will vote the Democratic ticket in 1953," Hood wrote.

Kansas City, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—John Starbuck had given up hunting today. He borrowed from his friend, Roy Ayres, a shotgun and a prized beagle hound. The dog scared up a rabbit. Starbuck blazed away. The rabbit was killed. So was Ayres' hound.

Kansas City, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Noble K. Keys, who asserts a bullet meant for a fleeing bank robber, struck him in the knee, today filed suit against the East Side Bank of Commerce for $30,000 damages. In his petition Keys said the shot was fired by Raymond Ramsey, assistant cashier of the bank, who was in pursuit of the holdup man. Keys was sitting in his parked car during the chase.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Arnold Rothstein, Broadway gambler, who was slain in November, 1928, left only $50 in cash, it was disclosed today when counsel for his estate was given until November 30 to file an accounting of the assets. I. Gainsburg, counsel for the administrators, said the bulk of the estate consisted of real estate.

MATERIAL FOR AID OF NEEDY RECEIVED

Mrs. Kelly Issues Appeal for Volunteer Workers in Arlington.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Two thousand yards of cotton material having been received, Mrs. Bertha Kelly, chairman of the Arlington County Chapter, American Red Cross, issued an appeal for volunteer workers last night. The material, she stated, will be used to make garments for needy children and adults in the county this winter.

The work will be carried on each Wednesday at the Ashton Heights Woman's clubhouse from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Today at noon in the Odd Fellows' Hall at Clarendon, the Arlington County Woman's Democratic Club will give a luncheon. The luncheon will be prepared and served by the ladies of the Clarendon Rebekah Lodge. Speakers will be Mrs. Ellis Meredith and Mrs. Dora B. Harris, of Washington.

The Democratic Club of Arlington County will meet tonight at the headquarters in Clarendon to plan activities for the wind-up of the campaign. Arrangements will be made to take care of work at the polls on election day.

The Young Republican League of Arlington County will meet tonight at Windsor Arms, Glebe road. Fred Flynn, Alexandria attorney and State director of the Young Republican League, will be principal speaker.

The annual fall flower show of the Barcroft Garden Club will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the Community House. The exhibits will be received today from 12:30 to 3 o'clock. Judging will start at 8 o'clock following an address by W. B. Beattie.

The Arlington County school board, at a special meeting in the courthouse last night, voted to renew two notes totaling $105,000 until December 10. Under the law these notes, as well as all other current obligations, must be repaid on or before December 25.

THIS NEW OIL BURNER

WAS BUILT TO CUT HOME HEATING COSTS

THIS SETTLES THE QUESTION OF AN OIL BURNER NOW

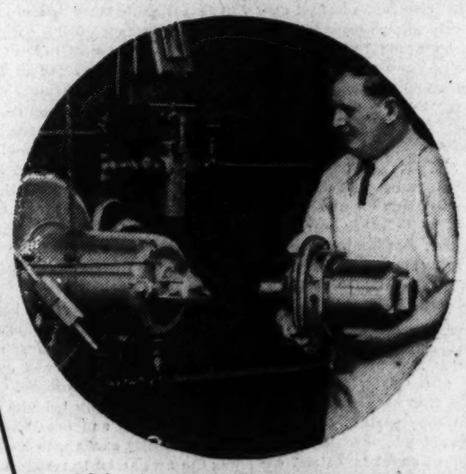
1 You get the new "home-size" burner of the giant Petros saving hundreds of thousands of dollars for large buildings.

2 The change-over to oil can be made so easily and quickly you will be enjoying automatic oil heat 2 hours after our experts put out your coal fire.

3 You get automatic hot water summer and winter at a fraction of what you are now paying.

4 Special introductory price with our National Public Service Plan.

5 Built by the world's oldest and largest oil heating organization.



Side-by-side—one of the giant Petros that are heating some of the world's largest buildings—and the new "home-size" Petro & Nokol in the engineer's hands.

A startling new advance in oil burners has been made that will change your whole conception of oil heating! When you read these facts you will realize that every day you delay now is an unnecessary sacrifice. In comfort, in cleanliness, in actual savings!

A Giant Reduced to Junior Size

This new Petro & Nokol is radically different . . . different from any oil burner you have ever seen. Most residence burners were first built to burn oil . . . not to save money. This new development is a "home-size" burner patterned after the giant Petros heating some of the world's largest buildings . . . where they have to save money.

It has the same operating principle, same precision, same high quality as those used in our largest installations. It is simply smaller and simpler . . . and priced low enough for those who must cut their heating bills.

Hot Water in Summer, Too

It burns all grades of domestic fuel oil, even the cheapest, with a soft, quiet, clean, radiant flame. It has but one moving part, assuring you of continuous, automatic heat year after year. It makes provision for all the hot water you can use . . . summer and winter at a lower cost than any other automatic system.

And it's the result of 29 years in oil heating exclusively. The result of providing automatic oil heat to more than a half million persons from coast to coast. It is the latest achievement of the originators of automatic oil heat.

Now read our National Public Service Plan offer in the coupon below. With such an offer and with this startling new burner, every day's delay is costing you money.

Henry Schefe, Belmont, Mass., also saved money the very first month.

"SIMPLEST BURNER WE EVER SAW"

says A. H. Kitching, White Plains, N. Y.

"We decided that your 'home-size' reproduction of your large industrial burners would be the most suitable job for our house, from the standpoint of economy. It is the simplest burner we have ever seen and it is proving out far beyond our expectations."

"SORRY I DIDN'T BUY LONG AGO"

says Frank G. Kobilka, St. Paul, Minn.

"Having bought one of your new oil burners about two months ago, I wish to state that I am well pleased with your burner. Mechanically it is working wonderfully, and by the looks of things I will save money over coal. My only regret is that I didn't buy one long ago.

"You may use my name in case some of your prospects want references. I will be more than glad to tell them what I think of your burner. Hoping I will always feel this way about your burner, I remain, yours truly, Frank G. Kobilka."

"SAVED MONEY ALREADY"

says Carl T. Whittemore, Newton, Mass.

"We recently installed one of your burners and are pleased to say that the first month has shown a sizable reduction in fuel cost and we are getting all the hot water we can use. We are recommending it to all of our friends."

Everything in Automatic Heat

FUEL OIL: We supply our own oil in our own trucks from our own oil terminals.

DOMESTIC OIL BURNERS: Complete line for every type and size of house-heating plant.

COMMERCIAL & INDUSTRIAL BURNERS: For every type and size of heating and power plants.

ARCO-PETRO AUTOMATIC BOILERS: Boiler and burner in one beautiful, automatic unit. Cuts heating cost 1/3 to 1/2. Also provides automatic hot water summer and winter.

AUTOMATIC HOT WATER HEATERS: Use low-cost oil fuel. Provide hot water in average home for $2.50 a month.

PROTECT AMERICAN WORKERS.

President Hoover did not criticize the Tariff Commission in his message urging expedition of proposed adjustments for the benefit of distressed American industry and workingmen. But it is certainly no compliment to that body to have the President prodding it in this critical period when the means of extending relief to industry are within its hands. Part of the duty of the commission is to initiate investigations and to see that costs of production are equalized between American and foreign producers.

Several months ago the commission issued a report, tending to show that imports from countries off the gold standard had not increased. The theory of the commission seemed to be that commodity prices rise as the value of currencies fall and that adjustments are made in this way. Events have not borne out that deduction. In most of the countries that are off the gold standard commodity prices have remained close to their previous levels, thus giving such countries as Japan remarkable advantages in the American market. It is time for the Tariff Commission to give more thorough attention to the subject of depreciated currency.

Under the law the President can not change a rate more than 50 per cent either up or down. Congress realized that that provision would not be an adequate safeguard in case of an emergency like the present. Hence, it added another paragraph giving the President authority, if the commission should so recommend, to change the basis on which duties are levied from the foreign value of the imported article to the domestic selling price of the comparable American article, when a mere change of duty would be ineffective. In some cases levying the duty on American value would make a great difference.

This means of relief seems to have been ignored by the commission, except in one or two minor cases. Why has it not been applied to the industries mentioned in President Hoover's communication? With foreign currencies sinking to lower levels, this is the only method by which many industries can be saved from annihilation by cheap foreign goods.

The American rag rug industry formerly employed about 156,000 men. At present it is crippled by competition from Japan, and employes only 2,000 men. Pauper labor in Japan makes rugs of this kind for slightly more than 3 cents each. A tariff of 75 per cent and transportation charges bring the total cost in this country to only 6 cents. Because of the higher wages paid in the United States the cost of manufacturing a comparable rug here is 29 cents, and it sells at 36 cents. To increase the duty 50 per cent on the Japanese valuation would be obviously a waste of time. But if the duty is levied upon the selling price of the domestic article, it will bring the cost of the Japanese rug up to 30 cents, and allow the American industry to compete on an even basis.

The option of levying duties on American selling prices was obviously designed to meet just such a situation as has now arisen. It should be rigorously applied by the Tariff Commission. In this critical period American industries are especially vulnerable. They should not be exposed to ruinous competition from abroad when relief, at least partial relief, can be granted through the Tariff Commission. The public as well as the President is looking to the commission for prompt and effective action.

TO HONOR THE NAVY.

Navy Day, Oct. 27, is to be celebrated this year throughout the nation with unusually elaborate ceremonies. It is "at home" day for Uncle Sam's ships, and many thousands of visitors will inspect the vessels in ports of both the Atlantic and Pacific as well as in foreign ports. Next Thursday is not merely the anniversary of the date in 1775 when the Continental Congress created the naval establishment, but is also the birthday in 1865 of that great advocate of naval preparedness, Theodore Roosevelt. Furthermore, in this year of the Washington bi-centennial, special prominence will be given to the first President's interest in the infant navy.

This will be the eleventh annual celebration of Navy Day. Visits to the ships themselves have become the special feature of the celebration. Many thousands of Americans have made their first actual inspection of a warship since the annual observance of October 27 was inaugurated. The famous old Constitution and the submarine R-3 are here at Washington.

During Thursday evening Secretary Adams and other speakers, including Representative Bloom of the Bi-Centennial Commission, will speak over nation-wide radio. The Naval Observatory will be open to visitors, and if the weather is clear those securing cards in advance, will be permitted to scan the heavens through the great telescopes. An interesting feature of the celebration will be the program intended for radio amateurs. The Secretary of the Navy will broadcast a special message to them, and will commend the amateurs sending in the best transcripts of the broadcast. Of interest only to these young enthusiasts it may be announced that the message will go out simultaneously at 8:30 P. M. on 4205, 8410 and 8770 kcs.; call letters NAA.

ROOSEVELT ON ECONOMY.

In his Atlanta address Gov. Roosevelt sought to contrast the financial condition of Georgia with that of the United States. Speaking "loud enough to be heard in Washington," he took note of the fact that Gov. Russell has been able to balance Georgia's budget in spite of hard times. It would be more pertinent if Gov. Roosevelt would compare in detail the finances of New York State, which he has administered for the last four years, with those of the United States.

Every candidate promises economy. In times like the present economy becomes a universal gospel that no one seeking Federal, State or local office dares to disavow. It is advisable, therefore, to discount much of what is said on both sides and look at the records of the candidates, if they have any. President Hoover has no alternative to standing on his record. Gov. Roosevelt has said almost nothing about the finances of New York under his administration, preferring to emphasize the Democratic promise of economy in the national platform. Likewise, he is silent on the extravagant measures passed by the Democratic House of Representatives last spring.

Most officials seeking re-election this year have to combat a certain amount of discontent because of the present economic conditions. Public indignation seems to be unloosed upon all "ins" regardless of politics, thus giving the "outs" a considerable advantage. Gov. Roosevelt is apparently trying to avoid any disadvantages he may have acquired as governor by concentrating attention on "the new deal" rather than upon his record as a State executive.

Gov. Roosevelt recommended higher taxes for New York last March, four months after President Hoover had informed Congress that new Federal taxes would be necessary. It is estimated that New York's deficit this year will amount to $100,000,000. For New York State that spread between revenue and expenditures is far more serious than is the prospective deficit in the Federal Treasury.

Expenditures by New York steadily increased under both Gov. Smith and Gov. Roosevelt. From 1920 to 1931 expenditures increased 130 per cent at Albany, while Federal expenditures were declining. Gov. Roosevelt has increased expenditures at the rate of about $29,000,000 per year, bringing the budget to $328,000,000 in 1931. New York's bonded indebtedness was augmented 93 per cent.

Gov. Roosevelt had complete authority to prevent this rise of expenditures, for under the New York constitution the legislature can not increase any item in the executive budget. Last year the legislature cut $21,000,000 from the governor's budget over his protest. Should Gov. Roosevelt be elected President, he would find that Congress habitually adds extravagant items to the executive budget, and his opportunity to economize would not be as great as it was during his governorship.

On several occasions Gov. Roosevelt has declared that it is the duty of the President "to exercise his influence, even where he has no legal authority, to bring about economy in local government." In other words, he seems to reproach Mr. Hoover because the President didn't bring pressure upon the governor of New York to reduce State expenditures and balance the State's budget.

HOME INDUSTRIES.

President Green, of the American Federation of Labor, spoke with enthusiasm of the balanced industrial development of Washington in his remarks Monday evening at the opening of the eighth annual industrial exposition of the Chamber of Commerce. "Here in Washington," said Mr. Green, "the principle of balanced industrial development appears to be working out on almost ideal lines. Local industries supply a substantial given portion of the food products, building supplies and other goods locally used and consumed."

Under modern conditions, busy industries thrive alongside expanding programs of city betterments and beautification. The growth of industries which help to supply the home needs of Washington would delight the practical mind of the founder of the Federal City if he could be here to witness its solid expansion. The great capitals of the Old World are busy industrial cities as a rule, and productive activity helps to support projects designed to enhance the beauty of those cities. The increasing population of Washington and its suburbs must be fed, clothed, sheltered, and provided with all conveniences. Economy calls for home industry in supplying all these needs. Washington's enterprising business houses are expanding and amplifying their resources, furnishing employment to thousands and providing a better and broader market every day for their products.

APPRAISING A MAN.

What is the value of an individual? Not the worth of his corporeal body resolved into its component elements—that was figured out recently and shown to be almost negligible—but the economic value of a man to his dependents? The life insurance companies, which make it a business to know everything there is to know about good and bad influences upon human life, have prepared tables on this subject. And actuary figures have a way of being inexorably correct, because they are based upon mass and average. No individual can pick out life expectancy for his age and know just when his call is coming, but when 100,000 individuals of that age are massed the tables will show accurately what percentage of them will die each year. There is no gamble in the life insurance business.

So it is with human valuations. By considering large numbers the average earning power during a lifetime can be determined. The Metropolitan Life experts have prepared an interesting study along this line, taking into consideration the two major factors involved in estimating the economic value of an individual—his net earnings at successive ages, and the proportion of persons who survive at each stage. These men who juggle with life and death in the abstract have made up a set of tables that make it possible to tell at a glance what your cash value to your dependents should be in case you carelessly cross the street. The figures may not agree with your personal estimate of your worth to your family and society, but in such cases the dull and uninteresting average rules.

According to the tables, which appear to have established a deadly accuracy, if at 30 years you have reached a maximum earning power of $1,000 a year you are worth, on the basis of future earnings, $10,500. The catch is that there is no way to collect and remain to enjoy it. This estimated value is reduced with advancing age, until at 60 a $1,000 a year man is worth only $2,450. Jumping up to the man who can earn $5,000 at 30, he is rated at that age as worth $48,450; at 50, $30,200, and at 60, $10,250. The $10,000 man starts at $86,500 and declines to $20,000.

Based on these figures an interesting fact is figured out from the improving health and decreasing death rate in the United States. Statistics have not been compiled for the entire country, but in New York City during the last twenty years the death rate at ages under 35 has decreased to an extent that is equivalent to the saving of about 24,000 lives a year. Estimating the value of these lives according to earning power, the saving in ultimate money capital amounts to over $200,000,000. Since the various expenditures by the city for health promotion agencies of all kinds does not total more than $15,000,000, they appear to be a most profitable investment.

AN EARLY AIR DREAMER

From the Providence Journal.

A startling reminder of the antiquity of the idea of aviation is furnished by the Italian government's issue of a new 100-lire air mail stamp bearing the portrait of Leonardo da Vinci because of his profound interest in the subject and the studies made by him of the problems of human flight.

We commonly think of aviation as an ultra-modern thing because in practical adaptation it is wholly of the present century. Mastery of the air dates back to the Wright brothers; prior experimentation we associate with Prof. Langley, and even in the matter of pure legend our minds run no further than the imaginative fantasy of Darius Green and his flying machine. There were balloons of the soaring sort, but little or no attempt at the levitation and aerial propulsion of devices heavier than air. Or so we have assumed. But now we have this reminder that the great Italian master of art was concerned with the idea of human flight and busied himself with the problem more than 400 years ago.

In all probability there has never been another human being who approached Leonardo in versatility of achievement. The world today thinks of him mainly as one of the greatest painters of all time, but his genius was also manifested in a high degree in music, architecture, mechanics, philosophy and science, and he won distinction as an engineer and builder and in sculpture and invention. With all his superb mental endowment he had great physical beauty and a rare charm of personality. Of all favored sons of men he was certainly the one to be entitled in history as Prince Fortunatus.

The early trend of the boy was toward music, drawing and modeling. In his teens he was painting conspicuously well and before he was 20 he was enrolled in the painters' guild at Florence. His profound intellectual curiosity led him into scientific study, research and experiment, applied at first, naturally enough, to his painting. He was the first artist to recognize the value of light and shade, qualities hitherto generally ignored by painters, for the earlier schools by common consent had subordinated light and shade to color and outline.

Later his restless spirit of inquiry carried him into study and experiment in various branches of theoretical and applied science. He learned much about the laws of mechanical forces, and his architectural and engineering projects startled his own generation.

His industry was prodigious, and yet he was not a hurried worker. It is said that he worked intermittently during four successive years in completing the portrait of Mona Lisa. The philosophy underlying his constant industry was summed up in his own aphorism, "As a day well spent gives joyful sleep, so does a life well spent give joyful death." To the ordinary mind it is almost incredible that an artist of his phenomenal quality could have had the type of mind capable of concerning itself intensively with a dream that was not to be successfully realized until 400 years later. But he was the outstanding human phenomenon of the ages and the scientific side of his mind was quite as strong as the artistic. He is credited with being the first in science to set up for himself various problems which innumerable seekers in later generations have labored painfully to solve.

It is likely that the problems of human flight would have been solved 400 years ago if Leonardo could have discovered the indispensable missing factor of mechanical propulsion. Experts have said that if the principles of the internal combustion engine had been known in his day he would have perfected his mechanics of aviation. He had the prevision of what so long after his time has become a world commonplace. The Italian government has done well to recognize this remarkable pioneer by placing his portrait on an air mail stamp.

POST HASTE

Analysis of the Newark speech indicates a content 99½ per cent vindication of Al Smith's wetness and ½ per cent for Frank.

The Happy Warrior in his first campaign speech certainly put up a stiff fight against the speeches made by Mabel Willebrandt in 1928.

It is a good thing Gov. Roosevelt was engaged in making a speech himself during Al Smith's Newark address. He might have had heart failure waiting for that promised support. If the last three words had been dropped from Al's talk Roosevelt and Garner would not have been mentioned.

The best answer to demands for lower tariffs is the necessity of raising rates on foreign goods that are underselling American products in spite of the tariff.

Gov. Ritchie's Satidypost article answering Mr. Coolidge is evidence that Al Smith hasn't lost his judgment on when to sidestep.

Gov. Roosevelt announced at Atlanta: "I am going to insist that we get more service for the farmers for less money." It is now clear, specific and unmistakable that the governor will insist.

With the muffler removed from Huey Long in the wilds of South Dakota, Speaker Garner may also be shipped West to avoid spontaneous explosion.

Howard Claney can tell those who are going to kill the deficit with a beer tax that human nature brought up on raw liquor is seldom mild.

Democratic explanation of how it is that American international trade, which has been entirely ruined by Messrs. Smoot and Hawley, still remains the largest in the world, is being reserved for the last week of the campaign.

If he should get the job, leaving aside other minor chores, Gov. Roosevelt can keep busy under his promise of public works "to provide employment for all surplus labor at all times."

It seems the nearest Gene Tunney will come to voting this year will be to register a complaint that Connecticut wouldn't give him a special dispensation on registration.

"Politics tense in New England." Cheer up; it will all be past tense in thirteen days. PAUL HUDSON.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

Reporting a Conversation.

There were two pale and weary men who sat them down to dine.
Through months and months of bitter loss they'd oft been heard to whine,
But strangely as they chatted there
I'll swear I heard one say:
"The times are hard, but still I'm glad that I'm on earth today.

"I started as a boy to work and when
I'd gained the top
I hoped in just a year or two forever
I could stop;
But all my dreams of idleness and luxury, need I tell,
Were shattered in those frightful weeks when market values fell.

"Now beaten back to humbleness and stripped of pomp and pride,
Again I'm at the daily tasks, where strength and wit are tried.
I'm on the job from dawn to dusk, brain-fagged and muscle-sore,
And yet it's good to have to work and fight for gains once more."

National Policy Doesn't Seem So Unimportant When it Pinches Your Purse

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE average man cares little whether the Philippines are liberated or kept as a dominion. He cares little because he doesn't realize that the fate of the islands will affect his job and his pocketbook.

Our complex way of life has made us a single economic family. We must prosper together if at all. No matter how we earn our living—as mechanics, merchants or professional men—we earn less when our fellow Americans have less to spend and more when they have more.

Anything that provides jobs for millions of our people will fatten your purse, and anything that deprives millions of their jobs will eventually flatten it.

Machinery, as you know, has enabled America to produce more than our own people can buy. Year after year we produce more with less man-power. And we have reached the point where we must find foreign markets for our surplus or curtail production and stop our development.

Finding markets isn't easy, for other industrial nations can also produce a surplus and all of them are struggling to win the markets we need.

Where is the best market to be found? Which land offers to buy an ever-increasing quantity of our goods?

China. The Orient. The teeming millions of the ancient races, tardily and hungrily demanding a share of the modern world's luxuries and conveniences.

China alone, which has more millionaires than America, could keep every American factory running night and day if each of her families demanded the trinkets of modern civilization.

China now buys more from us than from any other land. Her purchases have trebled in the last few years and promise almost unlimited increase. And every increase means more jobs for Americans and more money for all of us to divide.

But the competition is keen. Other nations would push us out of that market if they could. They will go as far as they dare. By trickery or force they will keep American goods out if we show any sign of weakness.

The Philippines give us a naval base near our market. So long as we have that base, the world is warned to give us a square deal. A cop is on hand to keep rowdies from interfering while we look for customers. That is what it means.

If we give up the islands to escape the duty-free competition of their sugar and vegetable oils, we also give up our future trade in China. You can't sell goods where a competitor controls the police force.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Wish We Could Worry.

Kansas City Times.

We usually go along with the able Secretary of the Treasury on all matters financial. But Mr. Mills does seem rather unduly apprehensive when he says that Gov. Roosevelt was dodging on the bonus in implying that he might pay something on it if there were a surplus in the Treasury. We fear there is no immediate cause to worry over what might happen if we had a surplus in the National Treasury.

Borah's Ferry.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Kentucky has a Borah's Ferry," remarks the Elizabethtown News. "Maybe it is named for the senator who goes from side to side."

Many a true word is spoken in jest. Almost at the head of the projecting tongue of land formed by a horseshoe bend of the Green River, fashioning a protuberance on the northern outline of Butler County, sits Borah's Ferry, the crossing of the river on the road between Morgantown and Beaver Dam, 9 miles north of the one and 8 miles south of the other. It was, indeed, named for the Borah family, the grandfather of the present senator from Idaho, William Edgar Borah.

Roosevelt and the Bonus.

Christian Science Monitor.

Some things seem hard to say. But politics, no less imperatively than conviction, sometimes demands their utterance. Appraisal of Gov. Roosevelt's short declaration on the bonus question at Pittsburgh last evening must be made in this perspective.

That pressure for such a statement was being applied has been evident for some time. And Mr. Roosevelt's reluctance to discuss the bonus seems the more unexplainable in that—with President Hoover's opposition to veterans' recent demands already established — the Democratic candidate might thus have parried earlier some of the charges of ambiguity which have been directed against his campaign.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Woman Voter Tells Why She Supports Hoover—Afraid of Pitfalls and Experiments.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For three years my husband has earned no money; our small stock of savings has long since been depleted, we are head over heels in debt—yet I shall cast my vote for Herbert Hoover on election day.

This is why I shall vote for him again. He has pulled us through the worst of the depression. He has set our feet on the road to recovery, and I, for one, do not propose to follow the beckonings of Roosevelt down any road, however alluring. Who knows what pitfalls, what obstacles, may lurk in the experimental, not to say dangerous, theories of the Democratic candidate for President?

For after all is said and done, he will go into the White House, if elected, with only theories to help him in the trying days to come. Hoover, on the other hand, has knowledge and experience gained through the bitterest kind of lessons.

We still have America with her farms, her forests, her industries, her homes, her many resources; we still have our own home market; we still have the ingenuity, the industry, yes, and the patience of our people; we still can work out a scheme for the general prosperity of America through the mutual cooperation and helpfulness of neighbor to neighbor the broad land over. We still have our political heritages, republican in principle. We know and believe that the relations of big business and little business are reciprocal—that one can not thrive without the other.

We still have a strong man in the White House, a wise experienced man, not only in national, but in international affairs. Under Hoover, let us save America for Americans, then turn our attention to the outside world. At least if we put our own house in order it will be one bright spot in the dark picture of world conditions.

Dare we risk innovation and disintegration under Roosevelt in times like these? And remember that the greatest of all of our Presidents warned us that "it is always bad policy to swap horses in the middle of the stream." WOMAN VOTER.

Country Piles Its Sins on Hoover and Makes Him Azazel, the Scapegoat.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the book that records earliest history we read of an annual custom of the ancient people. Taking an azazel, of the goat species, and symbolically piling on his unsuspecting head all the iniquities of the congregation, they would drive him out into the wilderness. Then they rejoicingly returned to their tents, relieved and self-vindicated. And the goat? Legend is silent as to how he fared staggering under that unsolicited load of frailties. He was the scapegoat, the vicarious sacrifice.

All of our communal sins during the late five-year speculative frenzy, the losses in real estate booms of Florida and California, farm lands of Iowa, shore-front lots of Long Island, the big and prolonged bull market in the "straight and narrow street" of lower Manhattan, the national spree of multi-factory overproduction at peak prices—all these iniquities we most righteously and with ill-concealed glee hasten to pile on the devoted head of our hard-working public servant, President Hoover. A quaint quadrennial custom!

On sober second thought the American people, given time, always decide right. No, our President Hoover will not be the azazel. His hour of reward nears. JULIUS HYMAN.

New York City.

Maj. Brown's Knowledge of Washington Will Help Him as Chief of Police.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The swearing in of Ernest W. Brown as superintendent of police is an event which should please all regular Washingtonians. As a seasoned policeman with a fine record, he is well fitted to tackle the difficult and too often thankless job of law enforcement. The fact that he was chosen from an outstanding group of local police officials is gratifying. The Washington public will indorse what The Post says in its editorial on Superintendent Brown's appointment: "No chief lacking local knowledge and experience could be expected to cope successfully with the problems arising in the National Capital."

The late police superintendent fell down in failing to fully comprehend the relationship of this city to the national Government. He had his good qualities as an executive. Human sympathy is necessary in a police official. But in the face of open lawlessness he should be absolutely firm. Gen. Glassford, in dealing with mutinous bonus "petitioners," let his natural goodfellowship override his sense of duty, and he no longer had control of the situation. W. T. T.

"Around the Town" Reminds Old Reader of Days of Swampoodle and Foggy Bottom.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to put in a good word for The Post's "Around the Town" column. I like its terse and genial items in regard to men and things. That one about Corporation Counsel Bride and the Irish policeman in last Sunday's Post gave me a good laugh.

I have been a Post fan since its first number was published by Stilson Hutchins. In those premergenthaler days good stuff was seldom spoiled in a dilution of too many words, and "Around the Town" somehow recalls the local atmosphere developed by the Hutchins young men in the days when Swampoodle and Foggy Bottom were outstanding sources of news. SEVILLE POLICE JAIL LINDBERGH SUSPECT

Los Angeles Man Is Held in Spain After Telling of Kidnaping.

Seville, Spain, Oct. 25 (U.P.).—John Saul, of Los Angeles, was arrested here today and a short time later it was reported he had been taken in custody as a suspect in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

Saul, who was without a passport, was understood to have been a former employe of a Los Angeles clothier.

Prior to his arrest, the United Press was told, two sailors went to the American Consul in Seville and told him that a man who was connected with the Lindbergh case was in Seville at the present time.

It was reported that Saul told local police he left New York on a false passport, and disembarked at Bordeaux before coming to Spain.

He admitted, it is alleged, being fully acquainted with the Lindbergh case, but refused to disclose any knowledge he had to police or any American representative, saying he was willing to make a statement to American judges.

Police said Saul, understood to be of Russian origin, may be mentally deficient though he has the outward appearance of normality.

Police Commissioner Ramos told the United Press he does not believe Saul's story. While it is true the man seems to have full acquaintance with the Lindbergh case, Ramos said, he probably is simply trying to get free passage back to the United States.

The Counselor of the United States Embassy in Mexico and Mrs. Arthur Bliss Lane, who have been in Washington for several days, left last night to return to Mexico City. Mr. Lane has been in New York for several months and Mrs. Lane joined him there a short time ago.

Netherlands Charge Transferred to Vienna.

The Charge d'Affaires of the Netherlands Legation, Mr. L. G. van Hoorn, has received word of his transfer from Washington. Mr. van Hoorn will leave on November 30 for Vienna, where he will assume his new duties as charge d'Affaires, chief of mission, of the Netherlands Legations in Vienna and Budapest, with residence in the Austrian capital.

Mr. van Hoorn, who has been counselor of the Netherlands Legation here for the last five years, is one of the popular members of the diplomatic corps, and his departure will be much regretted.

The Minister of the Netherlands, Mr. J. H. van Royen, who, with Mme. van Royen, is enjoying a holiday at his home in The Hague, will return to Washington next month, possibly before Mr. van Hoorn leaves.

The Charge d'Affaires of Persia and Mme. Azodi entertained at a small tea yesterday afternoon for Mme. Entezam; the former Miss Margaret Hume of Washington, who has been visiting in Washington for several months. Mme. Entezam will sail with her small daughter on November 8 to rejoin Mr. Entezam in Warsaw, where he is attached to the Persian Legation.

The First Secretary of the Chinese Legation, Mr. Anching Kung, and the members of the legation staff, entertained at a small tea yesterday afternoon in honor of the special envoy from China, Dr. H. H. Kung, and Mme. Kung. Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Mrs Y. R. Chao, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mrs. W. W. Husband, Miss Sophia Han and Miss D. A. June Lu.

Col. George B. McClellan will preside at the luncheon to be given by the English-Speaking Union of Washington in honor of the Right Rev. Lord William Gascoyne Cecil, Bishop of Exeter, and Lady Florence Cecil on Monday, October 31.

Debutante Tea Canceled For Miss Josephine Wright.

The debutante tea which Mrs. Austin Kautz was to have given next month, when she had planned to present Miss Josephine Wright, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Wright, to Washington society, has been canceled because of the recent death of Miss Wright's father, Capt. Arthur Wright, U. S. N. Capt. and Mrs. Wright were former Washington residents.

Col. A. T. Smith, assistant chief of staff for military intelligence, entertained at a small luncheon yesterday in honor of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff, U. S. A., and diplomatic representatives of European countries whose maneuvers he witnessed last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. George Aubrey Hastings have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Kennth D. Widdemer, of New York. Mr. Widdemer will speak at the convention of the American Public Health Association.

Mrs. Heath C. Moorman, who, with Mr. Moorman, makes her home at Wardman Park Hotel, has gone to New York City for a short stay.

Mrs. T. W. Symons has gone to visit her son, Mr. Noel Symons, in Buffalo, N. Y. Mrs. Symons will return to her apartment at the Carlton shortly after casting her ballot in the November election.

Miss Tennant Married In Oatlands (Va.) Church.

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of Virginia and Washington society took place yesterday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock in the Church of Our Saviour, Oatlands, Va., when Miss Anne Buffington Tennant, daughter of Mrs. David Buffington Tennant, Redgate, Oatlands, Va., became the bride of Mr. Southgate Lemmon Morison son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Holmes Morison, of New York City and Welbourne, Middleburg, Va. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D Campbell Mayers, rector of the church.

Autumn leaves, shading from yellow to deep bronze; white chrysanthemums and honesty made an unusually effective decoration for the church.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. J. Breckenridge Bayne. Her wedding gown was fashioned of white bridal satin, and designed along plain lines. The bodice was made with a square neckline, and long fitted sleeves, and the skirt fell in a graceful train in the back. The veil of tulle was held by a lace cap, and she carried a family ivory prayer book, with which her mother and grandmother had been married, and from which hung a shower of lilies of the valley.

Miss Alice Tennant, of Richmond, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a dark red velvet gown, with a hat to match and carried orange and dark red chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Frances Morison, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Virginia Harris, of Aldie, Va. They wore costumes of orange velvet with dark red velvet hats and carried arm bouquets of dark red and orange chrysanthemums.

The best man was Mr. Nathaniel Holmes Morison, jr., brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers were Mr. Tennant Bryan, Richmond, Va.; Mr. David Randall, New York; Mr. Jack Bowman, Warrenton; Mr. Carter Moore, New York; Mr. Robert Stinson, Baltimore, Md.; Mr. Robert Stauft, Uniontown, Pa., and Mr. William Davidson, Plainfield, N. J.

The wedding was followed by a reception at Oakham, the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Henry Fairfax. Mrs. Tennant, mother of the bride, wore a costume of black crinkly crepe, trimmed in white fur, with a velvet hat. Mrs. Morison, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in dark blue crepe de chine with hat to match.

Mr. Morison and his bride left early in the afternoon for a wedding trip to Bermuda, the latter wearing a brown coat trimmed in sable, brown hat and accessories to match. They will be at home after December 1 at 12 East Mt. Vernon street, Baltimore, Md.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. J. W. Bayne, Mrs. G. W. S. Castle, Mrs. Bayne Proctor, Mr. and Mrs Lyell Buffington, and Mrs. Breckenridge, Lexington, Ky.; Mr. Stuart Bryan, Richmond; Mrs. Gardener, New York; Dr. and Mrs. G. Howard White and Mrs. Morison Henry, of Baltimore.

Mrs. du Putron Gliddon, of Wardman Park Hotel, who has recently returned to Washington from abroad, where she spent the summer, has gone to Boston for a week's visit with friends.

Col. and Mrs. Frederick W. Manley will entertain at a debutante luncheon on December 1 at the Mayflower for their debutante daughter, Miss Helen Pendleton Manley. Miss Manley is at present in Baltimore, where she is visiting for a few days.

Mrs. John F. Finerty, of the Dower House, McLean, Va., has joined Mr. Finerty at the Carlton, where they will remain for a few days.

Mrs. Hugo Rennert has rejoined Mr. Rennert in their apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue after spending last week in New York.

Miss Dorothea Lane joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Lane, in their apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street yesterday, after spending the week-end in Cape May, N. J., with Miss Emily Cookman, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Edward S. Perot, sr., has engaged an apartment at Wardman Park Hotel and is now established there for the winter season.

Maj. and Mrs. Thomas E. Thrasher have had as their guest at Wardman Park for a few days, Mrs. A. S. Abell, of Baltimore.

Judge and Mrs. Doub will entertain at dinner this evening at their home in Cumberland in honor of Mr. William Bowie Clark, of Washington, and Mr. John Baldwin Cochran, who will stop over in Cumberland en route to Hot Springs, Va.

Miss Marie Charles Noone, who recently returned to Bridgeport, Conn., from Tampa, Fla., where she attended the wedding of her cousin, Miss Margaret L. Holbrooke, to Dr. Gerald F. Bradford, will have as her guests Miss Jean C. Brewood, Miss Ruth M. Edmonds, of Washington, and Miss Catherine F. Degnan, of Pasadena, Calif., for a visit of two weeks.

Miss Josephine A. Marlow will give a trophy hunt in compliment to Miss Noone and her guests, Saturday.

Mrs. Ralph Eckels, aunt of Miss Noone, will entertain at a ball masque for her niece and her house guests, to which a large company have been invited on Monday.

Mrs. Tompkins Entertains For Mrs. Roy V. Wright.

Mrs. Charles H. Tompkins entertained at luncheon at her home, Battery Terrill, yesterday for Mrs. Roy V. Wright, national chairman of the association of engineers' wives which is banded together in thirty-two States in the Union for President Hoover's election.

Mrs. Wright is making a brief visit to Washington is connection with the details incident to the motor corps auxiliary groups which have just been set in motion all over the United States by the existing groups of engineers' wives.

A COACH INSTRUCTS THOSE FOOTBALL STARS WHO ARE ACTING AS CAMPAIGN ORATORS.

"NOW lissen, men! . . . This is not going to be any pink tea and I want you all on your toes . . . This is a tough campaign and nobody in it is a set-up. Get me?

• • • •

"I've shown you all I can about taking out an opposition gasbag, blocking an opposing spellbinder and shaking off those heckling guys . . . I've told you all I know about getting the issues straight, remembering the paramount problems confronting the American people, and hitting the line with all adjectives you've got . . . The rest is up to you!

• • • •

"But it ain't enough for me just to tell you all the issues and candidates in this fight . . . You've gotta keep track of 'em yourselves, and not get all mixed up . . . And I want teamwork all the time . . . None of that star stuff where a speaker takes it into his head to grab the old tariff question and go tearing down the platform all for himself! . . . Understand?

• • • •

"All you've gotta do is keep your heads up every minute and not be caught napping . . . I want clear enunciation all the time . . . Clear enunciation . . . Get me? . . . I want every word to come out clear and loud and sharp . . . No slurring of consonants . . . Slurring of consonants cost us a primary last month, . . . and one more thing, men, I wancha to cut the long four and five syllable words. They're no good for scoring purposes . . . The're old stuff. . . . Just use simple, clean-cut words like I've been giving you all season out there on the practice field . . . Plenty of words, but all sharp ones. . . . Understand?

• • • •

"We lost a rally in Willimantic last week just because one of the boys violated all the training instructions and reversed his field with a lot of language nobody could understand . . . What happened? . . . He fumbled and couldn't recover!

• • • •

"And don't forget what I've told you every day about speed and rhythm! . . . I want every sentence put over with a bang . . . Make every point fast and snappy . . . And remember about timing! . . . It's perfect timing that knocks those audiences on their ears . . . You gotta spring every metaphor at just the right time to score! . . . And while I'm speaking of metaphors, I wanna remind you of the new rule which says that no metaphor can be used twice in the same sentence.

• • • •

"That's about all men. . . . Now, go in there, keep on your toes and give 'em everything in the old dictionary! . . . Remember you're doing it for the old man. . . . Okay!"

BOOTING THE METAPHORS.

THEY say that one of those football stars put on the stump in the presidential campaign made so many grammatical errors in one speech that he was yanked out and two substitutes sent in for him.

There is one thing certain about both candidates for the Presidency this year; neither will be nicknamed "Silent."

INFALLIBLE SIGN.

Business will have turned the corner when the man who used to pass the cigars now takes one out of his desk without first looking around to make sure nobody is present.

PREPAREDNESS.

We know a worker who has had so many pay cuts that he has asked the boss to put a bottle of iodine and some antiseptic bandages in every pay envelope.

Georgetown U. Hospital To Hold Speech Clinic

A speech clinic, to be conducted by Georgtetown University Hospital, will open tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, under the direction of Miss Jennie Hedrick. Persons suffering from speech defects, who are unable to pay for treatment, will be welcome. It will continue every Thursday.

Parents of children of preschool age are urged to take advantage of the opportunity and correct any defects before the child enters school.

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

TUNE in on "The Postilion" at 10 o'clock tonight over Station WMAL and hear the first flashes of tomorrow morning's news.

Jack Denny and his orchestra and Evan Evans, barytone, will share honors in a new series of programs (WRC, 8:45 p. m.).

SENATOR BRONSON CUTTING, of New Mexico, speaking under the auspices of the Democratic National Committee, will be heard over WRC at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

Veterans' relief will be discussed by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, during the National Radio Forum (WRC, 9:30 o'clock) tonight. The forum, usually held on Monday nights, has been changed for the one week.

Supreme Chancellor James Dunn, jr., national head of the Knights of Pythias, will speak on WMAL at 9:30 o'clock tonight from the annual banquet of the organization at the Willard Hotel. Other speakers on the program will be Supreme Chief Mary Terwilliger and United States Marshal Edgar Snyder.

A GROUP of new songs will be featured by Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit (WRC, 8 p. m.) • • • Ernest Hutcheson, concert pianist and composer, will be interviewed by Bob Taplinger (WJSV, 5 p. m.) • • • Tommy McLaughlin, barytone, will do four solos during the Threads of Happiness period (WJSV, 9:15 p. m.) • • • Patti Pickens, youngest of the Pickens Sisters trio, has just received from a fan a school of varicolored goldfish in a bowl which has reflecting sides. When one looks into the bowl from certain angles it seems to be an endless tank filled with millions of fish.

DICK TRACY—Third Degree

OH-SO YOU FINALLY GOT HERE, EH KID? LISTEN, I WANT TO TALK TO YOU! WHAT DID YOU OPEN THAT PACKAGE FOR THAT YOU WERE SUPPOSED TO BE DELIVERING LAST SATURDAY? HUH?
WHAT?
YOU OPENED THAT LOAF OF BREAD AND TOOK SOMETHING OUT OF IT, DIDN'T YOU? EH? ANSWER ME, BRAT!
WHAT PACKAGE DID YOU MEAN?
DON'T GIVE ME THAT DUMB STUFF! UNDERSTAND? TALK!
SMACK
AND WHERE DID YOU PUT THOSE BOTTLES YOU TOOK OUT OF THAT CABINET IN THE BACK ROOM? HUH?
I DIDN'T TAKE NO BOTTLES-HONEST I DIDN'T! OUCH! MY ARM.
IT LOOKS BAD FOR THE KID—VERY, VERY BAD.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

FACE WORRY DOWN.

WASH YOUNG has a way out of the depression. It is directed toward the individual rather than society, but then society is nothing but a mass of individuals. It is a philosophy rather than a plan. Reduced to its simplest, it is that if a person controls his fears he will be happier and will do better work for himself and all concerned. If every one is doing better work for everybody, and those interested in everybody, the laws of economics can run on a better basis than they can when men are in another frame of mind.

He makes two suggestions about worry. Both apply to prevention in greater measure, though each has some virtue as a cure. The first is the advice that every man who must worry should worry in the open. Worry is a form of mild, chronic fear.

The virtues of courage have been so dinned into our ears during the thousands of years since we left the security of the Garden of Eden that we are ashamed to admit that we have fear of any kind. Out of this shame have grown some virtues and some vices. Our shame about the fear we call worry makes us worry in secret. Both the worry and the secrecy harm us. The average person, called on to worry in the open, if at all, and never to worry under cover, is liable to stop and consider, to analyze worry, and to discover it to be a form of fear and therefore not a thing to be proud of; to realize its wastefulness, ineffectiveness, and lack of logical background and, therefore, to quit worrying in time.

Some can learn to laugh over their worries. That is antidotal and I wonder that Mr. Young did not make it one article in his creed. While the proposal has great preventive value, it will not be of much service in the cure of those whose worry habit is developed into a definite disease.

The second suggestion he made was that we cure the worry habit, and some other bad mental habits made worse by the depression, by making use of another principle that is an emotional force. That is compulsion. In plainer language, that some one in authority order the worrier to worry every day, say from 7 to 11 in the morning. To have to worry under orders for four hours daily would be worse than eating a quail a day for a month. The job would soon become very difficult. There is none of the pleasant pain in worrying when the performance ceases to be voluntary. We turn from compulsive worrying to the pleasant live-for-this-day-only policy of "don't care" with relief and happiness. When you stand a fellow up against a worrying wall for four hours daily he is willing to take on almost any frame of mind to get away.

This part of Mr. Young's proposal not only has value as a preventive, but it will cure some rather set worriers, some pretty well hooked with the worry disease.

LIME FOR HAY FEVER.

L. M. R. writes:

1. Should hay fever sufferers increase the amount of lime taken into the system?

2. What foods are rich in lime?

3. Can lime be taken in medicinal form?

4. Would a growth in the nose bring on more severe attacks of hay fever, and would you advise removal of growth during first stages?

5. Is any progress being made toward compelling property owners to cut weeds on vacant lots?

REPLY.

1. Yes.

2. Milk, butter, cheese and nuts.

3. Among the preparations that are used are chloride lactate and gluconate. Since so little is absorbed it is advisable to give it for a long time.

4. In a small proportion of cases there are conditions in the nose that need to be operated on.

5. Not much. The laws against weeds harmful to crops are pretty well enforced. Those against weeds harmful to people are not.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO"

IF October 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 12 noon to 1:00 p. m., from 4:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., and from 10:15 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger hours are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

Influences active seem conducive to a good day for business of every kind. Nothing startling in the way of great activity need be anticipated, but it may be assumed business will continue along its regular trend. Influences seem such as to lend themselves to the making of lasting friendships for those begun on this October 26.

The child born on this October 26 will probably have a childhood unusually free from the ordinary run of children's diseases. These children will be found to be extremely honest. They will take an extreme interest in all that goes on about them and as they grow older and have set tasks and duties to perform, they will approach these with great earnestness and a sincere desire to acquit themselves creditably.

If October 26 is your birthday, you are undoubtedly an ambitious and aggressive business type fired with the desire to succeed. Success to you does not mean necessarily acquisition of great wealth; rather, you seek to excel in whatever field of activity you are embarked in. For your own peace of mind it seems necessary that you be acknowledged and looked to as a leader in your field. You would fit comfortably into a large number of positions, but probably your greatest success would come in the newspaper field or in connection with some work where your magnetic individuality and creative instinct could be brought to bear directly on your work.

Yours is a sympathetic and understanding nature. You are inclined too often to assume other people's worries and burdens later coming to wonder how that problem came to be yours. If you are a woman, you are a splendid mother and a perfect housekeeper. You are extremely neat in your dress, and your personal neatness is visible in your home which is a model of cleanliness and orderliness.

You are a keen judge of character. At times you are severely critical; you are inclined to blurt out your criticisms, but fortunately they are usually of a constructive nature and often very helpful to the person in question. Your delightful sense of humor never seems to desert you.

Successful people born on October 26:

Adelaide Phillips, actress.

James Tyson, physician and educator.

Daniel C. Heath, publisher.

Will Allen Dromgoole, author.

Ellsworth M. Statler, chain hotel owner.

George Gordon Battle, lawyer.

Episcopal Church Budget $3,460,000

National Council Approves Total $750,000 Below Convention Quota.

A tentative budget of $3,460,000 for the world-wide work of the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1933 was announced yesterday as having been approved by the national council of the church, according to the Rev. D. Wellington Curran, executive secretary.

This figure is $750,000 less than the budget for the year as set by the general convention of the communion.

All sums contributed by the church membership in excess of the budget amount will go to an account known as the "restoration account," the council announced, and will be used for the restoratoin of vital work which has been temporarily suspended.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

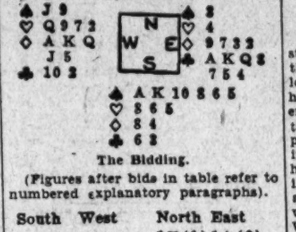
A COSTLY ERROR.

WATCHING a rubber of Bridge at a New York club the other day, I saw what was probably the most costly error that I have ever run across. However, the end of the hand in question was marked by complete silence apparently because the mistake was so horrible and so costly that it seemed to transcend the usual portmortems and squabbles which generally follow such exhibitions.

A glance at the bidding and play of the hand will immediately convince any one that the participants in this game were not experts.

North—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.



The Bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs).

South	West	North	East
		1♡(1)	1♠(2)
Pass(3)	3◇(4)	Pass	3NT(5)
Dbl.(6)	Redbl.(7)	Pass	Pass(8)
Pass

1—not an Opening bid. However, this is typical of what was to follow.

2—A very bad type of psychic. East fears a spade game and has the club suit as an out.

3—South is perfectly willing for East and West to play the hand at one spade, undoubled. He knows that if he doubles, East will probably run out.

4—This hand does not merit a Jump Takeout. Seemingly, however, West wants to end the rubber in a hurry.

5—East decides that if he bids four clubs, West will probably take him back to four spades and he will be forced to bid five. He imagines that he has stopped the spade lead and will take a chance on his partner having a heart stopper.

6—South now decides to enter things and let himself be heard from.

7—No more optimistic than the Jump Takeout bid on the previous round.

8—Decides to gamble it out, and does not bid four clubs for the same reasons that he did not do so on the previous rounds.

With this magnificent bidding, our story merely starts. South opened the spade King and North played low, East, of course, following with his singleton. South now quite properly shifted to a heart and North took the trick with the 10-spot. At this point the very brilliant man sitting in the North seat went into a long huddle. What went through his mind, if anything, I will never know. At any rate, he came out of this huddle with a club return! Result: East and West made three notrump, redoubled, with 2 overtricks, instead of going down exactly 8 tricks, or 6,000 points. And believe it or not, South did not open his mouth, while North is still alive and seemingly in good health, according to latest reports.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

YESTERDAY, our beauty lesson stressed the fact that eyes should not be neglected or abused. We did not cover the entire subject, by a far shot. An entire book could be written on the care of the eyes, but if I left with you the thought that perfect health is the first step toward sparkling eyes, and that local care is necessary to keep them bright and beautiful, I am content.

Remember that the days are getting shorter. Be sure that such artificial light as you need to work by, to read, write, sew or see under, should be of the right volume and reflected at the right angle from behind the left shoulder. Otherwise shadows will be cast on your work, which will tax the eyes.

Screen Stars Omitting Rouge.

The eyes and the lips remain the high lights of the face. Several of our screen stars are completely omitting rouge from their make-up. And some are even going without powder. Of course, that is not for women with shiny noses. But the make-up that is ebbing from cheeks seems to attach itself to eyes and lips in the form of deeper, more colorful beauty for these features. Eye shadows are offered in greater variety than ever. Platinums, golds, iridescent combinations. Fascinating, yes; but only for the most glamorous. Otherwise, they seem out of place. Personally, I think the most conservative shadows are such as blue-gray for light blue eyes, deep blue for evening for almost all types, green for hazel or brown eyes, particularly for evening wear and for auburn-haired types, brown for brown eyes for daytime wear.

If you have never used shadow before, limit it for evening wear at first. Blend it very carefully from the inner corner of the eye outward, so that the greatest amount of color is directly over the pupil, about the center of the lid. Gradually, as you become expert, use just a touch of eye shadow on the lid for daytime.

Mascara is another item that is receiving honorable position on more and more dressing tables. Get the kind that does not run, and does not break the lashes. It is well to apply a little vaseline first and then gently brush the mascara over it. Remember that a little is enough. Don't pile it on, or it will give the lashes a beaded and artificial look.

Speaking of vaseline, used every night on the lashes it will help promote their growth. In spite of the popularity of the long, artificial lashes, the natural variety of luxuriant, long lashes still receive the largest vote of admiration.

Eyebrows—we will pluck—tomorrow.

In the meantime, my eye bulletin will answer any remaining questions you may have on eye beauty. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for it.

Audubon Society Holds Hectic Ballot Session

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Shouted recriminations echoed through the ordinarily quiet halls of the Museum of Natural History today as the National Association of Audubon Societies held a stormy annual business meeting. The administration, holding proxies from approximately 4,000 members, won a sweeping victory over two minority factions which protested against the way the organization is being managed.

Leading the minority factions were Mrs. C. N. Edge, secretary of the emergency conservation committee, with 524 proxies, and John M. Holzworth, president of the National Association of Wild Life Conservationists.

Y. W. C. A. to Entertain Young People Tonight

A community party for young people will be held tonight on the fourth floor of the Y. W. C. A. Building, Seventeenth and K streets northwest. Informal dancing, bridge and pingpong will be among the features of the evening.

Miss Anna G. Paul will be the hostess of the occasion, assisted by Miss Hettie P. Anderson, Miss Mabel Charest, Miss Margaret Leahy, Miss Edith Dawson and Miss Minnie Hunt.

Red Cross Issues Call For More Seamstresses

A call for additional seamstresses to make sleeping garments for the District's unemployed was issued yesterday by the District Chapter of the Red Cross.

Those volunteering to work may sew either at their homes or at the chapter house, 1730 E street northwest.

Boys Club to Observe Halloween.

An old-fashioned Halloween party will be given by the Northeast Boys Club for its members Friday night beginning at 7 o'clock, at the club's gymnasium, 1663 Kramer street northeast. Prizes will be awarded for costumes and in apple bobbing and peanut pushing contests.

KEEP YOUR HUSBAND'S LOVE

THE pain that women suffer every month is bad enough. But the trouble it causes at home is worse. Men soon tire of irritable wives. What is a woman to do?

Generation after generation has found the answer in this Vegetable Compound. As Mrs. June says, "There is nothing better for that tired feeling we all know so well. It helped my nervousness and built me up."

TOKYO HELD RUINING U. S. MATCH SALES

Canned Fish Producers Also Hit Dumping by Japan and Norway.

(Associated Press.)

Allegations that Japanese safety match producers have flooded the American market since the Japanese industry broke away from the Swedish match trust following Iva Kreuger's death were made yesterday by representatives of the domestic industry at a Customs Bureau hearing.

Ned G. Begle, of New York, representing the entire American industry, said that after Kreuger's death the Swedish trust lost control of the Japanese industry which immediately started shipping matches to all parts of the United States. He said that the Japanese matches were offered at 50 cents a gross in this country which was cheaper than the American manufacturer could sell them.

Protest Fish Importations.

Canned fish producers testified that unless they had prompt relief from fish product importations, their business would be wrecked.

They attributed dwindling business chiefly to competition from Japan and Norway.

E. D. Clark, manager of the Association of Pacific Fisheries, Seattle, said Japanese packers were taking advantage of depreciated currency to flood this market with fish products which had been turned away from France and Great Britain by higher tariffs.

40,000 Cases Shipped.

The witness added that recently 40,000 cases of pink salmon packed in Siberia was offered for $1.80 on the Pacific Coast and $2 per case on the Atlantic Coast.

William Calvert, president of the San Juan Fishery & Packing Co., Seattle, and H. B. Friele, president of the Association of Pacific Fisheries, said importations from Japan of salmon, tuna, crab meats and fish oil had been increasing for three years, and it was impossible to compete with the low prices. The packers said Japan had sent 5,500,000 pounds of canned salmon this year as against a negligible amount a year ago.

The packers asked the customs bureau to find that the foreign countries were dumping their product into the United States and to grant them relief through an increased duty or barring some of the products for mislabeling.

Directors Select Chamber Officers

Hyde Is Renamed Secretary and Leese Keeps Post as Treasurer.

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Washington Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday to elect officers and appoint an executive committee. Thomas P. Littlepage, newly elected president of the chamber, presided.

The following officers were re-elected: Dorsey W. Hyde, jr., secretary; Mrs. Marie C. Rogers, assistant secretary; Martin A. Leese, treasurer, and Walter C. Balderston, general counsel.

Mr. Littlepage appointed the following on the executive committee: George A. G. Wood, Frank R. Jelleff, Mr. Balderston, Harry King, past president; Edward Goring Bliss, Creed W. Fulton, Malcolm G. Gibbs, Edmund S. Jewell, George E. Kenelpp, Mr. Leese and William C. Miller. Plans were made for a luncheon to Ernest W. Brown, Washington's new chief of police, to be given next Tuesday. The place will be announced.

Irene Dunne Is Hat Model In Post Cash Prize Contest

With an inherent flair for the millinery art, every woman notices the hats worn and determines in her mind's eye the type best suited for the particular wearer on various occasions.

Movie actresses wear all sorts and types of hats, in accordance with the characters they assume, but the kind of hat they should wear when not on the stage or before the cameras must bring out her personality and beauty.

To its readers The Post is offering an opportunity to design a hat best suited for Irene Dunne, the popular actress, remembered as Magnolia in "Show Boat," Sabra Cravat in "Cimarron," and more recently as Ray Schmidt in "Back Street."

This story concludes the contest.

All entries should be sent to the Irene Dunne, Editor of The Washington Post by noon Saturday. The winners will be announced in The Post Monday morning.

Miss Dunne will have the leading role in "13 Women," produced by

IRENE DUNNE.

RKO-Radio Pictures, opening Friday at RKO-Keith's Theater, and thirteen prizes will be given in the contest.

As first prize, $10 in cash will be given. For the second and third best designs submitted, $5 hats will be given by the Hecht Co., and the ten next best designs each will receive a guest ticket to the picture, "13 Women."

Here are the rules of the contest:

Draw a hat on Irene Dunne's head, in water color, crayon, pencil, ink or oils. Remove or add hair to the sketch, if you wish. Make any type of hat and adjust it to suit yourself.

Report of Changes At Howard Denied

George Crawford Named Board Vice Chairman, New Office.

Dr. Abram Flexner, chairman of the board of trustees of Howard University, yesterday issued a statement at the conclusion of the board meeting calculated to set at rest various rumors which have been current relative to changes at the institution to be acted upon at the session. He said:

"The only event of importance at the usual meeting of the trustees was the decision to revise and greatly simplify the by-laws of the institution, and the further decision to expedite the completion of the chemistry building, for which the Government has appropriated the necessary funds.

"George W. Crawford, of New Haven, Conn., was chosen vice vhairman of the board, an office newly created. No other changes in personnel were made."

Four Freed in Attempt To Embarrass Hoover

Detroit, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Four men arrested Saturday night while attempting to harangue a crowd near the Union Station at the time of President Hoover's arrival were released by Recorder's Judge Christopher E. Stein today on a writ of habeas corpus.

The men are William Reynolds, Walter Eicher, William Goetz and Harry Silverstein. Detectives told Judge Stein the police did not want to hold them longer. The men were questioned yesterday by Federal immigration officials and United States Secret Service operatives, but no charges were placed against them.

FELON CLERK'S WIFE IS BEATEN TO DEATH

Former Ohio Convict Caught With Pistol From Victim's Home.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Mrs. Daniel J. Bonzo, 44, wife of the parole and record clerk at Ohio Penitentiary, was found beaten to death in the basement of her home late today and several hours later police took into custody a former inmate of the prison.

Police gave the man's name as John Downing, of Cincinnati.

Assistant Chief of Detectives Thomas A. Scully and Detective William Murphy, who arrested the man, said they found bloodstains on his clothing and identified a pistol in his possession as one taken from the Bonzo home.

Mrs. Bonzo's body was found by her son, Daniel, jr., when he returned from school. Near the body were several broken bottles, which apparently had been shattered when Mrs. Bonzo was struck over the head.

Immediately after the slaying, guards from the prison were rushed to the Bonzo home.

Policeman Indicted for Firing.

William E. Atkinson, a policeman attached to the Third Precinct, yesterday was indicted by the District grand jury on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

The policeman is alleged to have fired several shots from his revolver at Louis P. Martell, a taxi driver.

Traces Found of Monster Octopus That Ruled Earth

(Associated Press.)

Great octopus-like monsters, which ruled the earth ages before the weird dinosaur, are the subject of a special study by the Smithsonian Institution.

To the fall of these nautiloids, or cephalopods, which reigned for several hundred million years, the institution says "man himself may owe his existence."

Dr. Augustus F. Foerste, one of the foremost living authorities on the creatures, has been engaged to explore further into the natuiloid's life.

The institution has one of the largest collections of fossil remains of the animals, which continued in an unbroken line from the Cambrian through the intervening ages to the present. Their nearest living relative is the beautiful chambered nautilus.

The creature is described as having had powerful tentacles, a horny beak like that of a parrot, and enormous eyes, well adapted to seeing underwater.

Dr. Foerste believes it possible the fall of the nautiloids may have been due to primitive sharks, which appeared in the Devonian era. While the sharks may not have been a match for the larger nautiloids, Dr. Foerste said, they may have made a successful flank attack—by devouring their eggs and young.

Fossil remains of the creatures have been found as far south in the Appalachian Mountains as Alabama, although they for the most part inhabited the more northern waters.

Judge Woodward Takes Over New Bench Post

Judge Charles W. Woodward yesterday sat for the last time in Montgomery County Police Court. After completing several cases, he moved to the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court Clayton K. Watkins and was inducted into the judgeship of the Montgomery County Circuit Court in the presence of the entire Rockville bar.

Judge Woodward was appointed by Gov. Ritchie to fill the term of Judge Robert B. Peter, resigned, until 1934, when the judgeship will be filled in the general election.

73 Indictments Found By District Grand Jury

Seventy-three indictments were returned to Chief Justice A. A. Wheat in District Supreme Court yesterday.

The charges contained in the papers ranged from nonsupport of minor children to first degree murder and robbery. The full list of those indicted is printed in The Post's legal record.

"Am I right?" or Am I right?"

"TIME was when 'Yes and No' would answer any political question," continued the Honorable I. Save-On Gas. "Why, I've seen 'Yes and No' bring down the house! But houses have been brought down too often. A lot are resting on the mortgages right now.

"So I've got a new one. It's 'Am I right or am I right?' The second 'Am I right' is put there to make it stronger—like the extra Walla in Walla Walla, Washington. For I know I'm right about my 'American' Ticket. I've got two candidates—and I'm right about both.

"Take my distinguished candidate AMOCO-GAS. Amoco is the original special motor fuel that started it all. More miles to the gallon—more motoring pleasure to the mile, are the planks in the Amoco platform. When you figure out your fuel bills, you'll say I'm right!

"And on the 'Regular' Platform there's Orange AMERICAN GAS. It's the regular gasoline that rates 12% better than U. S. Government motor gasoline specifications, PLUS high anti-knock rating. It is voted the best gasoline selling at regular gas price.

WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 26, 1932 SPORTS

TECH NEARS TITLE WITH 14-6 DEFEAT OF WESTERN

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

ROGERS HORNSBY, baseball's most famous nomad, has turned up in the camp of the St. Louis Cardinals again after six years' absence during which he made the New York Giants, Boston Braves and Chicago Cubs points of call.

And uneasy sets the managerial crown on the brow of Gabby Street. If it doesn't, it should.

It has become a baseball axiom that no manager's job is secure if Hornsby is on the same club. In proof, the stormy petrel of baseball has left a trail of deposed managers in the wake of his travels about the National League. In each case, Hornsby has succeeded to the management of the particular club he happened to be playing with.

Soon Displaced Other Managers.

The Cardinals' front office has taken pains to announce that Hornsby has been given a one-year contract as a player only and that he will subject himself to Street's authority, but Hornsby joined the Giants, Braves and Cubs under the same conditions later to become acting manager of the Giants and the actual pilot of the Braves and Cubs.

Only the fact that John McGraw was a heavy stockholder in the Giants prevented Hornsby from assuming the actual management of the New York Club during the 1927 season, when he was in active charge due to the illness of McGraw. At the end of the 1927 season, he figured in a sensational trade to the Boston Braves.

Jack Slattery was manager of the Braves in 1928—until midseason. Then Slattery stepped out and Hornsby stepped in to take charge of the club. Long before it had been rumored that Slattery was only the nominal head of the Braves with Hornsby assuming the major responsibilities and it was not with surprise that Hornsby's appointment of manager was received.

Hornsby Succeeds McCarthy.

The end of the 1928 season saw Hornsby figuring in another sensational trade, this time to the Chicago Cubs for five players and cash reported to be $200,000. Joe McCarthy was manager of the Cubs the next season and held the post during 1930 until the last week of the campaign, when the Chicago management suddenly announced that Hornsby would take over McCarthy's job.

That marked the second conquest of a managerial berth by Hornsby who each time rose from the players' ranks to supplant the manager of the club. He was earning a strange distinction as the nemesis of the club managers. No manager's job was believed to be safe with Hornsby about the premises.

Hornsby's 1931 season as manager of the Cubs was unmarked by any change. At the start of the 1932 campaign, he was still manager of the club, but August of this year was destined to bring about novel experience for the nemesis of managers. With the Cubs laboring in second place, seemingly too far behind the lead, the club's ownership determined to replace Hornsby as manager with Charley Grimm, his first baseman. There were charges, too, that Hornsby was betting on the horses. But the fact remained that Hornsby, who had risen from the ranks to replace the managers of the Braves and Cubs, saw himself in turn succeeded in 1932 by one of his subordinates.

Hornsby Popular With Card Fans.

Now, at the age of 37, he goes back to the Cardinals, where he started a sensational career in the big leagues and where the fans rose in mighty protest after his release at the end of the 1926 season, when he led the Cardinals to a pennant and world series victory over the Yankees.

The stage is set in St. Louis for Hornsby to repeat his managerial upheavals. Cardinal fans have always cherished the memories of the great second baseman who first brought pennant and world series fame to St. Louis. A few mistakes by Gabby Street, and the wolves will begin to howl for his managerial head. The man of the hour will be Hornsby. The plot begins to thicken, and who can tell?

Two other club managers who left out the welcome mat for Hornsby lived to rue their act. Brave indeed is Gabby Street in view of Hornsby's past performances.

Hornsby Back With Cards As Player

Given Year Contract to Bolster Infield and Hitting.

Former Favorite to Battle Frisch for 2d Base Berth.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—The return of Rogers Hornsby to the St. Louis Cardinal fold, after a somewhat hectic trip around the National League circuit, may solve some of Manager Gabby Street's problems in reorganizing the former world champions for next year's pennant race.

Losing the powerful batting attack of Chick Hafey, and with Sparky Adams on the injured list, Street was confronted with the problem of reorganizing the team.

Cards' Third-Base Hole Wide Open.

"Hornsby sets off the club mighty nicely for next year," Street said in discussing the announcement today of the signing of the "Rajah" by the Cardinals on a one-year contract.

The hole at third base, with Adams gone, is wide open. But Hornsby is a second baseman. President Sam Breadon predicted that if Hornsby wins the second-sack berth, Frankie Frisch, a Cardinal mainstay, will be shifted to third base, and with Jim Bottomley at first, complete the triumvirate. If Adams comes back physically fit, it will be difficult to bench him, however.

If the Rajah makes good his comeback, and his chances are increased with a sympathetic management, it will not only caulk a hole in the infield but give the Cardinals a former league batting champion who may supply the lack of the heavy-hitting Hafey.

Should Hornsby fail to make the infield, there is a chance he might be kept as a pinch hitter, despite his late mediocre showing with the bat.

Street Is Optimistic of Hornsby's Comeback.

Manager Street was optimistic today that Hornsby would stage a comeback.

"Rogers Hornsby is far from being through as a baseball player," Street said at his Joplin, Mo., home. "I think he's got a lot of good baseball left in him and that he'll be of real help to the Cardinals. I've always liked Hornsby and I know he likes me, so I don't anticipate any trouble from him. He'll be just a ball player, though, and will have absolutely nothing to say about running the club."

Ray Steele Rated Among Mat's Best

Man of Many Holds Is to Meet Daviscourt Here Tomorrow.

One of the best wrestlers of all time, Ray Steele—and that includes the list of old timers—will be crated today, hoisted on a box car and sent parcel post to Promoter Joe Turner, who tomorrow night at the Washington Auditorium turns him loose against Dick Daviscourt, a professional villain of the mat whose antics have aroused the ire of the indefatigable customers.

Daviscourt last week threw Fred Grobmeier, which is a terrible blunder for any outsider to make here, for the skinny one fares well with local audiences. Daviscourt used a new wrestling hold to turn the trick—a sock on the jaw.

Other bouts on the bill include a fine clown act, between Tigah Nelson and Alex Aberg, who is so bald that he poses for the "Before" pictures in the hair-growing ads. Others to meet are Rudy Dusek vs. Pat McKay, Milo Steinborn vs. Lou Plummer and Gino Garibaldi vs. George Vassell.

Benefit Ring Bouts At Gayety Tomorrow

Sammy Britt, slugging middleweight, who stopped the meteoric rise of Young Van, will meet Jimmy DeCapua tomorrow night at the Gayety Theater for the benefit of the Police and Firemen's Relief Association. The bout, one of four, will be held after the regular burlesque show.

Others on the card are Joe Doty vs. Sammy Ramano, Jack Quigley vs. George Perez and Roy Manley vs. either George Estes or Johnny Mays.

Wondrack, of Hawks, Fractures Two Ribs

Examination of Artie Wondrack's injuries yesterday revealed the Mohawk coach to be suffering from two cracked ribs. It is doubtful if he will be in the line-up when the Irvington A. C., of Baltimore, invades Griffith Stadium for a game Sunday.

Meanwhile three other Hawk players were recovering from the battering handed out by St. Mary's Celtics last week. Delaney, center; Deckman, half back, and Delabre, full back, are on the injured list.

The Southeast eleven worked out on the Seaman Gunners field last night and was scheduled to drill again this evening at 7 o'clock.

Irvington broke even with the Hawks in the two games played last season.

Game in Big Ten Puzzles D. C. Grid Fans

THAT Northwestern-Minnesota game Saturday has Washington's football fans puzzled. Opinion is as sharply divided on the outcome of the game, and the possible score, as it is in the coming presidential election.

Hundreds of letters received in yesterday's mail addressed to the Football Contest Editor of The Post showed that the majority of the District's fans have clear-cut opinions on the first eleven games printed below, but that dozenth one has them stumped and scattered. Answers from a 27-to-0 victory for Northwestern to a 35-to-0 win for Minnesota, including 0-to-0 ties.

Glancing at Monday morning's Post, which always prints the season's records to date of all the big college teams, we find that Northwestern tied Purdue 7-to-7 and Purdue beat Minnesota 7-to-0, which seems to give Northwestern something of an edge, but who knows?

Everybody Eligible For Contest.

It's up to you. Everybody's eligible for this contest. Merely check down the scores you believe your favorites will win by this week-end and mail them before Friday midnight to the Football Contest Editor of The Post.

This week the contest is notably worth winning, or being runner-up or even placing third. Four box seats to the big Maryland-Vanderbilt game at Griffith Stadium, November 5, are the first prize, followed by two tickets and one ticket.

17 Swim Candidates Report to G. W. Coach

Seventeen aspirants for the George Washington swimming team, including five record-holders, reported to Coach Al Lyman at the first practice swim, held recently. Although the team has a hard schedule, Lyman is looking forward to a winning season.

The title-holders are Capt. Max Rote, District 50 and 100 yard free style champ; Gale Heslop, Pennsylvania State diving champion; Dyer Ghormley, District 220-yard free-style king; James Kinsler, Nebraska State breast-stroke title-holder, and Johnny Hain, District back-stroke record-holder.

Others trying for berths on the team are John Molyneaux, Milton Flocks, Frank Backus, M. L. Burnside, Frank Vartia, Bob McMillen, Davis Agey, Walter Sompayrac, Charles Tramell, Richard Lane, Sam Samuels and Lawrence Bonner.

Coach Lyman would like to see more candidates for the team. Those interested should report Monday, Wednesday or Friday evenings at 7 o'clock at the Ambassador Hotel swimming pool, where the team practices.

Iowa Eleven To Outweigh Colonials

Line of Friday Night's Foe Will Average 198 Pounds.

Fenlon, Carlin Given Easy Workouts in Prep for Game.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE University of Iowa's football team, which meets George Washington University Friday night at Griffith Stadium in a nocturnal tussle that marks the first time a Big Ten team has ever played in Washington, is a bigger team than Alabama, which stunned the populace by its size when it played here early this month against the Colonials.

The Iowa line averages 198 pounds, and 203 from tackle to tackle. It's linemen are of the Big Ten type, a category of youth, tall, heavy-boned and angular. The ends, Bob Loufek and John Miller, are both 6 feet 3 inches tall.

A majority of the players who helped the Hawkeyes to register a 7-0 victory over George Washington last year are back in the line-up Friday night. Among those are George Tyro, 6-foot quarter back, who weighs less than 160 pounds, and who completed nine out of fourteen passes against Indiana this year, a game which Indiana won, 12-0, on a touchdown, a field goal, a safety and an extra point.

Both Teams Use Warner System.

Other Hawkeye aces are Chris Schmidt, 175-pound half back; Leo Samuelson, 215-pound tackle; Ed Dolly, 210-pound line man, and Fred Shammell, 215-pound tackle. Another player who will be in uniform Friday night is Capt. Marcus Magnuson, who began playing football for Iowa in 1927 and is now in his senior year. He was all-Big Ten center in 1929, his last year of football. He was out of the game in 1930 because of scholastic ineligibility and in 1931 with a broken leg.

Iowa is a disciple of the Warner system, as is G. W. Ossie Solem, Iowa's coach, is noted for the teams he produced at Drake, where he won 60 per cent of his games over a long period of service.

The Colonials went through a brilliant workout against the Freshmen yesterday afternoon at Griffith Stadium, scoring touchdowns almost at will against the tenacious plebe team. The blocking of both the line and the defensive secondaries was ideal.

Fenlon, Carlin in Easy Workouts.

The first string back field was Johnny Baker, Nig McCarver, Chris Doose and Finis Parrish, but two triple threat backs—Johnny Fenlon and Lee Carlin—will be in the game Friday night. These two confined their workouts yesterday to limbering up, kicking and passing.

Tickets for the game, which G. W. confidently expects to win, are on sale at the university and at Spalding's.

Iowa entrains for Washington today, with a squad of 33 players.

Trainer B. Creech Gives Up Coe Post

Resignation Effective After Bowie Meet; Refuses Salary Cut.

Bennet Creech, trainer for W. R. Coe since 1929, has resigned his connection with Coe's race horse stable, effective at the close of the Bowie meet next month, according to the Associated Press.

Creech asserted last night it was agreed mutually that he and Coe would sever relations, which always have been pleasant, at the termination of the Maryland season. A reduction in salary was given by Creech as the reason for the resignation.

The trainer was employed by Coe in 1929, and his horses won $154,000 that year. With his horses under the training of Creech, Coe won $112,500 in the next season; $177,500 in 1931, and $193,000 so far this year.

The juveniles, trained by Creech this year, include Ladysman, Coe's entry for the Pimlico Futurity next month, and his foremost prospect for the 1933 Kentucky Derby.

COMPANY E IN ACTION.

Company E, District National Guard, will meet the Rendezvous five in a basket ball game tonight at 9:30 o'clock in the Central High School gym. All players are requested to report promptly.

C. U. HOPING FOR UPSET VICTORY

Holy Cross Game Saturday Is Biggest of Year for Cards.

FOUR Catholic University gridmen will be playing before their hometowners Saturday, when the Cardinals meet Holy Cross in the most important C. U. game of the year. And the C. U. coaching staff is hoping that the intense desire of these four to play their finest football will carry the club to a huge upset victory.

The quartet is composed of Capt. Buster Sheary, C. U.'s great blocking full back; Frank Donaher and John Jankowski, half backs, and Bingo Flynn, 195-pound guard. Two years ago, when Catholic University was much inferior to the form its present team shows, Sheary all but single-Landedly held the great Purple squad to a reasonably close score.

The coaching staff explained yesterday that Catholic University was held back Saturday against Manhattan, which may account for the New York press' reports that the Cardinals did not show much.

Holy Cross Has No Line On Catholic U.

The reason was because of the Holy Cross coaches in the stands, it was learned at C. U. yesterday. The Cards hope to go on the field with their plays so unknown that they can run up an early lead and then confine themselves to protecting it before the ponderous Holy Cross attack.

C. U. will be outweighed for the first time this season. The Holy Cross line is said to average 198, 10 pounds more per man than C. U.'s. There are five men in the Holy Cross line who weigh more than 200 pounds.

Catholic University continued its warming up for the game yesterday and will hold another extensive drill today. The team leaves tomorrow for New York and will go to Providence by boat.

Chocolate Suspended And Blitman Bout Off

Detroit, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Kid Chocolate's 10-round bout with Harry Blitman, scheduled for Thursday night, was called off today and the Cuban bon bon was suspended for failure to arrive within the time specified by the State boxing commission's rules.

Boxing commissioner Al A. Day ordered the suspension and recommended to the State commission that the order be kept in force for one year. Chocolate will be given a hearing in Lansing, November 3, if he wishes to state his case.

Football Briefs

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 25 (U.P.).—Army's varsity went through a full-speed scrimmage today in preparation for Saturday's game with the strong William and Mary eleven. Only "Abe" Lincoln, varsity tackle, was out of the line-up. He is recovering from a bad leg bruise received in the Yale contest. Jim Win, of Danville, Ky., is working in Lincoln's place.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 25 (U.P.).—Attempting to boost Yale's floundering football team out of the doldrums, the coaches today took the squad back to gridiron fundamentals, and virtually the entire afternoon was spent in drilling in early-season work. If Dud Parker is shifted from quarter back to right end to bolster the latter position, signals probably will be called by Pat Sullivan against Dartmouth Saturday.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 25 (U.P.).—With Hardy and Francisco, Harvard tackles, on the injury list, Coach Eddie Casey looked with some trepidation today for ways and means of stopping Brown's strange triple wingback formation from developing into completed ground-gaining plays. With five leading players injured in the Dartmouth game, Casey scrimmaged what was left on this squad against the junior varsity.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 25 (U.P.).—Capt. Bill Gilbane, Brown full back, will be in shape for the Harvard game, his work in practice showed today. This leaves Coach Tuss McLaughry with a full complement of players, provided injuries do not develop during the week.

Hyattsville High Wins Soccer Contest, 6 to 4

Hyattsville High School boys' soccer team gained a tie for first place with Maryland Park in the race for the title in the northern loop of the Prince Georges County high school championship series by defeating Mount Rainier, 6 to 4, yesterday at Mount Rainier.

In field ball yesterday, the Hyattsville girls fought the Mount Rainier lassies, who are heading the northern loop race, to a 4-4 tie.

Takoma-S. S. Booters Down Rockville, 8 to 2

Rockville High School bowed in defeat to Takoma-Silver Spring, 8 to 2, in a Montgomery County soccer championship game yesterday at Silver Spring. The victors, who are defending the title they won last season, held the upper hand at all times, and were leading, 4 to 2, at the half.

Petition by Old Line Team Would Lift Poppelman Ban

THE football squad at the University of Maryland yesterday signed a petition asking Coach Curly Byrd to restore Ray Poppelman, deposed half back, to the squad. Poppelman, spearhead of Maryland's great 1931 team, was ousted last Thursday for striking Magruder Huff, freshman lineman.

A Maryland spokesman said Monday night that a petition, signed by the entire team, was Poppelman's only hope of regaining his place on the squad. It is felt that his cause was brightened, however, by a clear-cut apology-explanation which he sent to the editor of the school paper, and which was published Monday.

Stilling reports that he would turn professional and play for a local team, Poppelman last night said that he held out every hope of returning to the squad, and reiterated his innocence. In his written statement Monday Poppelman stated that he had merely stiff-armed Huff, and that he bore the freshman's teeth-marks on the palm of his hand—conclusive proof that he had not hit him with a clenched fist.

Huff was one of the signers of the petition, a unique document in the football history of Maryland. Coach Byrd had not acted upon the tract last night, but his reply is expected today.

With Poppelman back in the game Maryland will loom as a slight favorite to win its first Southern Conference game of the year Saturday against V. M. I. in Richmond. Previous excursions into the Southern Conference this year have resulted in Maryland's being beaten by Virginia, V. P. I. and Duke.

The Maryland line has been notably bolstered by the return to the line-up of Tommy Webb, injured center, whose performance in the St. John's game Saturday was a distinct improvement over the play of his substitutes in the two previous games which Maryland played without this able ball passer.

Comparative scores show little difference between Maryland and V. M. I. Duke beat Maryland 34-0 and V. M. I. 44-0. Virginia beat Maryland, 7-6, by recovering a fumble behind the goal line, and V. M. I. nosed out Virginia, 6-4, in an upset.

School Game Decided in Final Half

5,000 Watch Western Score After Fumble in 1st Quarter.

Tech Fights Back to Rush Ball to Two Touchdowns.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

FIGHTING back furiously after a ponderous Western team had threatened to end its four-year championship reign, Tech virtually clinched its fifth high school title yesterday at Wilson Stadium, with a stretch drive that wiped out a 6-0 disadvantage and netted two startling touchdowns for a 14-6 victory over Western before 5,000 fans.

Tested to the core of its endurance, Tech came back grimly after hundreds of its supporters believed they were about to witness the breaking of a 19-game winning streak, to crush the championship aspirations of the team conceded the best chance of thwarting Tech's dash to the title.

Holmes Heatwole, diminutive half back substituting for Al Pisano, provided the spark that touched off the dynamite that blasted Western's stout defense wide open and paved the way to victory.

Heatwole Scores on Only Chance of Season.

Heatwole was in the game for only a few fleeting seconds, but long enough for him to catapult through left tackle for five yards and Tech's first touchdown. Incidentally, it was Heatwoles' first appearance in high school competition and his only rush of the series thus far.

Johnny Gormley added the extra point that sealed Western's fate with a pretty place kick.

A high-geared offensive that outgained Tech's, and two fortunate breaks, enabled "Turk" Teehan to plow through a tangled mass of arms and legs for Western's only touchdown in the second period.

Leo Hilleary reeled off an 18-yard run after bursting off-tackle, placing the ball on Tech's 45-yard line shortly after the second period opened. A bad pass from center lost 10 yards and Hilleary punted on the next play. The ball sailed to Tech's 16-yard line into the waiting arms of Max Brinkman, but it bounded out again and Nye pounced on it for Western.

Tech's line smeared two plays and a pass was grounded before Hilleary kicked outside on the 7-yard line. Brinkman dropped back for a kick, but the intended trick play went awry when an inaccurate pass from Mourhess bounded off Johnny Gormley's arm and again the alert Nye recovered on the 4-yard stripe.

Teehan Scores to Give Western Lead.

Western was not to be denied this time. Teehan rammed through the line for 2 yards, and then over for the score after Lynham's thrust was halted. Reds Reyholds' kick, attempted after a 5-yard penalty had been inflicted on Western for being off-side, was low.

Tech made a whirlwind start in an effort to tie the score before the end of the half, advancing to Western's 27-yard line on Apperti's run and a pass from Brinkman to Meiklejohn, but the whistle sounded just as Hilleary batted down a second pass on the goal line.

Renewal of hostilities was a signal for the drive that culminated in Tech's first touchdown. After receiving the kick-off and failing to make any headway on four plays, Foley, Tech quarter back, kicked. It was a beautiful punt, spiraling high into the air 50 yards, and literally running another 20 over the goal line.

After an exchange of kicks and a 5-yard penalty had placed the ball on Western's 11-yard line, Hilleary dropped back to kick, but the ball slipped from his eager fingers and he was downed on the 1-yard line. He kicked from behind his own goal to Foley on the 35-yard line, who brought it back to the 11-yard line before going down.

Pisano, Gormely and Apperti advanced it to the 5-yard line, where the Big Red forward wall braced and threatened to hold for downs. It was at this juncture that Heatwole was inserted in the game, and with knees pumping like pistons, he charged through the line on a reverse play for the touchdown.

Tech Scores on 57-Yard Advance.

Tech took the ball on its own 43-yard line following a fourth period exchange of kicks and Pisano and Apperti promptly added two first downs. Foley reeled off two neat broken field runs in succession, the first for 20 yards to the 16-yard line and the second to the 2-yard mark, before Al Pisano crashed through on an end-around play, to assure the victory.

Less than a minute of play remained, but the stout-hearted Westerners, who had just seen their last hope of victory vanish, took to the air in a despearte attempt to penetrate Tech territory. Hilleary's first

NAVY SEEKS TO BOLSTER ATTACK

Coaches Are Satisfied With Defense for Penn Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 25.—Apparently satisfied that the defensive work of their charges has reached such a point as to be capable of holding their own, Navy football coaches indicated today that preparations for the Pennsylvania game to be played in Philadelphia will be concentrated largely to pepping up the offense.

Navy realizes that the Quakers will not only present the heaviest, but also the most seasoned and formidable combination the Tars have faced so far, notwithstanding the fact that the Princeton contest resulted in a scoreless deadlock, and added to defeats at the hands of William and Mary and Ohio University, in ragged exhibitions of play.

There is no question of improvement all along the line in the argument with the Tigers, and with a little more polish which it is hoped to inject into the attack during the next few days, there are those in the Navy camp who feel that the Middies will stand a good chance of hitting a pace that will ring up a victory over Penn.

Chung Hoon Given Extra Day's Rest.

All of the regulars were in fine fettle as they took the field today, though the coaches gave Gordon Chung Hoon, Hawaiian triple-threat back, an additional day's rest. Chung was incapacitated by a blow on the head that forced his retirement early in the Princeton tussle. He was in uniform but did not get into action. The varsity took the offensive during the major portion of the session, two full teams and three sets of backs alternating in a driving scrimmage against the shock troops.

Washington Senators Open Here Next Week

Portraying the role of "iron men," the newly organized Washington Senators will play two games over the week-end, meeting the Frankford Yellow Jackets Saturday at Frankford, Pa., and the Passaic-Wessingtons Sunday at Passaic, N. J.

Next Wednesday the Senators will play their first home game of the season, engaging the Frankford Yellow Jackets in a return game under the lights at Griffith Stadium.

The Senators opened their campaign with a 6-3 victory over the previously undefeated Irvington A. C. last Sunday at Baltimore.

Included on the squad, which is drilling nightly at Griffith Stadium in preparation for the games, are Williams, Wisniewski, Somers, Walsh, Farrell, Byrne, Cross, Pond, Meyers, Bordeaux, Kerjes, Flaherty, Chalmers and Berger.

Negotiations are under way to bring Benny Friedman's Brooklyn Dodgers or the Green Bay Packers here for a game later in the season. Proceeds derived from the fray will be donated to the unemployed.

J. C. C. QUINTET DRILLS.

Athletic Director Jim McNamara requests all members of the Jewish Community Center Basket Ball Team to report for the initial practice of the season tonight at 9 o'clock at the center. New candidates for the team are invited to attend the session also. The team was among the strongest in the city last season.

TRED AVON WINNER BY NOSE IN STRETCH DUEL AT LAUREL

Labrot Filly Victor Over White Lies

Concedes 26 Pounds, Overhauls Leader Sixteenth Out.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

NOW Tred Avon has seen the racing world. She has had her happy moments in the big stakes and had her share of disappointments. Yesterday, at Laurel, a pair of unsophisticated young ladies tried to teach the mare a thing or two about running 6 furlongs. Youth had its fling. Disdainful and White Lies, carrying the light weight of early years, battled for the lead in childish glee while Tred Avon was satisfied to be a witness to the contest from fourth position.

But when the real racing began the old gal moved up as if to say, "Naughty, Naughty." White Lies was persistent, so Tred Avon had to wear her down in the stretch. The margin was a nose, but the speed lesson was there. In the meanwhile, Disdainful gave up the issue and Risque was third.

All this happened in the Royal Oak Handicap for fillies and mares of all ages—the day's feature. Some 8,000 were witnesses.

Tred Avon Wins Stretch Duel.

It was a beautiful stretch duel with Bobby Jones on Tred Avon and Hank Mills on White Lies, giving all they had to their respective mounts. There was little to choose between the jockeys. The horses decided it. Tred Avon was a hotly played second choice, paying a $7.10 mutuel.

Cree, which lost a race here due to poor riding, drew Maryland's ace jockey, Buddy Hanford, in the opener and it was no contest. Hanford hustled Cree to the front at the clubhouse turn and opened up a five-length advantage to coast home while the rest of the field battled it out for the place. This struggle was won by Chloedair by a half-length margin over Sir Kendal.

Jockey E. De Camillis luckily escaped injury when Almond stumbled at the first turn. The boy was thrown over the horse's head and carried the bridle with him. He was on his feet in a moment, however after it appeared that he might land on top of the quarter pole. Cree is a versatile gelding, winning on the flat and over the jumps. He was the choice at 85 cents on the dollar.

The second division of the Ashton went to Projectile, which looked like he was shot out of a cannon at the eighth pole. Bejshak brought the son of Swift and Sure up to take the purse from Acautaw, with Bold Lover, the pace setter, third. The winner paid $94.80. Acautaw also was a long one, with a $23.60 place reward. Balios had a hard time finding racing room, and Mills' closing spurt could not get it in the money. Wise Anne, the favorite, quit.

DEAR AL: LAUREL RACE TRACK.

It looks as though Maryland race fans will have to wait until the Pimlico Futurity to see W. R. Coe's Ladysman in action. Trainer Benny Creech decided yesterday to pass up the $5,000 added Spalding Lowe Jenkins Handicap here Saturday. His star was assigned top weight of 126. Kerry Patch and Caterwaul are assigned 122 and are likely to start.

Equipoise gets top weight of 129 for the $15,000 added Washington Handicap, also listed for Saturday. Trainer Hopkins said recently that 128 was the limit at which he would let the Whitney ace run. However, he'll hardly let that pound interfere with a chance at $15,000. Yours, BILL.

FIRST RACE—LIGHT RIPPLE has been setting a fast pace lately and seems most likely of this field to graduate. Hanford probably will ride. GALA TIME is another which has been consistently close but gets the worst of the post positions. GRACE R. is the possible upsetter.

SECOND RACE—HUFFY is so regular at this course that I'm forced to put him on top. Has performed capably on each occasion here and takes off some weight. WHAT HAVE YOU carries top weight but is a smart jumper. CREE looked good enough to run five miles yesterday. If he can combine that speed with some jumping ability he may take it all.

THIRD RACE — PORTDEN has worked excellently with a sprint of this kind the objective, although his form is enough reason to put him ahead of the field. CONTRIBUTE takes off a lot of weight and will have RENAISSANCE to battle for the place.

FOURTH RACE—PETURNAL gets my backing again. Trials are good and may maintain that early speed shown last time. FINGAL and SNAPLOCK for the rest.

FIFTH RACE—VALENCIENNES gets a pull in the weights here and, from what I have seen for myself and heard from clockers, I believe she will take the purse. JACK HIGH and ST. BRIDEAU for the place battle.

SIXTH RACE—NIGHT PATROL was nine miles the best the other day and will have to be investigated if he fails here. QUARTER DECK and AVALON for the rest.

SEVENTH RACE—WILLIAM T has been working himself up to another winning effort. Watch him today. TOTEM for the place. SYRIAC is last of the also eligibles.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CREE, $3.70, $3.00, $2.50; CHLOEDAIR, $14.60, $6.60; SIR KENDALL, $2.90.

CREE moved into an easy lead at once, went along under steadying restraint and finished with much in reserve. CHLOEDAIR, in nearest pursuit of the winner throughout, held on with good courage to SIR KENDALL. Latter, in the quarters going to the first turn, went to the outside when reaching the back stretch and finished gamely. HOME SHORE, shuffled back going to the first turn, worked his way between horses in the field and was gaining steadily at the end. EPIDAUS and CLEAR KNIGHT had a rough passage going to the first turn. FLAGEOLET tired. ALMOND fell at the first turn.

SECOND RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start poor from gates. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 2:15. Off at 2:20. Winner, Belair Stud's ch. c. (2), by General Lee—Flambino. Trained by J. Fitzsimmons. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:39 3-5, 1:44 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLAMBOROUGH, $7.20, $4.20, $2.70; FRENCH KNIGHT (entry), $4.40, $2.60; FILTER, $2.30.

FLAMBOROUGH, breaking out of hand and lunging when the break came, was knocked sideways, but recovered quickly to enter a forward position, moved up on the outside of the pacemakers when making his run and, continuing stoutly, wore FRENCH KNIGHT down gradually in the last quarter mile. FRENCH KNIGHT, hurried to the front, was mildly urged until challenged and then held on willingly. FILTER, away clearly, and rated close up, weakened badly after coming through a wide opening at the stretch turn. VOTE away sluggishly, was unable to menace the leaders. PRECIOUS DOLLAR was away quickly and had no excuse. STROLL ALONG quit.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:45. Off at 2:52. Winner, Mrs. J. H. Whitney's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CROWNING GLORY, $4.70, $3.50, $2.70; WAVE ON, $5.10, $3.40; CAESAR'S GHOST, $3.40.

CROWNING GLORY, settled in his stride quickly after the break, secured racing room on the inside while in pursuit of the pacemakers, came to the outside for the final quarter mile and, responding to the whip, wore WAVE ON in the final sixteenth. Latter worked an additional quarter mile. WAVE ON raced GOOD ADVICE into defeat after five furlongs, but was not good enough to stay with the winner. CAESAR'S GHOST, outrun for five furlongs, responded to punishment and closed strong. He was worked out a mile with WAVE ON in 1:40 3-5. LAZI CANTINE moved around GOOD ADVICE determinedly at the end. GOOD ADVICE tired after having good speed for five furlongs.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Ashton (second division). For 2-year-olds. Start good from chute; won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:21. Off at 3:26. Winner, A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PROJECTILE, $94.80, $43.10, $20.90; ACAUTAW, $23.60, $17.20; BOLD LOVER, $6.20.

PROJECTILE, securing racing room on the inside after the start, reached contention midway of the turn, swung to the outside and, finishing stoutly, was up in the final strides. ACAUTAW, a strong factor on the entire trip, took BOLD LOVER, but was poorly ridden during the closing furlong. BOLD LOVER displayed good early speed, saved ground, but faltered slightly in the final drive. BALIOS, crowded back when in contention, one stoutly when in the clear. WISE ANNE, in close contention, weakened approaching the finish. THE PELICAN had no mishaps.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. Royal Oak Handicap. For fillies and mares of all ages. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:00. Off at 4:04. Winner, B. W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRED AVON, $7.10, $4.10, $2.40; WHITE LIES, $7.40, $3.40; RISQUE (entry), $2.30.

TRED AVON, handling her weight in good fashion, raced under slight reserve early, responded strongly when reaching the pacemakers and, coming to the outside, outfinished WHITE LIES in the closing furlong. Latter disposed of DISDAINFUL when approaching the home stretch, but was unable to get clear. She fought it out stubbornly with TRED AVON and showed a good effort. RISQUE raced around all the way and showed a good effort.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:25. Off at 4:31½. Winner, S. W. Labrot's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MONEL, $8.80, $4.00, $3.40; BUTTER BEANS, $4.40, $4.40; KNEEHIGH, $5.70.

MONEL, going around the first turn on even terms with BUTTER BEANS, was not hurried when settled on the back stretch, responded willingly when placed to a drive and, withstanding a drive sanely, Dabson outrode Todd when the finish came. BUTTER BEANS moved around at the first turn and assumed command under stiff urging, was shaken up stoutly, but was weakly ridden approaching the finish.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:00. Off at 5:03½. Winner, J. V. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RENEWED, $5.60, $3.90, $3.10; BURNSIDE, $5.40, $3.90; JODHPUR, $5.60.

RENEWED, hustled into a forward position, was sent into a brief lead when leaving the back stretch and, holding on stoutly under severe urging, outstayed BURNSIDE. Latter, in the thick of contention and hard ridden, wore down VANDAL, but could not withstand the winner. JODHPUR worked his way up while going wide, and finished stoutly. TUFFY G. was in tight quarters on the inside all during the back stretch, but finished gamely. GLENBURNIE lost ground the entire trip.

MARINES IN IMPRESSIVE WORKOUT

Ferrell, Hostad, Robinson Star in Prep for Davis-Elkins.

Special to The Washington Post.

QUANTICO, Va., Oct. 25.—Coach Lieut. "Hoke" Palmer sent the Marine Leathernecks through their most strenuous scrimmage of the week here today, the most strenuous action they will see until they meet Davis-Elkins Saturday afternoon at Griffith Stadium, in Washington, in their only appearance of the year in the Capital.

Particularly impressive in today's workout were Corpls. H. M. Ferrell, O. W. Hostad and George Robinson, end, center and half back, respectively. Robinson and Hostad are players developed since they joined the Marines, but Farrell saw service with Baylor, strong Texas college team, before coming to Quantico.

The Marines are expected to hold the weight advantage Saturday, but Davis-Elkins rules a slight favorite to win, based on their victory last year and their ability to beat New River this year—a team which the Marines tied.

Elkins, W. Va., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—With both of its captains back in the lineup, Davis-Elkins' Scarlet Hurricane tuned up today for Saturday's eagerly awaited meeting with the Quantico Marines in Washington. The cocaptains are Jimmy Wallace, 210-pound tackle, the heaviest man on the team, and Les Corzine, 195-pound full back, both of them seniors.

The team stressed passing today, a plan it expects to use Saturday to offset the weight of the Marines. Three backs looked good today while gathering in difficult aerials—Harry Shelton, George Taylor and Joe Pease.

Jockey Elston Hurt In Fall at Latonia

Latonia, Ky., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Gilbert Elston, called by some racing experts the year's best jockey on American tracks, suffered a fracture of the skull today in a tumble with his mount at the Latonia Jockey Club track. Hospital authorities said his condition was serious.

Elston was astride Black Dust in the last race, when the filly fell while in close quarters on the last turn. Lady Couven went on to win.

Jockey Monte Parke, astride Lady Couven, later was blamed by the stewards for the accident, and was suspended for the remainder of the meeting. He had made a brilliant record in his first competition at Arlington.

Stocks Again Close Lower As Trading Continues Dull

Fractional Losses Result in Dividend Vigil; Sales, 614,860 Shares.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—The stock market spent a quiet day today, waiting for the meeting of U. S. Steel Corporation directors to determine the fate of that company's preferred dividend, an action that was not taken until after the close.

Prices drifted aimlessly for the most part, although here and there some special selling, largely for professional account, appeared in response to earning statements, or reports as to current sales. An early rally, which lifted prices of many leaders about a point, was wiped out toward midday with losses replacing gains. This decline, which ran from fractions to 3 points, was considerably reduced in the closing hour of trading when prices sluggishly crept forward. At the close, most stocks registered fractional losses, and a few were down as much as 2 points.

Trading fell for the second successive day under the 1,000,000-share-a-day level, which is accepted in Wall street as tiresomely low. The total was 614,860 shares, a shade over yesterday's total, but still constituting one of the dullest days in recent weeks.

Keen interest centered on the common and preferred shares of U. S. Steel, which vacillated throughout the day, occasional rallies being succeeded by faint sinking spells. The common closed off nearly a point and the preferred lost more than that. Wall street opinion appeared to be about evenly divided as to whether the regular $7 annual dividend rate on the preferred dividend would be maintained. The company's decision to maintain the $7 rate, which has never been cut in the corporation's 31 years of existence, was not made known until well after the close.

Some special selling centered in a few of the specialties. Drug, Inc., sank 2 points, apparently because of belief that one of its principal subsidiaries, the Louis K. Liggett Co. might undergo a reorganization in case it could not obtain revisions of leases for more than 500 stores which it operates. The biscuit stocks were under moderate pressure, National yielding more than a point at one time, but recovering about half its loss later.

The copper stocks showed little concern, so far as their price movements indicated, over recent reduction in prices by custom smelters. Anaconda and Kennecott were off scant fractions.

Additional railroad reports, both of September earnings and of current freight movement, were accepted as encouraging by Wall street economists. It was stated that New York Central for the week ended October 22 would probably show a moderate gain over the preceding week. Several other roads had previously reported gains. Southern Pacific and Pennsylvania lost a fraction. New York Central was unchanged. Union Pacific was slightly higher.

Extreme low money rates again attracted attention. An offer of a substantial sum was reported at one-half of 1 per cent for 60-day loans, a figure that probably set a record low for the New York money market.

Stocks.

Prices drifted aimlessly as dealers waited on the U. S. Steel dividend announcement. Losses for the most part were fractional, but there were some as high as two points. Trading again was dull, and the total sales amounted to 614,860 shares.

Bonds.

Dull and spotty market resulted in four-tenths of a point loss. The turnover increased moderately to $7,143,000.

Curb.

Trading followed the big board in dullness, but losses were held within a narrow range. The volume of sales remained the same as on Monday, 120,000 shares.

Wheat.

Values pitched headlong to within one-half cent of Chicago's lowest record. The abrupt withdrawal of Canada's support of the Winnipeg market was blamed. December wheat sold at 45⅜ to 45½ cents.

Cotton.

A second rally enabled cotton to close 5 to 7 points higher. December sold at 6.16. Liverpool reported that hedging had been absorbed by calling and buyers.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Prices opened easy on the stock exchange following the sharp decline in sterling exchange and the announcement of a new South African loan of 8,000,000 pounds sterling. Prices recovered moderately later, especially transatlantic issues. The closing was steadier. Foreign bonds were weak.

Paris—The firmer tone of principal French securities yesterday induced a better demand in today's prices on the Bourse. Electric and metal shares gained substantially and the market closed firm.

Berlin—Trading was inactive on the bourse, being influenced by the decline in sterling exchange. The close was weaker.

Rubber Futures Steady.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Rubber futures closed steady. December, 3.43; January, 3.49; March, 3.60@3.62; May, 3.67. Smoked ribbon spot closed 3.46.

BOND MARKET SAGS IN MODERATE SALES

Four-Tenths of Point Lost in Slightly Larger Dealing of $7,143,000.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—A dull and spotty bond market today witnessed prices accentuate their recent declining trend.

The turnover was only moderately larger than that of yesterday, sales totaling $7,143,000. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans dropped four-tenths of a point.

While the secondary railway group, and some of the industrials, exhibited more than ordinary weakness, losses of 1 to as much as 5 points in the nervous foreign department did much to unsettle the list as a hole.

The Australians were especially heavy, the Commonwealth 4½s and 5s losing 4¾ and 5⅝ points, respectively. Other losers included some of Argentina, Berlin, Finland, Germany, Italy, New South Wales, Norway, Queensland, Austria, Poland and Japan. British 5½s gave up ⅜ of a point in heavy trading. Mild improvement was shown by some loans of Belgium, France and Cuba. Canadian Dominion 4s were active at a loss of ⅜ of a point.

The gyrations of the British pound sterling, which fell to another new 1932 low before rallying, evidently acted as a deterrent to the foreign section as well as causing some uncertainty in domestic issues.

The transportation division apparently ignored better traffic reports from class 1 railroads. Declines of 1 to 3 or more points were recorded by some bonds of Allegheny orporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Chicago & Alton, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Rock Island, Erie, Great Northern, Louisville & Nashville, New York Central, Nickel Plate, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific and Wabash. Nickel Plate 6s were 7 points off after a 6½ point recovery yesterday.

There was little life in the industrials and utilities, except in a few specialties. The greatest number of transactions was in Armour & Co. 4½s, which gained ½ point. United Drug 5s were down around 7 points at one time, but rallied and managed to hold their net loss to 4 points.

United States Government obligations were somewhat easier.

Sugar Melt Decreases.

The total sugar melt of fourteen United States refiners from January 1 to October 15 amounted to 3,140,000 long tons, compared with 3,515,000 in the like 1931 period. Total deliveries for the period were 3,025,000 long tons against 3,310,000 in the same period a year ago.

U. S. Steel's Directors Vote Regular Preferred Dividend

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—The United States Steel Corporation today ordered disbursement of the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock, maintaining intact the 31-year dividend record on this issue.

Three months ago the directors had issued a statement warning that it was "apparent that improvement in business and earnings must in the future determine dividend action on the preferred stock." Dividends on the common shares were omitted six months ago.

The corporation reported a deficit from operations, after manufacturing expenses, of $4,474,719 for the the quarter ended September 30. This compared with a deficit in the previous quarter of $3,362,736, and in the third quarter of last year a profit from operations of $9,181,091.

After allowances for depletion, depreciation and obsolescence, and interest on subsidiary bonds and the few bonds of the parent corporation still outstanding, and overhead expenses of Lake Superior iron ore properties and Great Lakes transportation service, there was a total deficit for the quarter ended September 30 of $20,871,709, in contrast to a deficit of $20,452,173 in the preceding quarter, and of $3,973,835 in the September quarter of 1931.

In the third three-month period of last year, the total deficit had been absorbed by a profit of $7,160,966 from the sale of property, which left net income of $3,187,131.

After provision for the preferred dividend, the total deficit from surplus for the latest quarterly period was $27,176,628, against $26,757,092 in the period ended June 30 last, and $11,822,371, after dividends, in the period ended September 30, 1931.

The preferred dividend is payable November 29, to stockholders of record November 1. Unfilled orders on September 30 were 1,985,090 tons.

The corporation's cash balance on September 30 stood at $82,000,000 and market value of its holdings of United States Government securities at $48,773,000. These compare with cash of $84,509,000 and United States Government securities of $72,958,000 January 1 last.

Ingot production ran below shipment figures, and total inventories have been reduced approximately $36,000,000 since January 1, special figures issued showed.

Ingot production in July ran at 11.8 per cent of capacity, against shipments of finished products equivalent to 15.7 per cent of capacity; in August, 12.1 per cent, against 15.5 per cent; in September, 16.2 per cent, against 16.4.

In the first half of October, production was 16.6 per cent of capacity, and shipments equivalent to 19.1 per cent of capacity.

For the nine months ended September 30 net loss totaled $54,542,431, after taxes and all charges, no item of special income being included. This compares with net profit, including $14,321,932 special income, of $17,343,543 in first nine months of 1931, equal to $4.81 a share on 3,602,811 shares of preferred stock.

Included in the charges during the last quarter is an item amounting to $5,716,637, representing overhead expenses of Lake Superior iron ore properties and Great Lakes transportation service comparing with a similar charge of $5,887,160, appearing for the first time in the June quarter.

China Wheat Deal Studied on Credits

R. C. Directorate Asks for Signature of Domestic Firm on Note.

(Associated Press.)

Wilson McCarthy, a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, yesterday conferred with George S. Milnor, head of the Farmers National Grain Corporation, on the proposed sale on credit of 15,000,000 bushels of wheat to China. It was said the negotiations have not been completed.

China has sought to buy the wheat, offering its governmental note and a surtax import duty as security. The directorate of the Reconstruction Coporation feels that the note should be indorsed by a domestic signature, but this has not been forthcoming.

Negotiations are hanging upon the possibility of the Farmers National or the Northwest Cooperative signing the note for the several million dollars involved. Mr. McCarthy said the corporaiton was very anxious to make the loan and encourage exporting of agricultural products wherever possible, but it was necessary by statute to obtain adequate security.

Visible Supply of Grain.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushels: Wheat, decreased 738,000; corn, increased 3,008,000; oats, decreased 200,000; rye, decreased 134,000; barley, increased 171,000.

U. S. Shoe Trade Fights Imports

Customs Is Told Germany Hurts Business With Calf Uppers.

(Associated Press.)

Complaint that calf leather shoe uppers from Germany are injuring business of members of the Calf Tanners Association of the United States was presented yesterday to F. X. A. Eble, commissioner of customs.

The tanners said Germany and the Netherlands furnish 40 per cent of such uppers in this country and that latest quotations place the price below the cost of manufacture here.

Fred J. Rueping, Fond du Lac, Wis., said his company had lost business because of the German competition and that his factory was operating at 60 per cent of normal. F. H. Becker, Girard, Ohio, said his factory was operating at 75 per cent of capacity and was losing business to German competition.

CURB SINKS LOWER IN QUIETER TRADING

Losses Held Within Narrow Range in Turnover of 120,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Trading on the Curb Market appeared to reach stalemate today, prices of leading shares closing a little lower on the day. Transfers totaled approximately 120,000 shares, the same as yesterday.

Traders appeared to look from the junior market to the action of stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, where activity was also quiet in advance of the United States Steel Corporation's action on the preferred dividend.

A further easing of copper prices, reported by some custom smelters, caused a little selling in Newmont, the stock closing a fraction below yesterday. New Jersey Zinc was unchanged.

The oils again appeared in even balance. Standard of Indiana and Gulf lost a small fraction each.

Electric Bond & Share common and Cities Service enjoyed the lion's share of what little trading was done on the curb, both yielding a little. American Gas & Electric was down ⅜. American Superpower and Niagara Hudson Power were unchanged. United Light & Power "A" gained a shade.

Aluminum Co. lost 1 point. Sherwin-Williams was down fractionally on an odd-lot transfer. Parker Rust Proof, which has been inactive in recent sessions, lost 3 points. Pan American Airways gained about a half point.

Canada Refuses to Pay Wheat Bonus for 1932

Ottawa, Ontario, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Premier Bennett told the House of Commons today that the Dominion is not in a position to pay a wheat bonus this year.

Premier Bennett told the House of Commons on October 19, that the government was considering proposals to grant a bonus of five cents a bushel to prairie wheat growers.

John Vallance, Saskatchewan Liberal, said he had received telegrams from the west urging the bonus, and quoted one as saying "revolution was inevitable" unless it was granted.

Graham-Page Motors Vote Capital Reduction

Detroit, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Stockholders of the Graham-Paige Motor Corporation today voted to reduce the the authorized capital from $7,000,000 authorized capital from $7,000,000 to $5,516,000. The higher capitalization consisted of 30,000 shares of first preferred stock of $100 par value, 40,000 shares of second preferred of $100 par value and 2,800,000 shares of no-par common stock. This is reduced to 30,000 shares of first preferred, 165 shares of second preferred and 2,500,000 shares of $1 par value common stock.

The amount of the reduction resulting from the change to $1 par is to be transferred to capital surplus, against which will be applied the deficit from operations accumulated to December 31, 1932, and such write-downs on properties as may be determined upon during the current year.

WHEAT VALUES DROP TO LOWER GROUND

Prices Sink Within Fraction of Chicago's Bottom on Winnipeg News.

Chicago, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Wheat pitched headlong downward today to within ½ cent of the lowest price any future delivery of the grain had ever sold at in Chicago.

Abrupt withdrawal of Canadian government support for the Winnipeg wheat market was the main reason ascribed for the break in values here, which also was influenced by a steep new tumble in British exchange. In some quarters slashing of wheat values at Winnipeg was construed as an effort to hold the world wheat export trade for Canada until the new Argentine crop would seriously compete.

Corn, oats and rye fell with wheat, and all four cereals outdid season bottom price records, December corn selling under 25 cents a bushel the first time since 1896.

Wheat closed restless, at almost the day's bottom, 2½ to 2¾ under yesterday's finish; corn, ⅞ to 1⅜ down; oats, ⅜ to ½ off, and provisions, unchanged to 5 cents lower.

Stop-Loss Selling.

Persistent stop-loss selling by holders of Chicago wheat futures accompanied the general break in prices. Liquidating sales were much in evidence from the outset, and the only source of buying orders at times appeared to be previous sellers who could collect a profit. At one stage though there was a good deal of buying here for spread traders against simultaneous selling at Winnipeg. Weight of such offerings in the Canadian market was among the causes given for withdrawal of Canadian government support. Meanwhile, rains in domestice winter wheat territory southwest gave additional incentive for selling.

Fresh disturbance of British exchange carrying the rates to a new low for the year was contended by some authorities to be only seasonal, but was asserted by others to be due to financial causes. Partial recovery of sterling helped temporarily to rally wheat in Chicago, but the stimulating effect disappeared instanter when indications pointed to withdrawal of Canadian government support of the wheat market in Winnipeg. Results were similar with a Canadian trade estimate that the 1932 Canadian wheat crop would total but 410,000,000 bushels compared with the recent Government estimate of 446,000,000.

Despite brisk new export business in corn, that grain with oats and rye was governed chiefly by wheat weakness.

Provisions reflected downturns of hog values and cereals.

COTTON PRICES GAIN AFTER AN EARLY LOSS

December Closes at 6.16 as Market Recovers 5 to 7 Points in Rally.

New York, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—While an early advance in cotton today was followed by reactions under a moderate volume of Southern selling combined with liquidation or local selling prices firmed up again in the late trading on a continued trade demand and covering.

December contracts after easing off from 6.18 to 6.08 closed at 6.16, with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 5 to 7 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 8 points in response to the fairly steady showing of Liverpool and reports of cold rains in the Northwestern part of the belt. Houses with Liverpool, Continental and Japanese connections were moderate buyers and active months advanced about 7 to 9 points during the early trading.

Southern Selling Drive.

Prices reacted during around midday under Southern selling combined with Western selling on the decline in wheat. Prices worked off from 6.32 to 6.22 for March making net declines of a point or two on the general list but this dip seemed to meet more active trade buying, while the failure of Southern hedging to become more active in the later trading appeared to stimulate covering. Last prices showed rallies of 7 to 9 points from the lowest.

The census report showing 7,311,208 bales ginned prior to October 18 was considered about in line with expectations, although there was some comment on the Texas ginnings of 2,344,667 bales as relatively light in comparison with the last official crop indication. The report on the grade and staple of the carry-over from last season in this country seemed to attract no special comment in connection with the immediate market.

There were reiterated reports of a firm spot basis in the South. Liverpool cables said that hedging in that market had been absorbed by Bombay buying and general buying on the weakness in sterling, and also reported a fair demand for cotton cloth. Exports today, 20,819, making 1,837,922 so far this season. Port receipts, 85,931. United States port stocks, 4,139,386.

Paris Sees Americans Aiding Dollar Advance

Paris, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—The newspaper Le Matin said it believed vigorous defensive measures of American interests in selling British pounds to protect the American dollar were responsible for today's rise of the dollar on the exchange.

The dollar rose 2 centimes. Both the pound and dollar started downward in early trading, but the dollar quickly recovered.

U.S. MONEY SYSTEM SEEN AS UPTURN AID

Investment Bankers Laud Government Activity in Curbing Depression.

Special to The Washington Post.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Oct. 25.—The sound money system of the United States is regarded by investment bankers as having demonstrated itself. A report on trends in business drawn up by a committee headed by Albert P. Everts, of Paine Webber & Co., Boston, and adopted by the Investment Bankers Association at its annual convention here notes a realization that our potential national strength has at last been marshaled for defensive and offensive operations against the forces of depression and disintegration.

Activities of the Government are seen by Mr. Everts as having helped bridge the period of adjustment between panic and depression. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Home Loan Bank and other entities have been carrying out the practical purpose of endeavoring to bridge this period without the tragedy of wholesale bankruptcy common to the history of similar economic periods, he said.

Governmental activity in the field of investment is seen by his committee as having two aspects, namely a debrutalizing of the adjustment process and a function that draws from the capital reservoir of a nation while at the same time supplying capital to productive enterprise.

He noted that the improvement which has taken place in security values since July 6 has not been accomplished by inflation, for on that date there was $67.91 in monetary gold for every $100 of money in circulation and at the end of August this gold backing had increased to $71.61.

The results of a questionnaire completed by the association August 19 among its members was made public and showed that of 309 replies 291 members considered that the return of confidence as evidenced by the increases in security prices indicated a definite movement toward recovery from the depression.

NORFOLK & WESTERN INCOME UP $680,466

September Rate of Increase Trebles July and August; Yellow Truck Loses.

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—September earnings of the Norfolk & Western Railway Co. were $680,466.19 more than in August, it was announced here today from the offices of the president, A. C. Needles.

The net income for the month, due mainly to an increase in coal traffic and continued improved passenger traffic, amounted to $1,952,782.96. The per cent of increase in September more than trebled the increase from July to August—the gain in the latter case being $175,052.56.

The improvement in earnings in September carried on into the fall the steady gain that started six months ago. Railway officials said that while a great deal of the increase was accountable for as seasonal hauling, some was due to a consistent recovery in this area.

Other Rail Earnings.

Other railroads reporting September net operating income today with comparisons with last year included the following:

	1932.	1931.
*Wabash	$259,473	$333,657
*†Pere Marquette	253,154	298,892

*Deficit.
†After taxes and charges.

For the nine months ended September 30, International Business Machines Corporation reports net earnings, after charges and estimated taxes, of $5,038,962, equivalent to $7.16 per share of capital stock. STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

WHEN American pioneers first felt the furnace-like blast from Death Valley, in California, they concluded that it was the hottest place on earth—a distinction that clung until the temperature was actually recorded and found to be a little lower than that at Azizia, in Tripoli. Azizie held the honor until somebody looked at the thermometer in Ladak, an isolated province in the Himalayas. The temperature there drops from 160 during the heat of day to 45 at nightfall—a difference of 115 degrees. The hottest place in the world since then has been found to be a district in Dutch Guiana, where a scientific expedition found it to be 175 degrees.

Many men who have made it their business to open safes that do not belong to them have found themselves in trouble—but not Charles Courtney, New York lock expert, whose ability to pick almost any lock and open the most stubborn safes has gained for him a world-wide reputation. Courtney has devoted his life to the study of locks and now is the recognized champion lock picker of the world.

The hanging parakeet, or bat-parrot, has by reason of its feeding habits, become accustomed to hanging its head downward. Unlike other birds, the hanging parakeet sleeps in this position, hanging from a branch by its feet. The bat-parrot feeds on flower nectar and soft fruit.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

WIDE FIGHT IS URGED AGAINST SLASHES IN PUBLIC HEALTH FUND

Appropriations Cut Would Be Disgrace, Parley Speaker Says.

Appeals for a Nation-wide fight against reduction in appropriations for public health services were made last night at a general session of the sixty-first annual meeting of the American Public Health Association at the Willard Hotel.

Leaders in this sweeping campaign of opposition were Dr. Louis I. Dublin, president of the association, and Prof. C. E. A. Winslow, professor of public health at Yale University.

More than a dozen health commissioners from cities, States and rural communities told of methods used in carrying forward their work under pressure of economy. After the first few speakers had presented their reports, Dr. Dublin, who was presiding, complained of "a note of acceptance in the addresses." He appealed for an emphatic declaration from the health commissioners to refuse to take the cut.

Budget Cuts Reported.

This opinion was followed by a talk by Dr. Winslow in which he asserted "it will be nothing short of a disgrace if we allow this temporary panic of tax reduction and economy to throw away our valuable health services."

Dr. Dublin said that out of 345 health officers reporting to the association, 228 announced budget reductions in 1932. The total amount of reductions in the reporting departments amounted to $4,678,135, he showed.

The subject of the session was maintaining health efficiency in times of distress. Those taking part in the discussion included the following public health commissioners: Dr. Joseph W. Mountim, of Washington; Dr. Henry F. Vaughan, of Detroit; Dr. E. L. Bishop, of Tennessee; Dr. George C. Ruhland, of Syracuse, N. Y.; Dr. C. W. Craster, of Newark, N. J.; Dr. Charles A. Neafie, of Pontiac, N. Y.; Dr. W. L. Stevenson, chief of the bureau of sanitary engineering of the Pennsylvania; Dr. Mathias Nicol, jr., former health commissioner of the State of New York and now health commissioner of Westchester County, N. Y., and Dr. Roy Hege, of Forsyth County, Winston-Salem, N. C. Dr. Louis I. Dublin, president of the American Public Health Association, presided.

Effects of Noise Shown.

The effects of noise on health were brought out at an afternoon session of public health engineering. Dr. Charles R. Cox, assistant sanitarian at the State department at Albany, N. Y., and chairman of the committee on noise, declared that noise in modern cities constitutes a challenge to the public health engineer.

Dr. Fred C. Tonney, of the Chicago health department, cited as impurities in the air, smoke, soot, fogs, &c. He attributed tooth decay in children to deficiency of sunshine and bad air.

Dr. Haven Emerson, of Columbia University, declared polluted air may be a contributing factor in causing rheumatic fever which brings death to many children.

A bacteria counting machine that shows the amount of bacteria and other impurities in the air was demonstrated by its inventor, W. F. Wells, of the Harvard school of public health.

George Bell Heads Southeast Citizens

Succeeds A. G. Herrmann, President 25 Years; Others Named.

George W. Bell last night was elected president of the Southeast Citizens Association, replacing A. G. Herrmann, now ill, who had been president for 25 years. Mr. Herrmann was named honorary president.

Mrs. A. H. Bryde was elected first vice president; William A. Maio, second vice president; George Glick, re-elected secretary, and Martin Kudolla, sergeant at arms, and Allan A. Davis and J. C. L. Ritter, sr., delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

A letter containing the withdrawal of Mr. Ritter from the association was held over for action until the next meeting. Mr. Ritter has long been a member of the association. A resolution offered by C. G. Degman, advocating a 5-cent street railway fare and provision for rubber-tired wheels for street cars, was referred to the public utilities committee for study.

Community Center Group To Meet.

The autumn meeting of the Community Center Council will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the board room of the Franklin Administration Building.

TRAFFIC TOLL

"A better observance of the regulations and a spirit of genuine cooperation by both motorists and pedestrians with the police will materially reduce accidents on our public streets."—Maj. E. V. Brown.

Washington's traffic toll up to date shows 32 more deaths and 208 more injuries than during the same period of 1931 although the total number of accidents has been reduced by 392. The figures are:

STOLEN GEMS FOUND AS MAN IS CAPTURED

Police Also Recover $370 Belonging to Woman, Store Owner.

Acting on a lead given by Mrs Maude L. James when she reported that her apartment at 910 I street northwest had been looted of $3,500 worth of jewelry and $370 in cash Monday night, police yesterday raided the room of William Brent Bolton and recovered the entire loot. Police said the man threw all the stolen property out of the window of his second-story room at 1003 H street northwest, when they entered, but it was recovered from a roof below.

Bolton is said to have been formerly employed by Mrs. James in her delicatessen at Tenth and I streets northwest. He is being held for investigation.

The burglar who looted the apartment gained entrance by breaking a window. The jewelry and money, included five diamond rings, a platinum gold wrist watch, a diamond studded bracelet, a diamond lavalier, two $100 bills, five $20 bills, and seven $10 bills.

The theft of jewelry and clothing valued at $244 was also reported to police yesterday by Richard O'Roak and Ralph W. Engle, 133 Sixth street southeast. They said a duplicate key probably was used in entering their apartment. The jewelry stolen included four watches valued at $74, a diamond ring valued at $45, two stick pins valued at $45, and an onyx ring valued at $20. The clothing included two suits valued at $50, and a pair of trousers and a belt, valued at $10.

Grocery Store Manager Robbed of $15 and Car

Charles E. Smith, manager of the Sanitary Grocery Store at Second and C streets southeast, was held up and robbed of $15 early yesterday by two white men, who also took his car, which was parked near the store. Smith told police the men took $3 from his pockets and $12 from the cash register.

In leaving the robbers told Smith they were taking his car, but they would leave it "up the road." Smith is said to have later found his car abandoned not many blocks from his store.

Lamb Acting Inspector Of Police Traffic Unit

The District Commissioners yesterday approved promotion of two members of the police traffic bureau to fill the executive vacancy created by the appointment of the former head, E. W. Brown, as superintendent of the Police Department.

Capt. Benjamin A. Lamb was designated acting inspector and at once assumed charge of the bureau, while Lieut. Milton D. Smith was designated acting captain to fill Inspector Lamb's former post.

Man Saved From Gas Suicide, Police Report

Cecil Litton, 32, of 605 New Jersey avenue northwest, was revived by the Fire Rescue squad after he had been overcome at his home by illuminating gas, taken in a suicide attempt, according to police. He was found unconscious by Frances Rees, of the same address.

After being revived, he was removed to Gallinger Hospital, where his condition was described as "good."

Man Ends Life by Gas After Scrawling Note

Leaving a hurriedly scrawled note, which said he was despondent over domestic troubles, John Harmon Myers, 54, of 61 N street southeast, committed suicide yesterday by turning on the gas jet in his home.

He was discovered by his daughter, Mrs. Eleanora Thompson, who called the Fire Rescue Squad. The note was addressed to his daughter and to his wife, Mrs. Catherine Myers, who was separated from him. A certificate of suicide was issued.

WOMAN AND 2 BOYS HURT IN ACCIDENTS

Driver in First Crash Stops, but Fails to Follow Car to Hospital.

Mrs. Marie B. Roderic, 36, of the Dupont Circle Hotel, suffered lacerations and bruises when struck by an automobile at Vermont avenue and N streets northwest yesterday afternoon. She was taken to Garfield Hospital by Theodore Birdsong, of 3531 Thirteenth street northwest. It was reported that the woman driving the car which struck Mrs. Roderic stopped and told Birdsong she would follow him to the hospital, but failed to do so.

Albert Bass, 8, of 1202 Seventh street, suffered minor injuries when struck at Seventh and M streets yesterday by a car driven by George W. Bogikes, 32, of 36 New York avenue northeast. The boy was treated at Sibley Hospital.

Knocked from his bicycle at Four-and-a-half and H streets southwest, by a car driven by Fillmore Payton, of South Washington, Va., yesterday afternoon, John Curry, 10, suffered a possible fracture of the skull. He was taken to Emergency Hospital by Leroy Harris, of 496 H street southwest. It is reported the boy was riding out of an alley when struck.

Student at St. John's Expires During Class

Richard E. Smith, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Smith, of 620 Rittenhouse street northwest, collapsed yesterday while attending classes at St. John's College, 1225 Vermont avenue northwest, and died before medical aid could be summoned.

Saying his son was in apparent good health, Mr. Smith could assign no reason for his death last night. The youth was a second-year student at the college. He formerly attended Nativity School and had lived in Washington since coming here with his parents from Chicago, Ill., in 1918. He also is survived by one brother, Harry E. Smith, jr.

Commissioners to Act On Cupola Row Friday

Action on the several requests that the cupola be reinserted in the plans for the Taft Junior High School was postponed by the District Commissioners yesterday until Friday. All indications, however, are that the school will remain shorn of the architectural decorative device.

Among the organizations which have asked for the cupola's retention are several citizens' associations, the Fine Arts Commission, the Board of Education, and the District Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

Bank Robbery Scare Proves to Be False

A false report of a bank holdup brought more than a score of police to the National Bank of Washington at Seventh street and Indiana avenue northwest yesterday, only to find buslines going on as usual at the establishment.

Headquarters detectives stated that a taxicab driver had called them with the information that six men were robbing the bank. Arriving at the scene police suspected a ruse to draw off police from headquarters while a robbery was in progress in another section of the city. They called other banks but were informed that everything was quiet.

Business Men Keep Minoux as Leader

Georgia Avenue Merchants Hold Banquet and Hear Glassford.

Eugene Minoux last night was re-elected for the third time as president of the Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association at the fifth annual banquet of the group last night at the Ann Clarendon Club.

Other officers named were Harold Stoll, first vice president; E. L. Edwards, second vice president; A. S. Neilson, third vice president; George S. Cullen, secretary, and A. Denekas, treasurer.

Milton Vollmer presided as toastmaster, and Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, former superintendent of police, was principal speaker. An entertainment program of music was enjoyed.

Young Bandit, Brought Here, 'Kids' Victims

The grim atmosphere of a police line-up was broken yesterday as Edward Jarvins, 18, of 480 F street southwest, who was brought back from Jacksonville, Fla., after a Nation-wide search, parried words with about a dozen victims whom he held up, and chided one of them on losing weight.

None of the victims could identify Jarvins who, in the company of two men and a woman, admittedly participated in a series of holdups, until the young bandit not only pointed them out, but described in detail all of the events during the robbery.

Frank C. Riley, manager of a filling station at Fifteenth and H street northeast, the robber pointed out as the man who had the most courage of any one whom he had held up. To Dr. Lewis J. Krick, proprietor of a drug store at 1742 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, who was held up about four months ago, Jarvins said: "Doctor, you should take better care of yourself. You have lost weight." Dr. Krick explained that he had not been feeling well and had lost 22 pounds. They then discussed who was more nervous, the victim or the bandit.

Jarvins was sought in twelve States by local police. The fugitive's trail led from a seaside resort in New Jersey to San Antonio, Tex., and finally ended with his arrest in Florida. Jerome Russell, 26, and Violet Fleming, 28, both of New York, have been indicted for their participation in the holdups. A fourth member of the gang is serving time in Baltimore for carrying a concealed weapon. Local police have filed a detainer for his custody when his sentence expires.

Man in Oil Station Taken in Robbery

Arrest Is Made by Two Policemen Answering Radio Call.

Rushing to the station in response to a radio flash, Policemen R. D. Chenault and A. B. Clark, of the Second Precinct, are reported to have caught a man in the act of looting the cash register of the Home Plate Filling Station at 2024 Georgia avenue northwest, early yesterday.

Police said the man, who gave his name as Alvin Holcombe, 27, with no address, had taken $1.26 in pennies from the register, which Henry J. Horner, 1209 Fern street northwest, manager of the station, later reported was all the money left at the station.

Police also reported a car was found parked near the filling station which was reported later as having been stolen from the Detroit Body & Fender Works at 2035 Georgia avenue.

TRADE FUND CHIEFS CHOSEN FOR CHEST

Glover and Owen Are Picked to Supervise Charity of Business Groups.

C. C. Glover, jr., and Claude Owen have been named as local representatives of a special committee on business cooperation, to enlist great national facilities and agencies in the Community Chest campaigns throughout the Nation. The appointment was made yesterday by Newton D. Baker, chairman of the national citizens committee of welfare and relief mobilization.

The special duties of the committee to which Mr. Glover and Mr. Owen are members is to bring the attention of business leaders to the emergent nature of the relief situation and the need of their leadership in this fall's campaign because of the vital interest of business in the success of these drives.

In bringing about closer contact between the members of the various organizations of the city and of the welfare and relief groups, which make up the Community Chest, several hundred civic, fraternal, religious, business and other organizations yesterday were invited to appoint each a liaison officer.

This announcement was made by E. C. Graham, president of the Chest, who said those selected would serve as members of the Liaison Officers Association of the Community Chest, which will meet monthly. "The Liaison Officers Association will be the most representative group of Washingtonians ever united in any civic or humanitarian endeavor," Mr. Graham said.

Rabbi Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore; Newbold Noyes, Chest campaign chairman, and Elwood Street, director of the Chest, will be the speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Chest speaker's unit at 12:30 p. m. today at the Washington Hotel.

Today's meeting is considered the opening gun of the campaign. The intensive work of this group will continue until the campaign ends November 23.

Rabbi Israel will make the principal talk today. He is considered one of the greatest speakers on social topics in the country. His talk will be of the inspirational variety—the meeting being designated as a "pep" meeting for the speakers.

Mr. Street was the principal speaker at a meeting of the Richmond Rotary Club last night at the Virginia capital.

Dublin Film Closes Tonight.

The final presentation of the film depicting the Eucharistic Congress at Dublin will be given tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Tenth street near K street northwest. The film is being presented under the auspices of the St. Martin's Church of Gaithersburg, Md., for the church's school fund.

ARMY COTS ASKED BY COMMISSIONERS FOR DISTRICT IDLE

Plea for Winter Relief Is Expected to Be Granted; Aid Plans Pushed.

An appeal for the loan of 500 Army cots, together with mattresses and blankets, was made by the District Commissioners yesterday in a letter addressed to the chief of staff of the Third Corps Area in behalf of the Salvation Army and the Gospel Mission. It is expected that the request will be granted, as it was four years ago.

The charitable agencies asked the Commissioners to make the request, and Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, wrote the letter. The cots would be used by unemployed this winter.

Relief Plans Discussed.

Meanwhile plans were being discussed by officials of the District emergency relief organization and the Community Chest for the latter to administer unemployment relief after about the middle of November. District officials hope Congress will have appropriated an additional fund for disposition by the welfare board before the $100,000 the Chest is to contribute is exhausted.

Although Fort Hunt was turned over to the office of Public Buildings and Public Parks yesterday by the War Department, the Commissioners are not inclined just now to adopt suggestions that the abandoned fort be turned into a cantonment camp. Such a venture would be impractical, they believe, because of its distance from Washington as well as the cost of equipping the fort for occupation.

Contonments Urged.

Representatives of the Khaki Shirts of America had another conference yesterday with George S. Wilson, director of public welfare, regarding their proposal that cantonments be established to care for the homeless and destitute this winter. It is doubtful, however, that this suggestion will be adopted, at least not until more money is obtained from Congress.

Judge Given Fines Stop Sign Flouters

Warns of $300 Penalties if Motorists Ignore Red Lights.

A threat that he might be forced to impose the maximum sentence of $300 on persons who passed red lights or stop signs, to break up the practice, was issued in Police Court yesterday when Judge Ralph Given found thirteen persons guilty and fined each $5.

All were arrested by Policeman Raymond Sinclair, of the Traffic Bureau, together with fourteen others, twelve of whom elected to forfeit collateral. Warrants were issued for the others who failed to appear on Sinclair's summons.

All of the arrests were made in Rhode Island and Florida avenues by Sinclair, who declared he was acting on orders. Judge Given denounced the practice as dangerous and he said he intended to break it up.

Janitors Warned of Mail Thieves.

Janitors of all the city's apartment houses were notified last night by police to be on the lookout for two men who have been stealing letters from apartment mail boxes.

Police Seek Bold Robber, But Find Dog

Responding to a call that a burglar was in a house at 1241 Thirtieth street northwest, seven policemen last night rushed to the address and formed a guard around the house. Then two bluecoats dashed in to catch the bold burglar, who could be heard rummaging around in a rear room.

With guns drawn, they flashed on the lights, only to find the bold burglar to be a wire-haired terrier struggling to dislodge a stray cat that he had forced to retreat to the top of a china closet.

Mrs. Gertrude Sturges told police the cat must have got into her house through an entrance in the basement made for the dog.

BRITON LAUDS IDEAS OF JOHN MARSHALL

Lord Craigmyle Opens Series of Lectures at G. W. U. on First Chief Justice.

Chief Justice John Marshall was described as "one of that race of superbly intelligent men who appeared in Virginia in the middle of the eighteenth century," by Lord Craigmyle, British jurist and statesman, in the first of his three lectures on the first Chief Justice of the United States at the George Washington University yesterday.

Citing the relation between the States and the Federal Government as the great problem in the life of Marshall, Lord Craigmyle said that "under his analysis and impulse a higher type of Federal nationalism was substituted for the sturdy but stupid isolation of the States."

Prof. Charles Sager Collier, of the law faculty, introduced the speaker as "a distinguished defender of human rights and liberty." He recalled Lord Craigmyle's long service in the House of Parliament, as the friend and associate of such statesmen as Gladstone, Brice and Rosebery and, with the liberal ascendency in England after 1905, as a member of the privy council with Asquith and Lloyd George.

"As a defender, judicially and in his opinions, of human rights, Lord Craigmyle has met bitter opposition because of his championship of the weak and oppressed. He is one of the great figures of the recent juristic development of Anglo-Saxon law, who has done much to mold the law and adapt it to present conditions," Prof. Collier said.

Lord Craigmyle will continue his lectures tomorrow at 5 p. m. in Corcoran Hall, treating the diplomacy of John Marshall. The concluding lecture, on Friday, at 6 p. m. in Corcoran Hall, will deal with the constitutional judgments of Marshall.

Staples Is Complainant Against Thefts Suspect

James Allen Reed, 19, colored, of 2635½ Virginia avenue northwest, was arrested yesterday and charged with six cases of housebreaking. One of the complainants was Orville Staples, of 2005 M street northwest, whose store was robbed several weeks ago.

Staples, a former policeman, was dismissed several years ago on charges that were brought against him, but was later vindicated. He refused reappointment to the force.

BUREAU CONCLUDES BUDGET HEARINGS; D.C. HEADS PLEASED

$17,000,000 Has Been Cut From Departmental Estimates.

Hearings on the 1934 District budget, which have been held for the last two and a half weeks before the Budget Bureau, were concluded yesterday with a discussion of the estimates of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks. Although the commissioners are unable to predict how many of the requests will be recommended to Congress, they are admittedly pleased with the reception accorded them by the bureau.

The 1934 budget went to the Budget Bureau well trimmed of all nonessentials, as the Commissioners some months ago inaugurated a rigorous economy policy and warned all department heads to include only what is unquestionably necessary in their estimates.

As a result the departmental estimates, when they reached the special economy committee, totaled only $47,000,000, or $10,000,000 less than the previous year's estimates. By the time the economy committee and the commissioners had finished with the budget another $7,000,000 had been eliminated.

As a consequence, it is expected that the Budget Bureau will cut little from the bill. The exact amount, however, will not be known until President Hoover submits the measure to Congress.

Plaint of Divorced Wife Jails Trainer

R. R. Carman, Jr., Held in Settlement on Support of Children.

Richard R. Carman, jr., trainer of the Nevada Stock Farm racing stable, now at the Laurel, Md., track, was held at the Third Precinct station last night following his arrest on a writ of ne exeat issued by Justice Oscar R. Luhring in District Supreme Court at the behest of Carman's divorced wife, Mrs. Angela Roach Carman. He was taken into custody at his apartment in the Broadmoor.

The action was based on a suit for maintenance filed by Mrs. Carman to compel her husband to live up to the terms of a settlement he signed at the time of their divorce in Mexico. Since that time Carman has remarried.

Mrs. Carman asked for a monthly allowance of $250 for herself and three children. Through Attorney John Paul Jones, Mrs. Carman obtained custody of her 11-year-old son last week, after a two-day hearing before Justice F. Dickinson Letts. The writ of ne exeat was issued to keep Carman within the jurisdiction of the local courts pending the settlement of the maintenance suit.

Mother of 3 Injured When Stove Explodes

Mrs. Halsey Early, of 620 Maryland avenue northeast, was slightly injured yesterday when a coal stove exploded after she had prepared breakfast for her three children.

Mrs. Early suffered minor lacerations to the cheek and hand. The flying iron damaged furniture of the room.
